On six successive Wednesdays (February 22nd & 29th, March 7th, 14th, 21st, 28th) we shall again have our Parish Family gatherings as in past years. Between 5:55 PM promptly and 8 PM precisely, we shall eat and worship and study together, as families and as the Church Family.

Save the dates now, and plan to be with us!

FAMILY NIGHTS IN LENT

All sorts and kinds of people may be together and even live under the same roof, but without ties deeper than simply those of nearness, they do not comprise a family. If this is true in general, it is even more true of the Parish family, made up as it is of people of varying conditions and situations, but all tied together in common bonds of God's love and service.

It is to emphasize this family relationship, both home and Parish, that we have those six Family Nights mentioned above. We shall eat, and worship, and study together between 5:55 and 8 on the evenings mentioned.

This year our study will be devoted to the deeper understanding of our own Parish life, with attention given to Church Symbolism, Church customs, Church Vestments, Church hymns, etc.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, Informal Coffee Hour; 4 PM, Inquirers' Class; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper; 7 PM, Evensong.

Monday: 8 PM, Altar Guild, regular meeting.

Tuesday: 6 PM, Smörgåsbord (see below).

A S H W E D N E S D A Y:

This is one of the two true fasts provided for in the Prayer Book, and largely so to point up the great importance of making a proper start for Lent on the very first day. Every member of the Parish should be in Church for at least one of the following Services:

7:15 AM, Blessing of Ashes, & The Holy Eucharist.

10:00 AM, The Holy Eucharist.

4:00 PM, Devotion-Instruction, especially for members of the Church School.

8:00 PM, The Litany, the Penitential Office, and brief Meditation.

Note: Imposition of Ashes, for those who so desire, at any of the above hours.

(As a time-saving convenience for those who must get to their work, a simple breakfast at 35¢ will be served in the Parish House immediately following the 7:15 Service. Reservations must be made with Miss Ethel C. Pancoast, BE 6-3025.)

SHROVE TUESDAY --- SMÖRGÅSBORD!

At 6 PM this Tuesday, The Women of Saint Mary's present another of their famous meals: this time in the general form of a Smörgåsbord. Tickets are $1.25 for adults and 75¢ for children. Bring the whole family, but call Miss Ethel C. Pancoast, BE 6-3025, to let her know you are coming.

FIRST OF SIX FAMILY NIGHTS NEXT WEEK

Wednesday, February 22nd, supper at 5:55 promptly (adults $1, children 50¢: call the Parish Office to make reservations), followed by Evensong and Sermonette in the Church, and finally by a study group; dismissal at 8 PM promptly. While this schedule is set to make it possible for even small children to take part, the ideal is to have whole families, as well as individuals who have no family.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour and Reception for the newly confirmed members.
Tuesday: 8 PM, regular meeting of the Parish Vestry.
Wednesday (Ember Day): 7:30 AM, Morning Prayer; 7:45 AM, the Holy Eucharist; 10 AM, the Holy Eucharist; 5:55 PM, Supper for Family Night; 8 PM, regular meeting, The Women of Saint Mary's.

THE BISHOP'S VISITATION

The Offering at the Confirmation Service is for the Bishop's Fund, and checks may be drawn accordingly.

FAMILY NIGHT WEDNESDAY

Supper at 5:55, Evensong at 6:45; study groups at 7:15; dismissal at 8 --- this is the schedule for each week. People of all ages are invited to eat and worship and study together; this week's topic will be "Symbols of our Faith". Do come and join with us!

Supper reservations must be made today, with Miss Ethel Pancoast. Adults $1, children 50¢.

LENTEN SELF-DENIAL OFFERING

In line with the change made by the General Convention, our children will again have the regular Mite Boxes. Other members of the Parish are invited to use either the special boxes provided, or the envelopes: in each case, your self-denial offerings will be applied on our Parish Missions Quota. Deny yourself in Lent, and let your offering reflect that denial! Help yourself, and help your Parish!

A WORD OF THANKS

The Women of Saint Mary's wish to thank all who helped make the recent Card Party a success. Net proceeds (for Missions) were somewhat over $55.

LENTEN EMBER DAYS

Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday of this week are this quarter's days for special prayers for the Ministry (see your Prayer Book, pages 38, 39, and 260.) Let your prayers be added to those of myriads of others that God may bless and increase the Sacred Ministry of His Church.

WEEKLY FAMILY NIGHTS

As noted above, we have another in this series on Wednesday : supper at 5:55 precisely, followed by Evensong, and by study (the topic this week is 'Church Manners').

We had a splendid response last week, and many said they expect to be with us this Wednesday. If you have not already made supper reservation ($1 for adults, 50¢ for children), please make such reservation today: see the Rector or Miss Ethel Pancoast.

EASTER FLOWERS

This year, as in former years, you have an opportunity to help provide flowers for the Altars for Easter Day. You might well let the absence of such decorations during Lent serve as your reminder.

Turn in your contribution with your regular offerings, but mark it clearly 'For Easter Flowers'. Include also, if you wish, the names of any of the departed you may care to remember (giving such names in full, or better yet, by Christian names alone).

YOUR LENT, 1956

Have you set yourself your goals for Lent, 1956?

Are you already taking the steps necessary to reach those goals?

Do you have a Self-Denial Box handy in your home, so that your self-denial offerings may help others to come to know Christ through his Church?

Are you making and taking time for study and meditation, thus to deepen your whole Christian life?

Are you increasing your schedule of Church attendance, in keeping with the spirit of this important season?

Are you joining with the Parish Family on Wednesdays?

Saturday: 12 M, Instruction for Acolytes & Servers; 2-4 PM, Junior Y.P.F.

WEDNESDAY TOPIC IS "THE RELIGIOUS LIFE"

Sister Ethelwyn Margaret, of the Society of Saint Margaret, will be with us for the study section of this week's Family Night; she will tell us of the work of her Order. You are urged to be with us, starting with supper at 5:55; if you wish supper, however, you must make reservation with the Rector today.

NEXT SUNDAY IS "MOTHERING SUNDAY"

For several reasons, the Fourth Sunday in Lent is known by this name. It is the day on which for long ages Christians have been remembering their own mothers (and in a far more fitting way than the crass commercialism of the recently instituted Sunday in May).

A suggestion: Plan now to remember in your prayers your own mother during this week, and particularly next Sunday. If she is still in this life, how about pleasing --- and surprising --- her with a truly Christian gift on the Christian Mothers' Day?

EASTER FLOWERS

It is now time to turn in your offerings for Easter flowers. Remember, too, that if you wish names listed at Easter, such names should be given to the Rector promptly.

There is no "fee" involved at all for such names; you may care to give one dollar and list ten names, or ten dollars and no names, etc.; it is, instead, an outright offering to help the Altar Guild in its finances.

CHRISTIAN SYMBOLISM THIS WEEK

This week's study topic for the Family Night will be a continuation of the matter of Symbolism. We find in this consideration that the many decorations used in the Church are not only beautiful, but also meaningful.

Please remember to make your supper reservations today; and then do come and join with us on Wednesday!

THIS FOURTH SUNDAY IN LENT....

.... is variously known as "Mid Lent" (just about half-way between Ash Wednesday and Easter), as "Refreshment Sunday" (from the liturgical Gospel, the feeding of the five thousand), and as "Mothering Sunday" (from a verse in the liturgical Epistle, Galatians iv:26).

In this last connection, the mother aspect has long referred to the Mother Church of each of us, and also to each one's natural mother. Both mothers should be remembered with prayer and gift on this day; for, as you can see, it is the ancient "Mothers' Day" of Christians.

ELECTION OF VESTRYMEN: April 2nd

Official notice regarding the annual election is now posted on the bulletin board in the vestibule of the Church (tower entrance). Please consult the notice for full details.

EASTER MEMORIAL FLOWERS

Friday of this week will be the latest time to receiving names to be included in the Easter Leaflet. Please turn in your flower offering and/or your memorial names at once.

CHURCH VESTMENTS, VESSELS, & FURNISHINGS

These are the matters for study this week at the Family Night. Please make your supper reservations today.

PASSION SUNDAY & PASSIONTIDE (Prayer Book, p. 132)

In these last two weeks of Lent, the color for the veils on Crosses is a deep Passiontide red; certain minor changes are made in the regular Church Services; and our thoughts are particularly directed toward the sober and intensely important events in the last days of the life of our Saviour. This is the period of intensive preparation for the wonders of Good Friday and Easter Day.

OUR PARISH YOUNG PEOPLE

As you know, our Boys' and Girls' Junior Choirs have been making a substantial contribution by comprising the Choir for the Wednesday Evensongs.

Several of the boys have been prepared for serving at the Altar, and others are now learning this work.

The Church School continues to do a splendid work, and the members of the School will have an Easter party in the Parish House on Easter Even (March 31st), starting at 2 PM.

The Junior Young People's Fellowship has recently had some adjustments, and those who have not been coming regularly are urged to do so. The new advisors are Mr. and Mrs. George Wollé; the time of meeting remains the same: Saturdays from 2 to 4 PM.

(Did you adults know about these encouraging signs of growth in this Parish?)

KALENDAR FOR HOLY WEEK AND EASTER

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour.
Monday: 5 PM, The Ante-Communion, and Intercessions.
Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist.
Wednesday: 5:55-8 PM, Weekly Family Night; the topic for this week is "Some Favorite Hymns".
Thursday (Maundy Thursday): 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, High Altar; 8 PM, The Ante-Communion, and Meditation in preparation for the Easter Communion.
Friday (Good Friday): 12-3 PM, The Three Hours' Devotion.
Saturday: 5 PM, the New Fire and the Paschal Candle.
EASTER DAY: 8 & 11 AM, Celebrations of The Holy Eucharist.

A HOLY WEEK

The schedule above indicates various aids offered to you in taking advantage of the spiritual opportunities of the week. It should be possible for every member of the Parish to take part in at least one of these Services, as well as on Palm Sunday, and (of course) on Easter Day.

NOTE regarding the Passion Gospels

The entire tone of the liturgical Gospels during Holy Week militates against exclamations of praise; it is widely customary to omit "Glory be to Thee ..." before and "Praise be to Thee ..." after their reading. Furthermore, many will wish to pause briefly and to make special reverence at "He gave (or yielded) up the Ghost."

THE PALMS: their proper use and disposition

These branches have a sacramental character, being outward and visible signs of a blessing asked upon each one who carries a bit of palm from the Church. You will wish to remember this dedication to God's purposes, and to be careful about final disposition, which should be by burning, and not simply by throwing away anywhere.

EASTER EVEN FOOD SALE

Saturday, starting at 2:00 o'clock, The Women of Saint Mary's again present their sale, with tea served to those who so desire. You are urged to come to the Sale, and to stay for the 5 o'clock Service of the New Fire and the Paschal Candle.

CHURCH SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Last Sunday, fifteen members of our Church School received "Cross-and-Crown" pins in recognition of consistent attendance for the second section of the Church School year. At the end of the year in June, these will be returned to the School, and pupils with perfect attendance for the third section will receive permanent silver pins (or year award wreaths or bars).

"Perfect attendance" means that only two sorts of excuses are accepted: to have been too ill to go anywhere on the Sunday in question, or to have attended Church School elsewhere on the day. In each case, a written excuse from home is required.

NEWS FROM THE CONVOCATION

The Convocation of West Philadelphia at its recent meeting made the following elections:

Your Rector, to serve on the Executive Council of the Diocese; and Mr. Milton R. White, to serve on the Executive Committee of the Convocation.

DIOCESAN CONVENTION

The 171st Annual Convention of the Diocese will meet on April 30th and May 1st, at The Church of the Holy Trinity. You are asked to include in your daily devotions the Prayer for Conventions, page 36 of your Book of Common Prayer.

PARISH TEA NEXT SUNDAY

The Women of Saint Mary's are entertaining with a Parish Tea on Sunday afternoon, May 6th, from 3 to 6, at the home of Mrs. A. F. Pearson, 4314 Spruce Street.

This is to be a gala affair, and you are invited to attend. It is a party for both men and women. Your donations of cash that afternoon will go towards the women's financial pledge to the Parish.

USHERS FOR YOUR ASSISTANCE

Under the leadership of Me. Lee Kinkade, a group of ushers has recently been reestablished. These men will be happy to assist you when you come into the Church on Sundays at 11 AM --- both with Leaflets, and in seating in the Church.

A WORD OF THANKS

The Women of Saint Mary's wish to thank all those who so heartily and generously gave their aid for the recent Roast Beef Dinner. The dinner was a huge success, and the proceeds will help the women to meet their pledge to Parish support.

MITE BOXES AND LENTEN DENIAL BOXES

Have you brought yours yet? We expect very soon to be able to make a final report on these two offerings.

SPRING HOUSE-CLEANING

The Women of Saint Mary's suggest the following to you: When you are house-cleaning, don't throw out things that are usable, but leave them at the Parish House, for the Rummage Sale which will come in October.

CAR PARKING FACILITIES FOR SUNDAYS

Some of you may not be aware of the parking space available for members of this Church. On Sundays, the University guards unlock the gate to the Illman School playground (3900 block of Chancellor Street, between Walnut and Locust).

This is for the exclusive use of people attending Services at Saint Mary's, and the gates are open from 7:30 AM until 1 PM.

Don't hunt for parking space; use our own!

CHOIR MUSIC NEXT SUNDAY

On the 13th, the Junior Choirs will sing the entire 11 o'clock Service by themselves, with the regular Choir in the Congregation.

"EXPECTATION SUNDAY"

As you doubtless know, this Sunday after Ascension Day is affectionately known by the term "expectation" because while we are in the Octave of the Ascension, we find ourselves looking forward to the great importance of Whitsunday (next week). In the Collect for this week, we ask God to ".... leave us not comfortless...."

THE UNITED THANK OFFERING

The Spring Ingathering will be on Monday, May 21st, 10:30 AM, at the Episcopal Academy (City Line & Berwick Road, Overbrook). Bishop Hart will be Celebrant, and the Rev. Raymond J. Hammer, St. Saviour's, Tokyo, will give an address.

Place your Offering on the alms bason, or give it to the Rector, or send or hand it to Miss Nina Lackenbacher, The Fairfax, 43rd & Locust Streets, using the Blue Envelope, or marking your contribution clearly for The United Thank Offering. (Checks should be drawn to the U.T.O.)

Your Offering should be received today, May 13th, if possible.

A BIRTHDAY --- today

Today, Pentecost or Whitsunday, marks the actual birthday of the Church, and it is fitting that we should take special notice of the occasion. Truly, it is the energizing of the Holy Ghost which makes the very existence of the Church possible --- and on this day we recall with deep gratitude to God the coming of that Holy Ghost.

MITE BOX PRESENTATION NEXT SUNDAY

Despite the changes made in the arrangements about the Children's Offering, the Annual Presentation Service will take place Sunday afternoon, May 27th, at the Episcopal Academy, at 4 PM.

Our Junior Choirs will be there, and also our Processional Cross and Parish Banner.

All members of the Parish are urged to attend.

MITE BOXES FROM THIS PARISH

Last call for Mite Boxes! In order to make our proper report at the above Service, we should have any Boxes (Mite of Self-Denial) that may be outstanding. Please bring them today.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour; 4 PM, Mite Box Presentation Service (at the Episcopal Academy).

Wednesday: 7:30 AM, Morning Prayer; 7:45 AM, the Holy Eucharist.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

MITE BOX PRESENTATION SERVICE

At 4 PM today comes this annual get-together for children and others, for presenting the missionary offering of the children and others.

All persons in the Parish, adults and children, are invited and urged to attend. The place: The Episcopal Academy, City Line Avenue and Berwick Road, Overbrook.

NEXT WEEK: THE STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

Save the date: Thursday, June 7th.

The supper is based on chicken salad, with cake, ice cream, and strawberries for dessert.

Reservations ($1.50 for adults, 75¢ for children) are now being taken by Miss Ethel Pancoast, BE 6-3025.

CHURCH SCHOOL PICNIC NEXT SATURDAY

All members of the Church School, pupils and staff, are invited to gather at the Parish House on Saturday of next week (June 9th) at 5:30 PM. We shall have a "cook-out" supper in the Church Close, with a picture show following.

The School will provide the food, but there may be those who would care to help provide funds for this; if so, consult with the Rector or Miss Alice Pancoast.

HAVE YOU NOTICED???

The entire exterior of the Rectory has now been repainted (the last time was in 1948) with an attractive and durable two-coat job. We look and feel quite spruced up!

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour.
Thursday: 6-7:30 PM, Strawberry Festival.
Saturday: 5:30 PM, Church School Picnic, in the Close.
Next Sunday: 11 AM, closing exercises of the Church School, in Church.

PENCE CANS

Please bring the contents of your Pence Cans to Church today or next Sunday.

As you know, this money goes toward our missionary work, through The Women of Saint Mary's, and thus is of assistance in meeting our Quota.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

Chicken salad, etc.; strawberries and cake and ice cream for dessert! Thursday at 6 PM. Make your reservations ($1.50 for adults, 75¢ for children) with Miss Ethel Pancoast, BE 6-3025.

CHURCH SCHOOL NOTES

Picnic this Saturday. "Cook-out" supper in the Church Close at 5:30 PM, followed by games and a picture show. We shall be looking for all members of the School.

Closing of the School is scheduled for next Sunday, the 10th, in Church at 11 AM, at which time awards for attendance will be presented for the past year.

THIS LEAFLET

Today's is the last issue to be mailed until fall. There will be mimeographed programs each Sunday throughout the summer, but mailings will be made only in the event of special news items.

FOR THE SUMMER

Remember that the Church (and its running expenses) continues all during the "vacation weeks", and that our regular Sunday schedule is maintained without a break.

The Vestry reminds you that you should keep your pledge paid up. If you are to be away for a while, why not pay your pledge in advance?

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School (Parish House); 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour (Parish House).

Monday: 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Altar Guild.

Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist, for Parish people; breakfast afterward.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer, the Holy Eucharist (student Services); 10 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist (Parish people); 4:15 PM, rehearsal for Junior Choir, both girls and boys.

Thursday: 7:30 PM, rehearsal for Parish Choir and Junior Choir (note change in hour).

Friday & Saturday: Rummage Sale, at 52nd and Race. Sale place set up on Thursday evening.

DIOCESAN CHURCH NEWS

This important monthly magazine should be in every home in the Parish. It is only a dollar for the year which begins now --- and half of that is rebated to us for a missionary project. See Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Kinkade, or Miss King to get your name on this year's list.

WEEK - DAY SERVICES

Since so many of our people are employed, and must get to their work, we start this week with a Celebration of the Holy Eucharist at 7:15 on Tuesday mornings. A simple breakfast (35¢) will be ready immediately --- and we do mean immediately --- after the Service, so that men and women alike can get off to work shortly after 8:00. Saints' Days that occur during the week will be observed on Tuesdays.

The Celebration on Wednesdays at 10:00 will also be resumed, starting this week.

These two Services are scheduled, in order to provide mid-week Communion for people of the Parish. Nearly every person should be able to arrange to be present at one or the other, each week.

HELP WANTED: FEMALE

Openings for at least six or eight Altar Guild workers. Work in pleasant surroundings with congenial companions, about two hours on Saturday morning, every five or six weeks. Apply at the meeting on Monday evening.

ALTAR GUILD MEETINGS RESUME

The second Monday of each month, the Altar Guild meets in the Parish Office at 8 PM. All interested women are cordially invited to attend the meeting tomorrow night (September 10th).

FOR BOTH MEN AND WOMEN

The Women of Saint Mary's are happy to announce that the speaker for the first dinner meeting of the fall season is to be Henry Dolan, Esquire, who will speak on the current subject "Social Drinking".

Mr. Dolan is the first Rector's Warden of St. Alban's, Newtown Square, and has served both as President of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and as a member of our Diocesan Executive Council. He has been a member of the Philadelphia Bar since 1934; he is of the faculty of Temple University, and is a member of our Church's "Committee on the Use of Alcohol". Mr. Dolan is an able and interesting speaker, and we are delighted to present him to the Parish.

Make your dinner reservations, $1.00, (either with Miss Ethel Pancoast, BE 6-3025, or through the Parish Office), for Tuesday, September 18th, at 6:15. Remember, this is an open meeting and both men and women are urged to attend.

CHURCH SCHOOL OPENS NEXT SUNDAY

On the 16th, at 11 AM in the Parish House, our School opens for the season, with a splendid Staff prepared to welcome youngsters of the Parish and community, from a year of age and upwards.

WELCOME TO NEWCOMERS AND STRANGERS

These are terms to be applied only the first time you come to Saint Mary's, for we are anxious to make you feel at home with us. Do come again, and soon....

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour, in the Parish House. (Every person in Church at 11 cordially invited.)

Wednesday: 4:15 PM, rehearsal for boys and girls of the Junior Choirs.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal. Those interested in singing in the Choir should consult with the Organist after the Service.

THIS WEEKLY LEAFLET

Beginning with next week's issue, we resume mailing the Leaflet to all on our list. If you are not now on that list, and wish to be, please give your name and address to the Rector after the Service, at the Church door, or at the Coffee Hour.

Booklets: FORWARD DAY BY DAY

Daily devotions and readings are outlined in these booklets, and many have found them a tremendous help in the years they have been available. Copies are to be found on the tract table at the rear of the Church; why not take one?

The present one covers the period of 23 September through 1 December.

HOW ABOUT YOUR RUMMAGE?

The Rummage Sale comes soon. Without doubt, every household has some items that we could well use. Call us (Miss Louise Hall at EV 6-0290 or the Parish Office, mornings only, at EV 6-3916), and we shall arrange to have them picked up.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

INVITATION TO UNIVERSITY PERSONNEL

You are cordially invited to make Saint Mary's your "home" Church away from home. We welcome you to all the aspects of Parish life, as well as to public worship. Women are invited to join the Altar Guild; men can help in our Servers' Guild; both men and women can take part in the work of the Choir. For these Parish activities, you should consult with the Rector about the Altar and Servers' Guilds, and with the Organist about the Choir.

TO PARENTS OF SMALL CHILDREN:

An important part of our Church School is that which provides adult supervision for small children (age, one year and upward) during the 11 AM Service on Sundays. You are invited to bring children to the Parish House, and then you yourselves can attend the Service in Church.

Of course, regular classes are available as well for children of other ages. But DO bring them!

COMING EVENTS

October 12th and 13th --- the Rummage Sale. The Women of Saint Mary's will gladly receive your contributions for the sale.

November 10th --- the Annual Bazaar and Turkey Dinner.

December 2nd --- Bishop Roberts will be with us for the administration of the Sacred Rite of Confirmation.

HELP WANTED

Voices (all four parts) for Saint Mary's Choir. No need for Metropolitan Opera quality; in fact better if not. Pleasant and hard work, but not strenuous. Apply to Mrs. Smith, Organist, at Coffee Hour.

Thursday: 6 PM, Chicken Dinner; 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

"YE ARE NOT YOUR OWN"

So wrote Saint Paul to the people of Corinth. Truly we are not our very own, for we are God's; and it is in recognition of this, and in deep gratitude for all He is and all He does for us that we give Him gifts through His Church. We must remember regarding God's Church that myriads of Parish groups like our own comprise the Church.

You are not your own, but you, an individual, are His Church, and your gifts to God go farther through His Church. You can show your devotion to that Church by Joining with all of us, here at 11 AM on Loyalty Sunday (November 11th), to express your thankfulness to God for His gifts to you --- and to give Him of His own.

FRIED CHICKEN DINNER THURSDAY

Yes; fried chicken and all the fixings will be served on Thursday of this week, starting at 6 PM. $1.50 for adults, 75¢ for children. Reservations should be made with Miss Ethel Pancoast (BE 6-3025), not later than Monday, the 22nd.

Following the dinner, Mrs. Gruenburg of this Parish will show us her color slides of a recent trip to Hawaii.

ADVANCE NOTICE OF BAZAAR

Saturday, November 10th, all day: the Annual Bazaar, together with Turkey Dinner. Save the date!

INQUIRERS' CLASSES TO BEGIN

FAITHFUL DEPARTED TO BE COMMEMORATED

The names of those you may wish to have remembered at the Altar on All Saints' Day should be handed to the Rector, together with a notation of which Service you expect to attend --- 7:15 or 9:30. Note change in hour.

"WHAT HAST THOU THAT THOU DIDST NOT RECEIVE?"

Saint Paul asked that question; and our reply must be, "Nothing." Even souls and bodies are ours only because God and our parents gave them to us! Whatever we may accomplish is done not by our efforts alone, but by the use of the basic materials given to us by God.

The only human being with even the remotest right to have everything provided for him is a new-born child --- one of earth's most helpless and demanding creatures. But when we reach adulthood, we must realize our responsibilities to our fellows and our God; and this (properly and rightly understood) is a grateful acknowledgement.

In unique fashion, your Church combines these two responsibilities, for your Church looks daily toward and deals daily with both, and also teaches you to do the same. Dramatize then, if you will, your thankful acceptance of what you owe to God and to His Church by joining with us on Loyalty Sunday, November 11th, when together we shall reassert our true dedication to God and Church.

Out of Gratitude to God

THOSE men and women who have an awareness that this is God's world are fortunate indeed. For them religion is a vivid reality. They are aware that the air they breathe, the ground on which they walk, the children they love, even the skills and ability which enable them to gain comforts and security for themselves, have all been freely given to them by God. There is no need to speak to them of "stewardship," budgets, or an Every Member Canvass. For them there is no problem of "giving" to the Church. They do not consider that they "give" but only that they "return" to God all they can, in worldly goods, in love and service.

WE MORTALS hold things only for a brief passing moment, and the things we hold come from God, their Source, and return to Him. We are never owners in a final sense, for, whether we like it or not, things pass through our fingers. "There are no pockets in a shroud."—THE RT. REV. RICHARD S. M. EMRICH

NO MATTER how hard you try, you cannot get ahead of God in giving. The more you give, the more you receive in return (either spiritual or temporal)! THE GIFT AND THE GIVER

Perhaps you recall a comment in the poem about the arrogant knight who sneeringly tossed a coin to the poor beggar: "... the gift without the giver is bare..."
This is true of life, for to give grudgingly or with casual and mechanical thoughtlessness almost cancels out the whole gift. He who gives from his very heart --- and who thus gives of himself --- finds a proper satisfaction from the act. This is one of the precious few situations where pride is defensible.

It may well be said that the true measure of a man can be found in what he gives, rather than in what he seeks for himself. This yardstick classifies people in an ever-ascending scale, until finally mere men are transcended, and we come to God Himself. God gives and gives and gives, and this attribute of His is one of the ways by which we know Him truly to be God.

God gives us all things, and with those things He gives Himself; we must stretch our souls by giving back to Him, according to the measure of our soul-stature.

Come next week prepared on Loyalty Sunday to offer to God your gifts.

FROM GOD --- THROUGH ME --- TO HIS WORLD

No matter how hard you try, you cannot get ahead of God in giving: the more you give, the more you receive in return (either temporal or spiritual)! God's arithmetic is this: $10 minus $1 equals $10 plus. In other words, nine-tenths with God goes much farther than ten-tenths without God!

1 Cor. 4:2

The prayer on page one was prepared especially for Every Member Canvass by the Rev. John W. Suter, D.D.

ALMIGHTY GOD,

who art the creator
and owner of all things, and who hast given in trust to thy servants the care and use of time and skills and wealth, and of our very lives:

WE acknowledge with joy that thou hast made us, and not we ourselves.
Send, we pray thee, thy Holy Spirit, that he may teach us to become faithful and wise stewards of thy manifold grace.

ACCEPT our powers,
both spiritual and mental,
which we here dedicate to the high purposes for which thou didst lend them, that through us thy goodness, and the greatness of thy love,
may be known unto all men, near and far.

BLESSED be thou, O Lord God, for both riches and honor come of thee, and it is of thine own
that we give thee:
for the good of thy Church,
the glory of thy Name,
and the sake of him who was slain and hath redeemed us to thee out of every kindred and tongue and people and nation,
our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

A UNITED ACT OF LOYALTY AND WORSHIP

This year your Vestry has again unanimously adopted the technique of Loyalty Sunday for the annual financial campaign. Last year there was almost complete agreement with the method, and many people enthusiastically asked to have another Loyalty Sunday.

By presenting your pledge card at the Altar and in the framework of an act of dedication and worship, you will be making it clear to yourself that this is indeed a gift which you are offering to God directly. During the past several weeks, we have been reaching for a fuller understanding of how much God does for us, and of what our response to Him should be. We know, then, something of His gifts to us; He certainly knows the circumstances of our lives, and what we can and should give back to Him --- and our pledges represent grateful and prayerful acknowledgment of these facts. We ask (and receive) much from Him, and the only question is: "What shall I give back to Him?"

Now the money is necessary, of course, but even more important to our spiritual growth is the assertion of our loyalty to God through His Church. This is not our Parish Church, but God's --- and our loyalty to God is expressed and defined through our loyalty to this, our Parish Church.

Saint Mary's Church is built on YOU!!!!

All things are from God, through me, to His world.

Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist (for Parish people); breakfast afterward; 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Vestry.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and the Holy Eucharist (for students); no Service at 9:30; 4:15 PM, Junior Choir rehearsal, boys and girls.

Thursday (Thanksgiving Day): 10 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Our Prayer Book provided for a "Day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God", long before the civil authorities appointed such an observance --- and the original emphasis was not on turkey dinner, nor on a sports event, but on that very giving-of-thanks to God in His Church.

You will wish to be among those who offer thankful prayers to God at 10:00 AM on Thursday.

A FEW WORDS OF THANKS

While reports are not yet available, it is certain that the recent Bazaar and the even more recent Loyalty Sunday were better supported than ever. All in the Parish join in thanking the many people who gave their time and effort on both activities. Saint Mary's Church IS built on you..... and you ARE sure foundations!

"THE BOY WITH THE CART" --- by Christopher Fry

This play, based on the life of the early English Saint Cuthman, and intended for production in connection with Churches, will be presented (by The Company of Three) in our Parish House on two nights, November 30th and December 1st, at 8:45. Admission will be by contribution.

The same play is to be presented later at two of our down-town Churches, Holy Trinity, and Saint Clement's.

TWO ESPECIALLY IMPORTANT EVENTS IN ADVENT

Sunday afternoon, December 2nd, Bishop Roberts will be with us for Confirmation.

Sunday morning, December 9th, The Women of Saint Mary's sponsor another Parish-wide Corporate Communion (for men and women). at 8:00 o'clock. We are particularly fortunate in having the Rev. Dr. Shreiner, Headmaster of the Church Farm School, as our speaker at the breakfast, following the Service.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

Friday and Saturday: 8:45 PM, "The Boy With a Cart".

Next Sunday: 4:30 PM, Confirmation.

CHRISTOPHER FRY PLAY TWO NIGHTS THIS WEEK

Don't forget "The Boy With a Cart", in our Parish House Friday and Saturday of this week (November 30th and December 1st). This is a story of Saint Cuthman, an early English saint, who, when his father died, set off with his mother in a cart to build a church. Legend has it that Christ Himself appeared and helped Cuthman build his church.

The play will start at 8:45 both nights. Admission is by contribution.

SAINT ANDREW, THE APOSTLE

November 30th (Saturday of this week) is the day set apart for the commemoration of the first Apostle. His day will be remembered at the Celebrations of the Holy Eucharist on Wednesday.

BISHOP ROBERTS HERE NEXT WEEK

At 4:30 PM next Sunday, December 2nd, we shall welcome Bishop Roberts (Retired Missionary Bishop of Shanghai) amongst us, as he administers the Sacred Rite of Confirmation to this year's Class. You will wish to be present for three reasons: to renew your own vows of Confirmation, to welcome into full participation the members of the Class, and to meet and to greet Bishop Roberts.

Following the Service, there will be an informal Reception for the Bishop and the Class, in the Parish House.

NEW MUSIC EDITION HYMNALS FOR THE CHURCH

Hymnals may now be obtained, as memorials to be placed in the Church; we plan to have these for Christmas. If you wish to supply some, please consult with the Rector.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School (Parish House); 4:30 PM, Confirmation Service; no Coffee Hour.

Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist (for Parish people); breakfast afterward.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer & the Holy Eucharist (for students); 9:30 AM, the Holy Eucharist; 4:15 PM, Junior Choir rehearsal.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

Next Sunday: 8 AM, Parish Corporate Communion.

CONFIRMATION SERVICE TODAY AT 4:30

All are invited to attend this Service. We shall welcome Bishop Roberts as he admits into full fellowship of the Parish the several members of this year's Class. This provides also a time for the rest of us to renew our Confirmation vows. This afternoon at 4:30.

FLOWERS AND GREENS FOR CHRISTMAS

You are invited to share in providing the Christmas decorations. Contributions should be turned in promptly. If you wish, you may include the names of the departed whom you wish to remember; such names will be listed in the Christmas Leaflet.

ADVENT --- PREPARATION

The Advent Collect (p. 90) for use every day through the season, offers reminders of the essential message of the season: the Lord's first coming, and His second coming, as well. Your own preparation for Christmas will be the more helpful, if you will use this prayer daily.

Also, the "long" Exhortation, page 85, is appointed for use today, and will be read at both morning Services.

PARISH CORPORATE COMMUNION

All men and women of the Parish are urged to take part in this Advent Corporate Communion, next Sunday at 8 AM. We need you to make this truly effective in the life of the Parish. To kneel together at God's Altar, and then to have a meal together, is a tried and true means of finding new unity in Christ.

After breakfast, the Rev. Dr. Shreiner, will tell us of the important work of The Church Farm School, of which he is Headmaster.

Breakfast reservations (90¢) must be made with Miss Ethel Pancoast (BE 6-3025), by Friday noon (the 7th).

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and the Holy Eucharist (for students); 9:30 AM, the holy Eucharist; 4:15 PM, Junior Choir rehearsal.

Thursday: 6 PM, Advent Quiet Evening; 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

A REPORT FROM YOUR VESTRY

As of the recent Vestry Meeting, there were in hand pledges for 1957 in the amount of $6,883.20 from 108 persons. This is considerably less than the amount required, and represents only one-half of the 200 names on our mailing list (and most addresses on the list are for more than one person each).

If you have neglected to send in your pledge, please do so promptly.

QUIET EVENING ON THURSDAY

The Rev. Paul C. Kintzing, Jr., Rector of Saint John's Church, Bala-Cynwyd, will lead in three Meditations, starting at 6 PM. A simple supper will be served in the Parish House after the first Meditation; the Quiet Evening will take place in the Church.

Reservations for the supper ($1) should be made with Miss Ethel Pancoast, BE 6-3025, by Tuesday.

1957 CHURCH KALENDARS AVAILABLE

This familiar Kalendar in the liturgical colors may now be had from the Rector at 50¢ the copy.

FLOWERS AND GREENS FOR CHRISTMAS

Remember to turn in your contributions for these, together with names you may wish to have listed as memorials in the Christmas Leaflet.

Thursday: 7:30 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.
Next Sunday (the 23d): 4:30 PM, Evensong and Carol Service, for all members of every family.

THE ADVENT EMBER DAYS

Ember Days are what the Prayer Book calls "the stated times of Ordination", and they come on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday of this week. Your prayers are asked for the Sacred Ministry of the Church (see pages 38, 39, and 260 in your Prayer Book).

CHRISTMAS FLOWERS AND GREENS

Today is the latest time to give the Rector the names of persons you wish included among the memorials in the Christmas Leaflet. Your contributions are the sole source of funds for flowers and other decorations.

GIFTS AT CHRISTMAS TIME

It is through your Church that you have Christmas at all; it is, then, only reasonable to suggest that your most substantial gift-giving should be to God through His Church. Just keep this thought in mind as you make your final gift plans....

CAROL SERVICE FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

Since the Advent Season precludes the singing of Christmas Carols until the day itself, and since after the day, we are all pretty well filled with them, this Service has been arranged; thus all may have the opportunity of singing carols together in the Church.

You will wish to be present at 4:20, when the Choirs will sing certain carols at the rear of the Church -- before the Processional Hymn.

CHRISTMAS SCHEDULE

Next Sunday (the 30th): 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School (Parish House; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour.

CAROL SERVICE TODAY AT 4:20 P.M.

This is arranged to provide an opportunity for all members of each family to sing some of the best loved Christmas Carols in Church. The Junior Choirs and the Parish Choir will be leading the singing.

Several numbers are to be sung at the rear of the Church for ten minutes before the start of the actual Evensong. You will wish to be present, then, at 4:20 for this special feature.

After the Service, all present are invited to go to the Parish House, for a little Christmas Party, with refreshments.

CHRISTMAS EVE AND CHRISTMAS DAY

The various Services and hours are listed above. Every member of the Parish will plan to be present for one of the Christmas Eucharists.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School (Parish House); 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour.

Tuesday ('The Circumcision of Christ' --- New Year's Day): 10 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist, with special prayers for the new year.

Next Sunday ('The Epiphany, or the Manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles'): 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour. The Epiphany is one of the major feasts of the Christian Year, and the time when we commemorate the coming of the Wise Men --- some time after Christmas itself.

THANKS AND GREETINGS

We at the Rectory wish to thank the many of you who sent us greetings at Christmas, and we give to you our most cordial wishes for a happy, prosperous, and blessed New Year.

Together we all face a 1957 which is full of opportunities in the portion of God's vineyard known as Saint Mary's Church, Hamilton Village. May He bless us all in His work here!

A WORD OF THANKS

The Women of Saint Mary's wish to thank all who helped to make the recent Card Party a success. By means of this event, we are able to make a substantial contribution to the Smith Memorial (Convalescent) Home at Oakbourne.

LENTEN FAMILY NIGHT STUDY TOPICS

Ash Wednesday comes on March 6th, and then come Family Nights. The Rector would be happy to hear any suggestions you may have as to topics for study. It is by no means a matter of seeking subjects, but rather one of deciding which of the many to include. Here are a few suggestions: Henry VIII and the English Reformation; Church Symbolism as found in Saint Mary's; the Canons of the Church; several areas of interest in the Old Testament. Please let the Rector know soon what matters you would like to have presented.

FORWARD MOVEMENT TRACTS AND BOOKLETS

Have you looked recently at the publications on the Tract Table at the rear of the Church? There are a good many new items which may be of interest and help to you. Why not look today?

HYMNALS FOR THE PEWS

Eleven more copies have been given, and are now in place in the Church. We really need about forty more, in order to provide proper coverage. Wouldn't you like to give one or more?

Today, please follow and join in singing the Merbecke Communion Service Setting, as found at the numbers listed in this leaflet.

MADAM, COULD YOU SPARE??

..... not a dime, but an equally small fraction of your time? About two hours every five or six weeks would be a wonderful help to the Altar Guild, and also a worth-while experience for you.

Even if you can't get to the evening meetings, but could help Saturday morning, you would be welcome. Speak to any of the officers: President, Miss MacLennan; Vice President, Miss Alice Pancoast; Secretary, Mrs. E. L. Miller; Treasurer, Mrs. Nazarok.

SPECIAL SERVICE OF MUSIC

"The Choristers" is the name of a group of some twenty men who sing together regularly, and who also take about four concert engagements each year. These men are under the direction of Mr. George H. Sudlow.

On the First Sunday in Lent, March 10th, The Choristers will sing here at Saint Mary's, presenting a Choral Litany in Procession at 4 PM. This information is offered to you now, so that you may be sure to arrange to be present.

PRE-LENTEN SEASON (Prayer Book, page 118)

We now enter another season of the Church Year: two-and-a-half weeks of Pre-Lent. As is apparent from the names of the Sundays, there are about 70 (Septuagesima), 60 (Sextagesima), and 50 (Quinquagesima) days before Easter. The liturgical color is violet; we have flowers on the Altars, but we do not sing the Te Deum laudamus nor the Gloria in excelsis; certain other minor adjustments are made, also.

This is our opportunity as mentioned in the Hymn (235) which says, "...three Sundays will prepare for the time of fast and prayer; that, with hearts made penitent, we may keep a faithful Lent..."

JUNIOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S FELLOWSHIP PROPOSED

At the request of four of our young people (Mary and Patty Brown, David Tourison, Tommy West), we are exploring the possibilities of starting an organization for children between the ages of 9 and 14. Mrs Elizabeth Tourison will meet with those who are interested, after Coffee Hour (today, February 24th), at 12:45 PM, in the second floor auditorium of the Parish House. The Rector will also speak to the group.

Parents: Please note, and urge children to attend!

COMING EVENTS

March 5th (Shrove Tuesday): Another famous Smør-gåsbord, presented by The Women of Saint Mary's.

March 6th (Ash Wednesday).

March 10th (Sunday): The Choristers, male chorus, in concert in this Church, in the afternoon at 4.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

JUNIOR YOUNG PEOPLE'S FELLOWSHIP

All children of our Church School between the ages of 9 and 14 are invited to meet at 12:45 this afternoon in the auditorium, second floor of the Parish House.

Mrs. Tourison and the Rector will confer with the children, with a view to organizing a group for fellowship, with a program of worship, prayer, and service.

SMORGASBORD --- Shrove Tuesday (March 6th)

Do you enjoy a good meal, with a variety of foods available? (And who doesn't?) You will be pleased with another of these famous dinners, offered by The Women of Saint Mary's.

Shrove Tuesday, 6 PM. Adults $1.65, children (up to 12 years) 75¢.

FAMILY NIGHTS IN LENT

All sorts and kinds of people may be together and even live under the same roof, but without ties deeper than simply those of nearness, they do not comprise a family. This is true in general, and it is even more true of the Parish family, made up as it is of people of varying conditions and situations, but all of them tied together in the bonds of God's love and service.

It is to emphasize this family relationship, both home and Parish, that we have those six Family Nights mentioned above. We shall eat together, worship together, and study together between 5:55 and 8, on six successive Wednesdays, starting with March 13th.

The study topics will be announced to you later.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper and meeting; 7 PM, Evensong.

Tuesday: 6 PM, Smörgåsbord (see below).

Wednesday: A S H W E D N E S D A Y

The importance of starting Lent with the very first day cannot be over-emphasized. Every member of the Parish should be in Church for at least one of these:

7:15 AM, Blessing of Ashes, and The Holy Eucharist.

10:00 AM, The Holy Eucharist.

4:00 PM, Devotion-Instruction, especially for members of the Church School.

8:00 PM, The Litany, the Penitential Office, with brief devotional Meditation.

Note: Imposition of Ashes, for those who so desire, at any of the above hours.

(As a convenience, a simple breakfast at 35¢ will be served in the Parish House immediately following the 7:15 Service. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Smith, EV 6-3916.)

SHROVE TUESDAY --- Smörgåsbord

Tuesday at 6 PM, The Women of Saint Mary's present another of their famous meals, in the general form of a Smörgåsbord. Tickets are $1.65 (children 75¢). Bring the whole family, but call Miss Ethel Pancoast, to let her know you are coming (BE 6-3025).

FIRST OF SIX FAMILY NIGHTS NEXT WEEK

Wednesday, March 13th, supper at 5:55 precisely (adults $1, children 50¢; call the Parish Office to make reservations), followed by Evensong and Sermonette in the Church, and finally by a study group; dismissal at 8 PM promptly.

While this schedule is set to make it possible for even small children to take part, the ideal is to have whole families, as well as individuals without family.

"THE CHORISTERS" HERE March 10th

The visit by this male chorus offers an unusual musical opportunity. Do plan to be present in the Church next Sunday afternoon at 4 --- and tell your friends, and bring them with you.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 4 PM, Sacred Concert by "The Choristers", with informal Coffee Hour following; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper & meeting; 7 PM, Evensong.
Monday: 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Altar Guild.
Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist (Parish people); breakfast afterward.
Wednesday (Ember Day): 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer & the Holy Eucharist (students); 9:30 AM, the Holy Eucharist (Parish people); 4:30 PM, Junior Choir rehearsal; 5:55 to 8 PM, Lenten Family Night.
Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

"THE CHORISTERS", today at 4 PM

This presents an unusual opportunity to enjoy some splendid music by a well-known male chorus. Do come, and bring your friends with you.

LENTEN SELF-DENIAL OFFERING

The children again have Mite Boxes, for (non-Quota) missionary work. Other members of the Parish are invited and urged to use either the special boxes to be had in the Church, or the special envelopes. In each case, the self-denial offerings will be used to help meet our Missions Quota for the Parish.

Deny yourself in Lent, with your offering reflecting that denial. Help yourself! Help your Parish!

FAMILY NIGHT WEDNESDAY

Supper at 5:55; Evensong at 6:45; study groups at 7:15; dismissal at 8 — this is the schedule for each week. People of all ages are invited to eat, worship, and study together. This week's topic will be "The Canons (Laws) of the Episcopal Church".

Supper reservations must be made today, with Miss Ethel Pancoast (BE 6-3025): adults $1, children 50¢.

LENTEN EMBER DAYS

Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday of this week are this quarter's days for special prayers for the Sacred Ministry (Prayer Book, pages 38, 39, and 260). Add your prayers to those of myriads of others, that God may bless and increase the Ministry of the Church.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

WEEKLY LENTEN FAMILY NIGHTS

As noted above, we have another in this series on Wednesday: supper at 5:55, followed by Evensong at 6:45, and by study at 7:15. The topic this week is "The Dead Sea Scrolls", to be presented by The Rev. Dr. Edgar C. Young, professor at the Philadelphia Divinity School.

If you have not made reservation for the supper (adults $1, children 50¢), please do so today; speak to the Rector, or to Miss Ethel Pancoast.

EASTER FLOWERS

This year, as in former years, you have an opportunity to help provide flowers for the Altars on Easter Day. (It is likely that the absence of such decorations during Lent will serve as a reminder in this matter.)

Turn in your contribution along with your regular offering, but mark it clearly 'For Easter Flowers'. Include also, if you wish, the names of the faithful departed you may care to remember (giving names in full -- or better yet -- Christian names alone); such names will be listed in the Easter Leaflet.

YOUR LENT -- 1957

Have you set yourself your goals for Lent, 1957? ? ?

Are you already taking the steps necessary to reach those goals? ? ?

Do you have a Self-Denial Envelope or Box handy in your home, so that your self-denial offerings may help others to come to know Christ, through His Church? ? ?

Are you making (and taking) time for meditation and study, thus to deepen your whole Christian life? ? ?

Are you increasing your schedule of Church attendance, in keeping with the spirit of this important season? ? ?

Are you joining with the Parish Family each Wednesday for the Lenten Family Nights? ? ?

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

THE ANNUNCIATION OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

Thus does the Prayer Book (page 235) entitle this day --- one of the few devoted to our patron Saint.

This is one of the times each year when you are invited to make a special offering for the Altar Guild, to help pay for candles (about $150 per annum!), for laundry, for repair and replacement of Vestments, etc.

A special Annunciation envelope is available for your use, and for this purpose. Won't you help?

WEEKLY LENTEN FAMILY NIGHT --- Wednesday

Supper at 5:55; Evensong at 6:45; study groups at 7:15; dismissal at 8. People of all ages are invited to eat together, worship together, and study together. The topic this week is "The Canon Laws of the Church", part II, with special attention to the Marriage Canons.

Supper reservations (adults $1, children 50¢) must be made today, with Miss Ethel Pancoast or the Rector.

ANOTHER MUSICAL TREAT --- April 7th

On Passion Sunday, The New School of Music presents an unusual event at Saint Mary's: a mixed chorus of thirty voices, in works of Palestrina, Buxtehude, and others. Two Cantatas will have accompaniment by our Parish Organist, together with four stringed instruments; the remainder of the program will be sung a capella.

Many of you enjoyed (and supported) the recent program by The Choristers. This coming concert at 4:00 on a Sunday afternoon will be quite different, but again a real treat in the field of liturgical music.

Sunday, April 7th, 4 PM. Do plan to be present.

THIS FOURTH SUNDAY IN LENT....

.... is variously known as "Mid-Lent" (just about half-way between Ash Wednesday and Easter), and as "Refreshment Sunday" (from the liturgical Gospel, the feeding of the five thousand), and also as "Mothering Sunday" (from the liturgical Epistle, Galatians iv:26). In this last connection, you can see that this is the ancient and Christian (not commercial!) "Mothers' Day".

THE NEW CHORAL SOCIETY TO BE AT SAINT MARY'S

A special concert by this chamber chorus, under the direction of Dr. William H. Reese, Sunday, April 7th, at 4 PM. Works of Palestrina, Buxtehude, and others — a capella and with organ and strings — will be offered. This is truly a musical treat for you and your friends.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper and meeting; 7 PM, Evensong.

Tuesday: 7:15 AM, The Holy Eucharist (Parish people), with breakfast afterward.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and The Holy Eucharist (students); 9:30 AM, The Holy Eucharist (Parish people); 4:30 PM, Junior Choir rehearsal; 5:55 to 8 PM, Lenten Family Night (see below).

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

Next Sunday: 4 PM, New Choral Society Concert.

THE ENGLISH REFORMATION — and Henry VIII

This interesting Tudor period will be presented at this Wednesday's "Family Night". Supper promptly at 5:55, followed by Evensong at 6:45, study at 7:15, dismissal at 8. Supper reservations (adults $1. children 50¢) must be made today, with Miss Ethel Pancoast or the Rector.

EASTER MEMORIAL FLOWERS

Friday of this week (April 5th) will be the latest time to receive names to be listed in the Easter Leaflet. Please turn in your offering and/or your list of names at once, if you wish names included for Easter Day.

ELECTION OF VESTRYMEN: April 22nd

Official notice regarding this annual election is now posted in the Church vestibule (tower entrance). Please consult the notice for complete details.

PASSION SUNDAY & PASSIONTIDE (Prayer Book, p. 132)

Beginning with today, the last two weeks of Lent comprise the short season of Passiontide --- this week as well as Holy Week; in fact, the Prayer Book provides for the use of the name "Passiontide", but makes no mention of the term "Holy Week".

In these two weeks, the color for the veiling on the Crosses is a deep Passiontide red; certain minor changes are made in the regular Services of the Church; and our thoughts are particularly directed toward the sober and intensely important events of the last days of the life of our Saviour. This is the period of intensive preparation for the wonders of Good Friday and of Easter Day.

SYMBOLS FOUND IN SAINT MARY'S CHURCH

This is the study topic this week at Family Night (see below). Supper (adults $1, children 50¢), for which reservations must be made today, is served promptly at 5:55 PM; after this comes Evensong, and finally the study groups; dismissal at 8.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 4 PM, Sacred Concert (see below); 5 PM, Coffee Hour (note change in hour); 6 PM, Canterbury Club; 7 PM, Evensong.
Monday: 8 PM, Parish Altar Guild, regular meeting.
Tuesday: 7:15 AM, The Holy Eucharist (Parish people), with breakfast afterward.
Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and The Holy Eucharist (students); 9:30 AM, The Holy Eucharist (Parish people); 4:30 PM, Junior Choir rehearsal; 5:55 to 8 PM, Lenten Family Night.

EASTER EVEN FOOD SALE -- advance notice --

Saturday, April 20th, starting at 2 PM, in the Parish House. Please jot down now the time and place for this traditional sale, by The Women of Saint Mary's. Further details next week.

THE NEW CHORAL SOCIETY TODAY AT 4 PM.

A special concert, of interest to all, will be presented today. Please come, and bring your friends!

CALENDAR FOR HOLY WEEK AND EASTER

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour.
Monday: 5 PM, The Ante-Communion, and Intercessions.
Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast afterward.
Wednesday: 5:55 to 8 PM, Lenten Family Night. This week, color pictures of the Arrest, Trial, and Crucifixion of Our Lord.
Thursday (Maundy Thursday): 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist (High Altar); 8 PM, The Ante-Communion and meditation (preparation for the Easter Communion).
Friday (Good Friday): 12-3 PM, Three Hours' Devotion.
Saturday (Easter Even): 5 PM, the New Fire, and the Lighting of the Paschal Candle.
EASTER DAY: 8 & 11 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour.

A HOLY WEEK

The schedule above indicates various aids offered to you in taking advantage of the spiritual opportunities of the week. It should be possible for every member of the Parish to take part in at least one of these (week-day) Services, as well as those on Palm Sunday, and (of course) on Easter Day itself.

NOTE regarding the Passion Gospels

The entire tone of the liturgical Gospels during Holy Week militates against exclamations of praise; it is widely customary to omit "Glory be to Thee..." before and "Praise be to Thee..." after their reading. Furthermore, many will wish to make a special reverence in each case at the words "He gave (or yielded) up the ghost".

THE PALMS: their proper use & disposition

These branches have a sacramental character, being outward and visible signs of a blessing asked upon each one who carries a bit of palm from the Church. You will wish to remember this dedication to God's purposes, and to be careful about final disposition, which should be by burning, and not simply by throwing away anywhere.

EASTER EVEN FOOD SALE

Saturday, starting at 2:00 o'clock, The Women of Saint Mary's again present their sale, with tea served to those who wish it. You are urged to come to the Sale and to stay for the 5:00 o'clock Service of the lighting of the New Fire and the Paschal Candle.

AN ADVENTURE IN FAITH....

The Diocesan Campaign for Capital Funds has been under way for some time, and today we really start to take our part in this Parish.

Mr. Dexter will explain the needs which the campaign is intended to meet — and you will be given an opportunity to take your part. And do read carefully the brochure which you have received by mail.

"HOLY THURSDAY, or the Ascension of our Lord"

The Prayer Book uses this term for Ascension Day in one place. It is indeed this, for it commemorates that stupendous event when our Lord ascended into heaven.

On this, one of the major Feasts of the Christian Year, every loyal member of the Parish will plan to make his communion at one of the Services offered on Thursday.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL — Thursday, June 6th

Tickets will not be mailed in advance this year, but they may be obtained (adults $1.50, children 75¢) from any member of The Women of Saint Mary's.

ORDINATION SERVICE — June 8th

Final plans are now being made for the Ordination of John C. Kolb, a Candidate for Holy Orders from this Parish. The Service will be at 10 AM on Saturday, June 8th. We expect to have a crowded Church (for there are other Candidates to be ordained at the same time); you should plan to arrive in ample time.

In the meanwhile, please remember John and the other Candidates in your daily prayers.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; no Coffee Hour; instead: Parish Tea, 3-6 PM (see below); 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper and meeting; 7 PM, Evensong.

Monday: Convention of the Diocese, Church of the Holy Trinity, 19th & Walnut; opens at 4 PM, with Diocesan Mass Meeting at 8 PM (all are invited).

Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist (for Parish people), with breakfast afterward; 10 AM, Diocesan Convention continues, and through the day.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and Celebration of The Holy Eucharist (for students).

PARISH TEA

Between the hours of three and six this afternoon (May 5th), all members and friends of the Parish, both men and women, are cordially invited to attend a Tea at the home of Mrs. Harold Jenkins, 400 South 45th Street. A silver offering will be received.

This offers an opportunity even better than a Coffee Hour for people to become better acquainted with one another in an easy, informal, and "family" manner. We hope that each one will count this as a personal invitation to attend. We'll be looking for you!

THE CONVENTION OF THE DIOCESE

Annually, clergy and lay deputies meet to discuss and to arrange the affairs of the Diocese. Our lay deputies to this year's Convention are Messrs. Banks, Kinkade, and White; alternates are Messrs. Gilkyson and Zebley.

The hours of meeting for the Convention are listed above, and all interested persons are invited to observe from the balcony of the Church; there are no closed sessions. Lay people are particularly urged to attend the Mass Meeting on Monday evening, at which time the Bishop of the Diocese will make his annual report.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper and meeting; 7 PM, Evensong.
Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist (for Parish people), with breakfast afterward.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

LENT AND EASTER --- a retrospection

All Services of the Church were unusually well received and attended this year.

Sunday Services were splendid, with particularly enthusiastic Congregations on Palm Sunday and Easter Day.

The two choral concerts on Sunday afternoons were a new feature --- but one which we plan to repeat in the future, when feasible.

Week-day Celebrations of The Holy Eucharist: The one on Tuesday mornings at 7:15 seems to be fitting the needs of a goodly number of people, and is definitely to be recommended to others. The breakfast (35¢ each) is ready immediately after the Service, so that those who must get away may do so as early as 8:10, if necessary. The Wednesday morning Celebration at 9:30, on the other hand, seems to be needed only during Lent, and is hereby discontinued as of this week.

The Wednesday evening Lenten Family Nights are most helpful; many persons have stated that they wish they might continue. They most assuredly WILL be offered again next Lent, and perhaps (if desired) during Advent, as well.

THE UNITED THANK OFFERING

The Spring Ingathering of the U.T.O. will come on May 20th, with the Presentation Service at Saint Peter's Church, Glenside.

Our Parish ingathering is scheduled for two weeks from today (May 12th). Every woman in the Parish is urged to take part in this great semi-annual Offering.

Further and complete details about the U.T.O. and the Parish ingathering thereof may be had from Miss Ethel C. Pancoast, Parish Custodian pro tem.

UNITED THANK OFFERING

Now is the time to turn in your U.T.O. envelope, so that it may be included and reported at the Presentation Service next week (the 20th).

MEMORIAL ALTAR CANDLES

Through the gift of a member of the Parish, candles have been supplied for use at All Saints' Altar, and have been given in loving memory of another parishioner, recently deceased.

These were first used on Maundy Thursday, and they also include the seven-day Sanctuary Lights at All Saints' Altar, from Maundy Thursday through the end of July.

Perhaps others of you would care to provide similar memorials --- certainly a more lasting and suitable gift than flowers at a burial service. If you are interested, please speak to the Rector about it.

DIOCESAN CAMPAIGN FOR CAPITAL FUNDS

Many of you have been asking when we at Saint Mary's are going to take part in this project.

We can now announce that the last Sunday in May (the 26th) will be our Sunday for presenting these needs of the Diocese. We are most fortunate to have been able to arrange to have Mr. Sidney Dexter speak to us on that date.

DIOCESAN CAMPAIGN FOR CAPITAL FUNDS

As previously announed to you, next Sunday (May 26th) is to be our date for informing you about the needs of the Diocese in many expanding fields.

For this presentation, we have arranged with the man who knows the story very well, --- Mr. Sidney B. Dexter --- to speak to us at the 11 o'clock Service. You will surely wish to be present for this important event.

AN ORDINATION AT SAINT MARY'S NEXT MONTH

You will be interested to learn that on Saturday, June 8th at 10 AM, we shall welcome to our Church the Bishop of the Diocese; at that time, a Communicant of this Parish, John C. Kolb (now completing his training at the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Massachusetts) will be made a Deacon in the Church of God.

The Ordinand will be presented by his father, The Rev. J. Clemens Kolb, sometime Chaplain of the University of Pennsylvania; the preacher will be The Rev. Tom T. Edwards, Rector of Saint Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, where Mr. Kolb will be Curate after his Ordination.

Your Rector and Vestry ask your prayers on behalf of the candidate, and we hope you will plan to be present on the 8th. This offers all in the Parish an unusual opportunity to participate in one of the Church's most important and ancient Rites.

(Note from the Rector: Do any of you know of previous Ordinations at Saint Mary's? If so, please inform me, for I can find none in the records as I have them. wxs)

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, (Parish House); 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour; 6 PM, Evensong, followed by Canterbury Club supper and meeting.

Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist (Parish people); breakfast afterward.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and the Holy Eucharist (students).

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

LEAFLET MAILINGS RESUMED

At long last, we again have some part-time secretarial assistance in the Parish Office, and we can again send the weekly Leaflets through the mail.

FINANCIAL REPORT POSTED

At the last meeting of the Vestry, it was ordered that the latest financial report for the Parish be posted in the Church vestibule. Those of you who wish to do so may learn here how our finances now stand. Any Vestryman can supply details.

ANNUAL BAZAAR --- November 16th

The Women of Saint Mary's announce that again they will present the Bazaar and Turkey Dinner. This year it will be all day Saturday, November 16th.

Save the date, and do plan to come.

"FAITHFUL STEWARDS OF GOD'S BOUNTY"

This is the central theme for this year's Loyalty Sunday. As a matter of fact, everything we have or hope to have has been given to us by God Himself; and we have these things (as it were) simply on loan from Him. We find ourselves, then, actually placed in a position of stewardship.

It is to consider the implications of this which will concern us all during the next few weeks. Then, on Loyalty Sunday (November 24th), we shall gather in the Church to certify our care of that which He has entrusted to us.

"ALL THINGS COME OF THEE, O LORD"

So we were reminded last Sunday by one of our Vestry-men at the Parish Meeting in Church. You will recall that the verse (I Chron. xxix:14) continues: "and of Thine own have we given Thee."

Herein lies a profound truth, for everything we have or hope to have comes from God Himself; and in infinite love, He entrusts many things to us, and appoints us to be His stewards. When, then, we offer gifts to God, we are simply returning to the donor a part of that which is already His in its entirety.

The question turns out to be somewhat different from what we unthinkingly consider it to be; for while we imagine it to be a matter of asking ourselves, "What portion of my things shall I give to God?", the real question is, "Am I a faithful steward of God's bounty?
As such, what is the just portion of His bounty that I must return to Him, to carry on His work?"

The accounting of our stewardship will come next week, on Loyalty Sunday.

"READ, MARK, LEARN...."

These familiar words, from the Collect for this Sunday clearly set the emphasis for today upon the Holy Scriptures. This day is widely known as "Universal Bible Sunday" — and the day was chosen for this because of the fact that for centuries the Anglican Churches had already been so observing it.

THE ADVENT EMBER DAYS

Ember Days are what your Prayer Book calls "the stated times of Ordination", and they come on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday of this week. Your prayers are asked for the Sacred Ministry of the Church (see pages 38, 39, and 260, in your Prayer Book).

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School (Parish House); 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour; 6 PM, Evening Prayer (Canterbury Club), followed by supper and caroling.

Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist (for Parish people), with breakfast afterward; 8 PM, regular Vestry Meeting.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer & the Holy Eucharist (for students).

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

CHRISTMAS FLOWERS AND GREENS

Today is the latest time to give the Rector the names of persons you wish included among the memorials in the Christmas leaflet. Your contributions are the sole source of funds for flowers and other decorations.

GIFTS AT CHRISTMAS TIME

It is through your Church that you have Christmas at all; it is, then, only reasonable to suggest that your most substantial gift-giving should be to God through His Church. Just keep this thought in mind as you make your final gift plans.....

LEAFLET MAILINGS

Because of the congestion at the Post Office for the next two weeks, we shall not attempt to send out the Leaflets for next Sunday (the 22nd), nor for Christmas Eve. The usual Leaflets will be available in Church, and copies may be had at your request.

A UNITED ACT OF LOYALTY AND WORSHIP

Again your Vestry has selected the technique of Loyalty Sunday for the annual financial campaign. Many in the Parish look forward eagerly to spiritual uplift of the event.

By presenting your pledge card at the Altar and in the framework of an act of worship, you will be making it clear to yourself that this is indeed a gift which you are offering to God directly.

For the past few weeks, we have all been trying to reach a fuller understanding of what God gives to us --- or rather what He entrusts to us as His stewards. We know, then, of these gifts; God certainly knows the full circumstances of our lives; together He and we know well what we should return to Him in accounting for our stewardship.

Now the money is necessary, of course, but even more important to our spiritual growth is the assertion of our loyalty to God through His Church. This is not our Parish Church, but God's --- and our loyalty to God is expressed and defined through loyalty to this Parish and its needs.

"Faithful stewards of Thy bounty": this is what we shall assert ourselves to be on this Loyalty Sunday.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

ADVENT --- PREPARATION

The Advent Collect (p. 90) for use every day through the season, offers reminders of the essential message of the season: the Lord's first coming, and His second coming, as well. Your own preparation for Christmas will be the more helpful, if you will use this prayer daily.

Also, the "long" Exhortation, page 85, is appointed for use today, and will be read at both morning Services.

LOYALTY SUNDAY REPORT

The preliminary report on pledges for Parish support for 1958 lists 75 persons pledging $5,927.90.

FLOWERS AND GREENS FOR CHRISTMAS

You are invited to share in providing the Christmas decorations. Contributions should be turned in promptly. If you wish, you may include the names of the departed whom you wish to remember. Such names will be listed in the Christmas leaflet.

ADVENT CORPORATE COMMUNION & BREAKFAST

This annual event comes next Sunday (December 8th) at 8 AM, with breakfast in the Parish House following.

The Women of Saint Mary's are happy to announce that the speaker at the breakfast following the Service will be Miss Betty Beath, Associate Secretary of the United Thank Offering, of the Woman's Auxiliary to the National Council. Not only do members of the Parish know Miss Beath in her professional capacity, but also she is a personal friend of many (for she was a member of Saint Philip's Church); and we are delighted at the prospect of her visit.

Both men and women are urged to attend. Reservations for breakfast (90¢) must be made with Miss Alice Pancoast (Sh. 6-3025) not later than Thursday, December 5th.

THANKS AND GREETINGS

We at the Rectory wish to thank the many of you who sent us greetings at Christmas, and we give to you our most cordial wishes for a happy, prosperous, and blessed New Year.

Together we all face a 1958 which is full of God-given opportunities for Him and for His Church, both here at Saint Mary's and elsewhere throughout the world.

May He show us His will, and give us the guidance to carry it out!

Organ Postlude: "The Old Year Now Hath Passed Away" Bach

One of the major feasts of the Christian Year (and the one on which those misplaced Christmas-card Wise Men come into their own) is The Epiphany, or the Manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles.

The precious little we know about the Wise Men is to be found in the second chapter of Saint Matthew's Gospel. Read this for yourself, and see how much is certain fact, and how much is tradition and/or fancy — and nothing more. For example: Were they kings? How many of them were there? What were their names? When did they arrive? (Answers: We have no information on the first three questions, and the fourth is only indirectly answered in verse 16.)

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour (Parish House).

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and the Holy Eucharist (for students).

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

EPIPHANY OFFERING FOR MISSIONS

Special envelopes are provided, for your "Special Offering" for Missions, at the time of the Epiphany — Christ's manifestation to outsiders.

Such offerings will apply on the Parish's 1958 Missions Quota.

Unfortunately, there are too few people in this Parish named George! We do, however, have pretty good substitutes named Georgie, Amy, Frances, and a few others: but note that we said "a few".

We are speaking about the Altar Guild, and (quite seriously) if it were not for the ten or twelve members who do all the work, we should be in a bad way. Even if you could help only occasionally, we could use you. Give your name to the Rector.

(PS: He did not write this.)

THEOLOGICAL EDUCATION

Next Sunday we shall be considering the needs of the entire Church, in the field of the various Seminaries — and this consideration is urged upon all Parishes by the Presiding Bishop.

During this week, therefore, please use daily the prayer at the middle of page 39 in your Prayer Books: "For the Increase of the Ministry".

"A GERMAN REQUIEM"

This composition of Johannes Brahms is considered one of the major works in all choral music. Our own Choir, with additional voices, will present the Requiem on Passion Sunday (March 23d).

There are several items of extra expense involved in this project; we should, therefore, welcome the financial support of the members and friends of the Parish. Those who wish to sponsor this concert should give their contributions (five dollars and up) to the Rector. Sponsors' names will be listed in the program.

A FINAL REPORT

Miss Louise C. Hall, Treasurer of the Women of Saint Mary's, reports that the final figure from the Bazaar shows a clear profit of $522.46.

Thus, over half of the amount these women pledge to the annual budget of the Parish is derived from this one activity --- and from your warm support thereof.

Thank you for your help.

THEOLOGICAL EDUCATION

The Presiding Bishop asks us to remember by prayer and gift the vastly important work of providing educational facilities for men preparing for the Ministry.

Every one of us can pray and give to lend a helping hand to some of the Church's several Seminaries. Your offering, in a special envelope or clearly marked for "Theological Education", should be handed or sent to the Rector. Such offerings may be given for Bexley Hall (the Rector's own school); they may be designated for one of the others; or you may wish to give generally --- in which case our Bishop suggests an even division between the Rector's Seminary and the Philadelphia Divinity School.

Large amounts are welcomed, naturally, but lesser contributions also count up! Do take part in this year's nationwide Offering for Theological Education....

THE BRAHMS "REQUIEM"

We should be happy to have you as a Patron for this major work, to be presented on Passion Sunday, March 23d. Those who wish to help in this manner should give their contributions (five dollars and upward) to the Rector, so that names may be included in the printed programs.

PRE-LENTEN SEASON (Prayer Book, page 118)

We now enter another season of the Church Year: two-and-a-half weeks of Pre-Lent. As is apparent from the names of the Sundays, there are about 70 (Septuagesima), 60 (Sexa-gesima), and 50 (Quinqua-gesima) days before Easter. The liturgical color is violet; we have flowers on the Altars, but we do not sing the Te Deum laudamus nor the Gloria in excelsis; certain other minor adjustments are made, also.

This is our opportunity as mentioned in the Hymn (235) which says, "...three Sundays will prepare for the time of fast and prayer; that, with hearts made penitent, we may keep a faithful Lent..."

SHROVE TUESDAY SUPPER

February 18th - 6 to 7:30 PM - Parish House. You will please note this time and place, and DO plan to be with us. Adults, $1.25, children, 75¢. Please make reservations with Miss Alice Pancoast, 1042 South 51st Street, SA 6-3025.

This is an old-fashioned "covered dish" supper, with a great variety of salads, entrees, and desserts from which to choose.

Write the date now in your engagement book; and let Miss Pancoast know you are coming.

AN ANNIVERSARY

Somehow, "a quarter of a century" sounds like a great deal longer than "twenty-five years" --- but they are identical. On February 15th, your Rector will have been a Priest for this period; and he asks your prayers on that occasion. Over half of this time has been spent in this Parish!

The assurance of your prayers will be of tremendous help to him.

Tuesday: 6 PM, Shrove Tuesday Supper (see notice below); 7:30 PM, Parish Vestry Meeting.

Wednesday: A S H W E D N E S D A Y

The importance of starting Lent with the very first day cannot be over-emphasized. Every member of the Parish should be in Church for at least one of these:

7:30 AM, Blessing of Ashes, and The Holy Eucharist.

9:30 AM, The Holy Eucharist.

4:30 PM, Devotion-Instruction, especially for children.

8:00 PM, The Litany and The Penitential Office, with brief devotional Meditation.

Note: Imposition of Ashes, for those who so desire, at any of the above hours.

(As a convenience, a simple breakfast at 35¢ will be served in the Parish House immediately following the 7:30 Service. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Smith, at EV 6-3916.)

SHROVE TUESDAY SUPPER

Starting Tuesday at 6 PM, The Women of Saint Mary's present another of their famous meals, in the general form of an old-fashioned "covered dish supper".

Tickets are $1.25 (children 75¢). Bring the whole family, but call Miss Alice Pancoast (SA 6-3025), to let her know you are coming.

FIRST OF SIX FAMILY NIGHTS NEXT WEEK

Wednesday, February 26th, supper at 5:55 promptly (adults $1, children 50¢; call the Parish Office to make reservations), followed by Evensong and Sermonette in the Church, and finally by a study group; dismissal at 8 PM precisely.

BRAHMS "REQUIEM" --- March 23d

Would you care to support this coming musical event? You can be a Patron, by turning in your name (with five dollars or more) to the Rector or to the Organist.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER --- Friday the 21st

See notice on the bulletin board for details.

MEMORIAL GIFTS TO THE PARISH

Recently given are the following:

New green frontal for All Saints' Altar (to be blessed and used next Trinitytide), in memory of Mrs. Nellie Pancoast and Miss Ethel Pancoast, by Miss Alice Pancoast.

Professional waxing and polishing machine for the new floor in the Parish House, and for other floor areas, in memory of Miss Ethel Pancoast; by Miss Alice Pancoast.

Two checks totaling $125. toward the rebuilding of the Organ, in memory of Miss Caroline Bache; by Mrs. Samuel Tyler and Mrs. Tucker Gibbs.

All of these are gratefully appreciated.

NEXT SUNDAY IS "MOTHERING SUNDAY"

For several reasons, the Fourth Sunday in Lent is known by this name. It is the day on which for ages Christians have been remembering their own mothers (and in a far more fitting way than the crass commercialism of the recently instituted Sunday in May).

A suggestion: Plan now to remember in your prayers your own mother during this week, and particularly next Sunday. If she is still in this life, how about pleasing --- and surprising --- her with a truly Christian gift, on the Christian Mothers' Day?

EASTER FLOWERS

As in former years, you have an opportunity to help provide flowers for the Altars on Easter Day. (It is likely that the absence of such decorations during Lent will serve to remind you of this matter.)

Turn in your contribution along with your regular offering, if you wish, but mark it clearly 'For Easter Flowers'. Include also the names of the faithful departed you may wish to remember. Such names will be listed in the Easter Leaflet — provided they are in the hands of the Rector by March 26th.

PRAYER BOOK REVISION

This is the continuing topic at this week's Family Night. Supper is at 5:55 (for which reservations must be made today), Evensong at 6:45, study at 7:15, dismissal promptly at 8.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE....

.... for good news! Miss Louise Hall, who had charge of the recent Rummage Sale (finally held on February 22nd), reports the net proceeds to be $104.50.

She wishes to thank all those (in the Parish, and their friends) who so generously contributed to the success of the sale.

MUSICAL EVENT NEXT SUNDAY

As a special mark for the beginning of Passiontide, we shall have a presentation of the Brahms major choral work, "A German Requiem", on March 23d, at 4 PM. In addition to our own Choir and Organist, we shall have several other voices, as well as timpani.

Please invite your friends to come with you.

PASSION SUNDAY & PASSIONTIDE (Prayer Book, p. 132)

Beginning with today, the last two weeks of Lent comprise the short season of Passiontide — this week as well as Holy Week; in fact, note that the Prayer Book provides for the use of the name "Passiontide", but makes no mention of the term "Holy Week".

In these two weeks, the color for the veiling on the Crosses is a deep Passiontide red; certain minor changes are made in the regular Services of the Church; and our thoughts are particularly directed toward the sober and intensely important events of the last days of the life of our Saviour. This is the period of intensive preparation for the wonders of Good Friday and of Easter Day.

PROPOSALS FOR PRAYER BOOK REVISION

This is the study topic for this week's Family Night (see below). Supper (adults $1, children 50¢), for which reservations must be made today, is served promptly at 5:55 PM; after this comes Evensong, followed by the study group; dismissal at 8 sharp.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 4 PM, special musical event (see below); 5:30 PM, Coffee Hour (note change in hour); 6:30 PM, Canterbury Club.

Tuesday (The Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary): 7:30 AM, The Holy Eucharist.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and The Holy Eucharist; 5:55-8 PM, Lenten Family Night.

THE BRAHMS "REQUIEM" --- this afternoon at 4

This major choral work, presented by our Choir and Organist (with additional voices, and timpani), is offered for your devotion and musical enjoyment. Do bring your friends with you.

Entirely in the words of Holy Scripture, this oratorio is a meditation on the blessedness of those who die in the Lord.

EASTER EVEN FOOD SALE — advance notice

Saturday, April 5th, starting at 2 PM, in the Parish House, The Women of Saint Mary's again present this traditional sale. Further details next week, but please jot down now the time and place.

KALENDAR FOR HOLY WEEK AND EASTER

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour; 4 PM, Inquirers' Class (Confirmation).
Monday: 5 PM, The Ante-Communion, and Intercessions.
Tuesday: 7:15 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast afterward.
Wednesday: 5:55 to 8 PM, Lenten Family Night.
Thursday (Maundy Thursday): 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist (High Altar), with breakfast afterward. 8 PM, The Ante-Communion and meditation (preparation for the Easter Communion).
Friday (Good Friday): 12-3 PM, Three Hours' Devotion.
Saturday (Easter Even): 5 PM, the New Fire, and the Lighting of the Paschal Candle.
EASTER DAY: 8 & 11 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour.

A HOLY WEEK

The schedule above indicates various aids offered to you in taking advantage of the spiritual opportunities of the week. It should be possible for every member of the Parish to take part in at least one of these (week-day) Services, as well as those on Palm Sunday, and (of course) on Easter Day itself.

NOTE regarding the Passion Gospels

The entire tone of the liturgical Gospels during Holy Week militates against exclamations of praise; it is widely customary to omit "Glory be to Thee..." before and "Praise be to Thee..." after their reading. Furthermore, many will wish to make a special reverence in each case at the words "He gave (or yielded) up the ghost".

THE PALMS: their proper use & disposition

These branches have a sacramental character, being outward and visible signs of a blessing asked upon each one who carries a bit of palm from the Church. You will wish to remember this dedication to God's purposes, and to be careful about final disposition, which should be by burning, and not simply by throwing away anywhere.

EASTER EVEN FOOD SALE

Saturday, starting at 2:00 o'clock, The Women of Saint Mary's again present their sale, with tea served to those who wish it. You are urged to come to the Sale and to stay for the 5:00 o'clock Service of the lighting of the New Fire and the Paschal Candle.

All glory, laud, and honor
To Thee, Redeemer, King;
To Whom the lips of children
Made sweet hosannas ring.
Thou didst accept their praises;
Accept the praise we bring.
Who in all good delightest,
Thou good and gracious King.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School (Parish House); 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour; 4 PM, Inquirers' Class (Confirmation); 6 PM, Evening Prayer, Canterbury Club, followed by supper and meeting.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, The Holy Eucharist.

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45, Morning Prayer & The Holy Eucharist (for students); 6 PM, supper, The Women of Saint Mary's, followed by regular meeting at 8 PM.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

SPECIAL LENTEN OFFERINGS

Money received in the Self-Denial Boxes and/or Envelopes will be turned over at once as a credit on our Missions Quota of $2500 per annum.

The Children's Mite Boxes (green) do not apply on our Quota, but are for special purposes named by the National Council each year.

Both sorts of Offerings should be turned in promptly, so that returns may be made at The Church House.

DELICIOUS SALTED PEANUTS

The Women of Saint Mary's again offer for sale their famous peanuts --- by the box, or by the tin. Since the orders always exceed the supply, it is best to place your request at once, with any of the members of the group.

LENT AND EASTER: in retrospect

All Services of the Church were unusually well received and attended this year. Sunday Services were splendid, with particularly enthusiastic Congregations on Palm Sunday and Easter Day.

The Wednesday evening Family Nights seem again to have been most helpful, particularly in the study of the proposed revision of the Eucharistic Liturgy.

The choral concert on Passion Sunday, with its presentation of the Brahms "Requiem", was the best attended musical event in the last thirteen years (the tenure of your present Rector). Many, many people have expressed their appreciation of this event, and have asked when there may be another of similar importance.

CONFIRMATION

Next Sunday (the 20th) at 4:30 PM, Bishop Armstrong will be with us. Please note the date and hour.

Thursday: 4:15 PM, Convocation of West Philadelphia (Church of The Saviour, 38th & Chestnut); 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

CONVOCATION AND DIOCESAN CONVENTION

As noted above, the Convocation of West Philadelphia meets on Thursday of this week.

Next week, on May 5th and 6th, comes the annual Convention of the Diocese.

As your official representatives for both of these important gatherings, your Vestrymen have elected the following: Messrs. Banks, Kinkade, and Zebley; alternates are Messrs. Gilkyson and Horn.

SELF-DENIAL AND MITE BOX OFFERINGS

These should be turned in at once, in order that we may make prompt remittance to the Church House.

As you know, the Self-Denial boxes and/or envelopes apply on our Missions Quota for 1958, while the Mite Box Offering is now a "special" and does not so apply.

NEWLY CONFIRMED MEMBERS OF THE PARISH

We welcome into full participating membership in this Parish those who received the Laying on of Hands last Sunday: Mrs. Ryde Stewart Cosgrove, Miss Ann Ellis, Miss Christina Louise Farnlof, and Mr. William G. C. Schaeffer. In addition to these, Chaplain Lawrence presented a Class whose members thus become members of this Parish.

" "HOLY THURSDAY, or the Ascension of our Lord"

The Prayer Book uses this term in one place for the Ascension. It is indeed this, for it commemorates that stupendous event when the Lord ascended into heaven.

On this, one of the major Feasts of the Christian Year, every loyal member of the Parish will plan to make his Communion at one of the Services on Thursday, May 15th.

UNITED THANK OFFERING --- Spring Ingathering

Monday, May 19th, at the Valley Forge Military Academy Chapel, Wayne: 10:30 AM; luncheon to follow. For details, consult with Miss Alice Pancoast, SA 6-3025.

Every woman is urged to take part in this Offering. Place your Offering in the Alms Bason, or hand it to Miss Pancoast. Please use the Blue Envelope, and/or mark your contribution clearly for The United Thank Offering. Checks should be drawn to The U. T. O. Your Offering should be received by Monday, May 12th, if possible.

"Christ the King" Crucifixes available at present

The Rector has located a source of supply for lovely wall Crucifixes in this original form, and at moderate price. They are wood and plastic, with the Corpus either white or coloted, 8" high, imported from Germany. See the Rector for details as to price and samples.

THE WOMEN OF SAINT MARY'S --- next week & next year

May 21st, dinner at 6:15 PM, with meeting following, at which the Nominating Committee will report; also, plans will be crystallized for the Strawberry Festival to be held on Saturday, June 7th.

Further details next week.

Today --- A BIRTHDAY

Pentecost, or Whitsunday, marks the actual birthday of the Church; and it is fitting that we should take special notice of the occasion.

Truly, it is the energizing by the Holy Ghost that makes the very existence of the Church possible --- and on this day we recall with deep gratitude the coming of that Holy Ghost.

NOTED PREACHER TO BE WITH US TODAY

Our good and great friend and neighbor, Dr. Salmon, has consented to preach for us on this Whitsunday at 11. Many of you will recall Dr. Salmon's Rectorship (and his widely-known radio Ministry) for many years at Holy Trinity, Philadelphia. Previous to that, he was Dean of the Anglican Cathedral in Ottawa, Canada.

Your Rector spent his first three years in Philadelphia as Dr. Salmon's Assistant at Holy Trinity; and it is at the urgent request of your Rector that we have been able to obtain the gracious services of this widely noted preacher.

Won't you be here with us Sunday at 11?

Wednesday: 7:30 & 7:45 AM, Morning Prayer and Celebration of The Holy Eucharist.

CHURCH SCHOOL PICNIC

This afternoon at 5, the members of the Church School, and their parents, are gathering together in the Church Close (between the Church and the Parish House) --- for informal games and a "cook-out", with charcoal broiled hot dogs, potato salad, and other foods and drinks.

We fully expect to have a wonderful time!

WOMEN OF SAINT MARY'S

Next week (Wednesday, the 18th), final meeting until the fall. Supper ($1.25) at 6:30, followed by meeting, with reports for the past year, and installation of Officers for 1958-1959.

All members are urged to attend.

GREEN ANTEPENDIA AT THE ALTARS

The superfrontal for Saint Philip's and the full frontal for All Saints' Altars have been in a sad state of disrepair, and for years this has been the case.

At the death of Mrs. Alfred Pancoast ("Nellie") in 1956, the Altar Guild wished to have the one for Saint Philip's remade in her memory. Miss Ethel Pancoast undertook to transfer the original embroidery to new silk for this; unfortunately, Miss Ethel died before the completion of this work, but her surviving sister, Miss Alice, completed it for the Altar Guild.

At the death of Miss Ethel Pancoast in 1957, Miss Alice Pancoast paid for the making of a new full frontal for All Saints' Altar --- in memory of both Mrs. Nellie and Miss Ethel Pancoast.

Today at the 11:00 AM Service, both will be dedicated to God's purposes, and in loving memory of Mrs. Nellie and Miss Ethel --- and with thanks to Miss Alice Pancoast.

THIS IS "ALL UNIVERSITY" SUNDAY AT SAINT MARY'S

Today we welcome anew and welcome back our friends of the University family. We are happy to have you with us for any and all Parish activities, as well as those of the Canterbury Club (which meets here).

Did you sign the Guest Book? If not, will you do so, please?

WELCOME TO NEWCOMERS

We extend a most cordial welcome to any who may be new amongst us. Please feel free to take full part in our Services, and in our Parish life. Kindly register in our Guest Book, at the rear of the Church.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School, in the Parish House; 12:30 PM, special informal Coffee Hour, sponsored by the Canterbury Club: all present in Church invited.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist, for students and Parish people; breakfast afterward.

WANTED: Choir voices, and Acolytes

Those interested in singing in our Choir should consult with the Organist at the Coffee Hour. We welcome new voices.

Men who have acted as Acolytes and/or Servers --- or those who wish to learn to do so --- should speak with the Rector at the Coffee Hour. Our schedules for the coming year will soon be drawn up.

RUMMAGE SALE

The Women of Saint Mary's are having their annual Sale on October 11th. Any articles, such as clothing, bric-a-brac, dishes, drapes, lamps, lamp shades, shoes, hats, carpets --- in fact, anything --- will be acceptable. Please bring articles to the Parish House any day before noon.

WELCOME!!!

We of Saint Mary's most cordially invite newcomers to take part in all of our worship and Parish life. Please sign the Guest Register --- and come again.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School (Parish House); 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour (in the Parish House); 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper and meeting.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, The Holy Eucharist (breakfast afterwards); 8 PM, Parish Vestry, regular meeting.

Wednesday: 6:30 PM, supper and meeting (8PM), The Women of Saint Mary's.

Saturday: all day, Rummage Sale (see Miss Pancoast).

PROGRAM FOR UNIVERSITY PERSONNEL

As you know, there is not yet an Episcopal Chaplain to carry on for this year; the Rector of this Parish is working with the students in developing the Canterbury program.

The first meeting of the Canterbury Club is today, as noted above. The supper at 6 will be a full-sized hot meal. The speaker of the evening is Mr. Robert Pitt, Dean of Admissions, and also Chairman of "The Episcopal Committee".

Next Sunday (the 12th), the Rectory will be the scene of an Open House for all University personnel, 4 to 6 PM.

Wednesday, October 15th, under the leadership of the National Church, University-connected people all over the country are to have a Corporate Communion. We shall have our Service at 7:30 AM on that day. Chaplain Harris will be present to assist the Rector.

Please note these many dates --- and do join with us.

LUNCHEON AND CARD PARTY COMING

Saturday, October 25th. Save the date. Further details next week.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour; 4-6 PM, Canterbury Club, guests of the Rector and Mrs. Smith, in the Rectory.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist, breakfast (35¢) afterward.

Wednesday: 7:30 AM, Corporate Communion for those of the University family.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

WELCOME

We are happy to have all who come to worship with us --- people of the community generally and University personnel alike. Please join with us in every way.

TODAY'S ANTHEM: "Jerusalem, My Happy Home",....

.... is an arrangement of the traditional American melody, "Land of Rest". It is brand new, having just been released from press in September, 1958.

Both words and melody may be found in the Hymnal at #585, the first tune.

FOR UNIVERSITY STUDENTS AND FACULTY:

Wednesday morning at 7:30, here at Saint Mary's, we shall join with countless others throughout the nation, in a great Corporate Communion for all Episcopalians in the academic community. Chaplain Harris will assist the Rector in the Service.

Afterward, a light breakfast will be served (free of cost to you) in the Parish House. However early your first class may be, you should be able to be with us --- and we hope you will do so.

This is a new emphasis on the part of the National Council's Division of College Work.

COMING EVENT FOR ALL

Save the afternoon of Saturday, October 25th, for the Luncheon and Card Party presented by The Women of Saint Mary's.

WELCOME

For nearly 135 years, this Church has been serving this community. We count it a great privilege to continue to do so.

We welcome people of this general vicinity, and all University personnel alike. Please let us know any way in which we may serve you.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School (Parish House); 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour (Parish House); 6 PM, Canterbury Club, supper and meeting (Parish House).

Monday: 8 PM, Parish Altar Guild, regular meeting.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) afterward.

Saturday: 12:30 PM, luncheon and Card Party.

SUNDAY PARKING

Did you know that we have a parking lot for Sunday mornings? We have arranged that the playground of the Illman School (across Locust Street from the Church) is available for us up to 1:30 PM on Sundays. Enter by way of Chancellor Street (between Locust and Walnut Streets), either from 39th or 40th.

A WORD OF THANKS

The Women of Saint Mary's wish to thank all who helped in any way with the recent Rummage Sale. It was a great success, and netted well over $100.

LUNCHEON & CARD PARTY

This Saturday, in the Parish House, for all and for any age. Lunch will be served from 12:30 to 1:30, with cards and other games following. Tickets at $1.50 may be had from any of the members of The Women of Saint Mary's.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour, sponsored by The Canterbury Club; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper, Evensong, and Hallowe'en Party. (All the above, except for regular Services, in the Parish House.)

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, Saint Simon and Saint Jude's Day; breakfast (35¢) follows.

WELCOME TO ALL

The rather widespread "town-gown" division often found between Parish people and University people is not present at Saint Mary's. We gladly welcome people of the community, and also University personnel.

We are here to serve all those who are members and/or friends of the Episcopal Church.

In a single word: welcome!

A DUAL CAMPAIGN FOR SUPPORT

All of you on the mailing list are being informed of the Parish's needs for 1959, and also for capital improvements required in 1958-1960.

Others, not on the mailing list, should hereby be made aware of the fact that we are now planning our budget for 1959, and that we need just plain dollars to meet our needs. Besides this, we have certain capital expenditures facing us (for such things as the renovation of the Organ, the Church roof, repairs and painting inside the Rectory, etc.). These latter have been deferred as long as possible. Again, dollars!

Cannot you help, in either case or both? Please speak to the Rector or to any of the Vestrymen at the rear of the Church.

ANNUAL BAZAAR: November 15th

This is advance notice, so that you may be sure to save the date.

But, for right now: The various tables would be glad to know what donations you are prepared to make. See Miss Alice Pancoast, President of The Women of Saint Mary's, and let her know what you can do to help.

ALL SAINTS' DAY AND ITS OCTAVE

This is that wonderful eight-day period when we remember with gratitude what the Prayer Book (page 334) speaks of as "the good examples of all those thy servants who, having finished their course in faith, do now rest from their labors."

May the souls of the faithful rest in peace! Let light perpetual shine upon them, O Lord!

UNITED THANK OFFERING

Twice each year, the women of the Church present their offerings in thanksgiving to Almighty God. For the forthcoming Ingathering, women of this Parish should turn in their blue envelopes not later than next Sunday (November 9th).

Use the envelope provided, or mark your offering clearly for the U.T.O. Checks should be drawn to the U.T.O.

PARISH MAINTENANCE AND CAPITAL NEEDS

We are now in the midst of soliciting your support for our needs in the above-mentioned areas. We need your pledges for running the Parish in 1959, and for major deferred maintenance items during 1958-1960.

Further information is posted on the bulletin board in the Church vestibule.

BAZAAR AND DINNER --- November 15th

FINANCIAL CAMPAIGNS

Early reports indicate a healthy response to our current appeals for the 1959 Budget and for the 1958-1960 Capital Needs Drive.

These are both needed to carry on the work of the Church here at Saint Mary's --- and both campaigns can equal and/or exceed the goals we have set, if each one will truly pledge in proportion to what God has given to us.

This is the time to stand up to be counted.... Recall all God has done and is doing for you; then ask yourself: "What can and should I do for Him?"

Monday: 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Altar Guild.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) afterward: 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Vestry.

Next Sunday: Parish-wide Corporate Communion, 8 AM.

CORPORATE COMMUNION & BREAKFAST

Next Sunday (the 23d) at 8 AM. An annual affair, sponsored by The Women of Saint Mary's, this is for men and women. It has come to mean much spiritually to many.

Our speaker this year will be Miss Susan C. Lewis, R.N., who will talk on and show slides of some of our Church's work in Alaska. For some years, she served at the Hudson Stuck Memorial Hospital in Ft. Yukon. The Overseas Missions Department of the National Council appointed her to serve in the Missionary District of Alaska. She is a splendid speaker.

Reservations for breakfast (90¢) must be made by Friday the 21st, with Miss Pancoast, SA 6-3025.

HAVE YOU SEEN.....??

The new refrigerator in the Parish House kitchen? It is a 1959 Frigidaire, and a needed and useful item. A 1959 freezer is also on order, and will soon be delivered. These should greatly facilitate the preparation of the many meals sponsored by our women.

As you know, this equipment is another step in our Capital Needs Fund.

HAVE YOU.....??

Made out your pledge cards for Parish operating needs for 1959, and for the two-year Capital Funds appeal now current?

If every member of the Parish takes a real and proportionate part in these, we can easily go over the top in both. But this is not simply something for someone else to support.... Saint Mary's Church is depending upon you!

"STIR UP" SUNDAY

The Collect for this Sunday is one of the most interesting of all, with its initial petition that God may stir us up and reinvigorate our wills for His purposes.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Long before the civil authority appointed any observance, our Prayer Book set aside a day (originally the first Thursday in November), "... as a Day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God, for the Fruits of the Earth, and all other Blessings of His merciful Providence...."

We in this Parish celebrate the day through The Holy Eucharist --- Giving-of-thanks --- at 10 AM. The day loses its whole point if it is concerned only with turkeys and sports events. It should be, first and last, a day of thankful prayers to God. All else is incidental.

SUNDRY NOTES

ADVENT --- PREPARATION

The Advent Collect (p. 90) for use every day through the season, offers reminders of the essential message of the season: the Lord's first coming, and His second coming, as well. Your own preparation for Christmas will be the more helpful, if you use this prayer daily.

Also, the "long" Exhortation (p. 85) is appointed for use today, and will be read at the 8 AM Eucharist.

FLOWERS AND GREENS FOR CHRISTMAS

You are invited to share in providing the Christmas decorations. Contributions should be turned in promptly. If you wish, you may include the names of the departed whom you wish to remember; such names will be listed in the Christmas leaflet.

The absence of Altar flowers during Advent should help you to remember about this matter.

TIME FOR PENCE CANS

Bring the contents of your Pence Can, and give the money to Miss Alice Pancoast or the Rector. Please do so not later than December 14th.

TWO NOTES FROM THE VESTRY

Next Sunday, the pledge cards then received for our two financial campaigns will be presented at the Altar at the Offertory --- just as the bread and wine are offered. This is to retain the spiritual note of our offerings, without the recent "Loyalty Sunday" details.

By action at the November Vestry meeting, the next regular meeting of the Vestry (December 16th) will be an open meeting, with interested parishioners invited to sit in, and (if they wish) to be heard. Further details later.

FLOWERS & GREENS FOR CHRISTMAS

Remember to turn in your contributions for these, together with the names of those you may wish to have included in the memorial list in the Christmas leaflet.

VESTRY MEETING --- the 16th

Interested parishioners are invited to attend the open meeting of the Vestry next week, Tuesday, the 16th, 8 PM. This offers an opportunity to see your Vestry in action, and to make any comments you may desire.

PLEDGES TO BE OFFERED AT ALTAR

At the time of the Offertory today, the pledge cards thus far received, for Parish support for 1959, and for the Capital Needs Fund for 1958-1960, will be presented at the Altar (in the new Offering Bag).

Thus our indications of support will be offered to God at His Altar, just as the bread and wine are so offered. All things come of Him, and of His own shall we offer Him....

Tuesday (THE EPIPHANY): 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) afterward. Kindly notify the Rector if you wish to join us for breakfast.

THE EPIPHANY — Tuesday of this week

One of the five major feasts of the Christian Year (and the one on which those misplaced Christmas-card Wise Men come into their own) is The Epiphany, or the Manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles.

The little we know for certain about these Wise Men is to be found in the second chapter of Saint Matthew's Gospel. Read this for yourself, and see how much is fact, and what is pure conjecture and/or tradition. For example: Were they kings? Were there three of them? Do we know their names? (All three questions inconclusive.) When did they arrive? (See verse 16 for an indication.)

You will find that we have added a great deal to what the Gospel writer has left for us.....

THANKS AND GREETINGS

We at the Rectory wish to thank the many of you who sent and gave us greetings of many sorts at Christmas, and we give you our most cordial wishes for a happy, prosperous, and blessed New Year.

CONFIRMATION NEXT MONTH

Sunday morning, February 22nd, we are to have our good friend Bishop Roberts here with us to administer the Sacred Rite of Confirmation.

Instruction classes will begin next Sunday (the 11th) at 4 PM, in the Church. Please note: all persons are welcome to attend these classes, whether or not they intend to be confirmed.

The classes are built on a triple purpose — for the instruction of those who wish to be confirmed, for the information of those who wish to learn more about the Episcopal Church, and for a "refresher" for those already confirmed.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, informal Coffee Hour; 4 PM, Inquirers' Class; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper and meeting.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) following.

Wednesday: 6 PM, supper ($1.25), followed by regular meeting of The Women of Saint Mary's at 8 PM.

Thursday: 10:30 AM, Educational Day, for all Women of The Convocation of West Philadelphia (Epiphany, Sherwood); consult the Rector for details.

CLASSES FOR INQUIRERS

The first in this series will occur at 4 PM today. While intended primarily for those preparing for Confirmation on February 22nd, these sessions are also for those who wish to know more about the Episcopal Church, and also for a "refresher" for those already confirmed.

All persons are welcome to attend the classes.

EPISCOPAL STUDENT CHAPLAIN

Soon after the first of next month, The Rev. Earl H. Brill, now of Epiphany Mission, Royersford will be taking up residence at 215 South 42nd Street, and will be in charge of Episcopal students at Penn. We are sure you will make him and his family feel welcome at Saint Mary's.

Monday: 8 PM, Parish Altar Guild, regular meeting.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) afterward; 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Vestry.

INQUIRERS' CLASSES

Again the Rector reminds you that you are welcome to attend these weekly classes at 4 PM, Sundays, in the Church. Naturally, those who are looking forward to being confirmed next month will plan to be present; but others are cordially welcomed.

SPECIAL MUSICAL EVENT

On the afternoon of Passion Sunday, March 15th, our Parish Choir will present "A Lenten Concert of Choral Music". Two cantatas (one by Buxtehude and another by Bach), and several early English compositions will be sung. This should provide a most rewarding afternoon, musically speaking.

As last year, we are asking for patrons to support this musical event, as there are various expenditures which naturally go along with such a venture. Contributions of $5 or more will be greatly appreciated. The patrons' names will appear on the program.

THEOLOGICAL EDUCATION

This is the day when the Presiding Bishop asks us to give our offerings to help the seminaries train men for the Ministry. You may wish to give to the Rector's seminary (Bexley Hall), or to the Philadelphia Divinity School, or otherwise. In any event, mark your offering to indicate how you wish it used.

Your prayers --- AND your gifts --- are asked.

PRE-LENTEN SEASON (Prayer Book, p. 118)

During these two-and-a-half weeks, we find ourselves about 70 (septuagesima), 60 (Sexagesima), 50 (Quinquagesima) days before Easter. The liturgical color is violet; we have flowers on the Altars, but we do not sing Te Deum laudamus or Gloria in excelsis; certain other minor adjustments are made, as well.

This is our opportunity as mentioned in the Hymn (#235) which says, "...three Sundays will prepare for the time of fast and prayer; that, with hearts made penitent, we may keep a faithful Lent..."

SHROVE TUESDAY SUPPER SOON

February 10th --- 6 to 7:30 PM --- Parish House. Please note the time and place, and DO plan to be with us. Adults $1.25, children 75¢. Kindly make reservations with Miss Alice Pancoast (SA 6-3025).

This is in the nature of an old-fashioned "covered dish" supper, with a great variety of salads, entrees, and desserts from which to choose.

Two things: Write the date now in your engagement book. Let Miss Pancoast know you are coming.

Tuesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) following. Beginning next week, this mid-week Service will be on Wednesdays, rather than Tuesdays.

SHROVE TUESDAY SUPPER --- February 10th

Do you enjoy a good meal, with a variety of foods available (and who doesn't)?? You will be pleased with another of these famous dinners, offered by The Women of Saint Mary's.

Tuesday of next week, 6 to 7:30 PM. Adults $1.25, children 75¢.

FAMILY NIGHTS IN LENT

All sorts and kinds of people may be together and even live under the same roof, but without ties deeper than simply those of nearness, they do not comprise a family. This is true in general, and it is even more true of the Parish family, made up as it is of people of varying conditions and situations, but all of them tied together in the bonds of God's love and service.

It is to emphasize this family relationship, both home and Parish, that we have "Family Nights" on the Wednesdays of Lent. We shall eat together, worship together, and study together, between 5:55 and 8, on six successive Wednesdays, starting with February 18th.

LENTEN CONCERT --- March 15th

We should be happy to have you as a Patron for this special presentation on Passion Sunday. Those who wish to help in this manner should give their contributions, of five dollars and upward, to the Rector. (Checks should be drawn to the Church).

Cantatas by Buxtehude and Bach, and other works by Morley, Hassler, Byrd, et al. will be presented by our Organist and Choir, with additional voices.

Tuesday: 6 PM, Shrove Tuesday Supper (see notice below).

Wednesday: A S H W E D N E S D A Y

The importance of starting Lent with the very first day cannot be over-emphasized. Every member of the Parish should be in Church for at least one of these:

7:30 AM, Blessing of Ashes, and The Holy Eucharist.

9:30 AM, The Holy Eucharist.

8:00 PM, The Litany and The Penitential Office, with brief devotional Meditation.

Note: Imposition of Ashes, for those who so desire, at any of the above hours.

(As a convenience, a simple breakfast at 35¢ will be served in the Parish House immediately following the 7:30 Service. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Smith, at EV 6-3916).

SHROVE TUESDAY SUPPER

Tuesday the Women of Saint Mary's present another of their famous meals, served from 6 to 7:30 PM, in the general form of an old-fashioned "covered dish" supper. Cold and hot meats, casseroles, many kinds of salads, desserts, etc., etc.

Tickets are $1.25 (children 75¢). Bring the whole family, but call Miss Alice Pancoast (SA 6-3025) today, to let her know you are coming.

"FAMILY NIGHTS" START NEXT WEEK

Wednesday, February 18th: supper at 5:55 promptly (adults $1.10, children 55¢; call the Parish Office to make reservations), followed by Evensong and Sermonette in the Church, and finally by a study group; dismissal at 8 PM precisely.

THE LENTEN EMBER DAYS

Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday of this week are this quarter's days for special prayers for the Ministry. See your Prayer Book, pages 38, 39, and 260.

LENTEN DAILY OFFERING ENVELOPES

Throughout Lent, we are asking each person to place a coin in such an envelope at each meal (or at the least, once each day). The proceeds from this special Offering, turned in promptly after Easter, will help us to make a substantial payment on the 1959 Missions Quota of $2400.

Your Vestry and Rector solicit your support in this venture to help balance the 1959 budget. Will YOU help?

LENTEN CONCERT --- March 15th

A special musical treat again this year, on Passion Sunday: Choral music by Buxtehude, Bach, and early English composers. Be sure to save the date.

Would you care to be a Patron for this? Your contribution (of five dollars or more), turned over now to the Rector or Organist, will be a great help!

EASTER FLOWERS

This year, as usual, you have an opportunity to help provide flowers for the Altars for Easter Day. You might let the absence of such decorations during Lent serve as your reminder.

Turn in your contribution with regular offerings,
if you wish, but mark it clearly 'For Easter Flowers'.
Include also the names of any of the faithful departed
you may care to remember.

LENTEN CONCERT

Three weeks from today --- March 15th --- we shall have another special musical treat, at 4:30 PM. Works of Buxtehude, Bach, and early English composers will be presented.

TO KEEP YOU WARM.....

How much was fuel for your own home last month?

Your Parish Church had to pay in January $301.44 for fuel oil for the Church, plus $131.70 for the Parish House, plus $109.09 for the Rectory — a total of $542.23.

Did your pledge help pay this?

FAMILY NIGHT: Wednesday

Supper at 5:55 (reservations must be made today); Evensong at 6:45; study of the Apostles' Creed at 7:15; dismissal promptly at 8. Do come and join with us!

CONFIRMATION LAST SUNDAY

We welcome into full membership those confirmed last Sunday by Bishop Roberts: Helen Kopilchack, Madeline Koplichack, J. William Milne, Richard P. Smith, and Catherine Ann Spohn.

We thank The Women of Saint Mary's for the reception they presented after the Service, and for the refreshments at that time.

NEXT SUNDAY IS "MOTHERING SUNDAY"

For several reasons, the Fourth Sunday in Lent is known by this name. It is the day on which for ages Christians have been remembering their own mothers — in a far more fitting way than the crass commercialism of the recently instituted Sunday in May.

Suggestion: Plan now to remember in your prayers your own mother during this week, and particularly next Sunday. If she is still in this life, how about pleasing — and surprising — her with a gift, as a Christian, on the Christian 'Mothers' Day'?

HAVE YOU SEEN.....???

..... the new floor in the Choir Room and hall on the second floor in the Parish House? Why not take a little walk upstairs, to see it? (Now we need new steel cabinets for Choir vestments. The old ones collapsed when they were removed for the floor work!)

THIS FOURTH SUNDAY IN LENT....

.... is variously known as "Mid-Lent" (just about half way between Ash Wednesday and Easter), and as "Refreshment Sunday" (from the liturgical Gospel, the feeding of the five thousand), and as "Mothering Sunday" (from the liturgical Epistle, Galatians iv:26). In this last connection, you can see that this is the ancient and Christian (not commercial!) "Mothers' Day".

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper and meeting.

Wednesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) following; 5:55-8 PM, Family Night (Evensong at 6:45); 8 PM, regular meeting, The Women of Saint Mary's.

EASTER MEMORIAL FLOWERS

Friday of this week (March 13th) will be the final time to receive names to be listed in the Easter leaflet. Please turn in your offering and/or your list of names at once, if you wish names included for Easter Day.

LENTEN CONCERT OF CHORAL MUSIC

Next Sunday, the 15th, at 4:30 PM. Many of you enjoyed last year's program on Passion Sunday; and others will wish to be present for this season's presentation.

Featured will be Cantatas by Buxtehude and Bach, together with a capella works of Byrd, Hassler, Morley, et al.

Do come, and bring your friends.

ELECTION OF VESTRYMEN --- March 30th

PASSION SUNDAY & PASSIONTIDE (Prayer Book, P. 132)

Beginning with today, the last two weeks of Lent comprise the short season of Passiontide --- this week as well as Holy Week; in fact, note that the Prayer Book provides for the use of the name "Passiontide", but makes no mention of the term "Holy Week".

In these two weeks, the color for the veiling on the Crosses is a deep Passiontide red; certain minor changes are made in the regular Services of the Church, and our thoughts are particularly directed toward the sober and intensely important events of the last days of the life of our Saviour. This is the period of intensive preparation for the wonders of Good Friday and of Easter Day.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 4:30 PM, special musical event (see below); 5:30 PM, Coffee Hour (note change in hour).
Monday: 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Altar Guild.
Tuesday: 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Vestry.
Wednesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) following; 5:55-8 PM, Family Night (for which supper reservations must be made today: see Miss Pancoast).

LENTEN CONCERT OF CHORAL MUSIC

This afternoon at 4:30, our Parish Choir will present two Cantatas (by Buxtehude and Bach), and a group of a capella numbers (Byrd, Morley, Hassler, et al.) --- all from approximately the same period.

This program is offered for your devotion and your musical enjoyment. Do bring your friends with you.

EASTER EVEN FOOD SALE --- advance notice

Saturday, March 28th, starting at 2 PM, in the Parish House, The Women of Saint Mary's again present this traditional sale. Further details next week, but please jot down now the time and place.

ELECTION OF VESTRYMEN: Easter Monday

Please consult the official notice for details. See the bulletin board in the Church Vestibule (tower entrance):

At their own request, the members of this organization are having a Corporate Communion and breakfast today at 8 AM. The breakfast is 35¢, and reservations should be made with Mrs. Jenkins, GR 6-6948.

PROJECT: LIGHTED SIGN-BOARD

Because of the popularity of covered dish suppers, and in answer to many requests of "please, let's have another one", The Women of Saint Mary's are planning a benefit dinner for Thursday, April 23d, beginning at 6 PM, with tickets at $1.50.

We are desperately in need of a large, lighted, changeable letter sign-board for the front yard of the Church, to announce and advertize the many activities that take place. This is a MUST --- for the former board died of decrepitude.

The women have decided to take the leadership in procuring this equipment for the Parish. A good sign-board will cost about $400. Proceeds from the dinner will go toward this project.

We greatly appreciate the thoughtfulness of this hard-working group of women. Please help your Parish by supporting this activity.

SELF-DENIAL ENVELOPES

Please turn these in as promptly as possible, so that we may report to you how much the envelopes will help us to pay on the 1959 Missions Quota.

175th ANNIVERSARY OF THE DIOCESE

This is an important year for the Diocese, and you will be hearing more and more about a great celebration to come just after the first of May.

SELF-DENIAL OFFERINGS

These are coming in, and we are anxious to be able to report to you the total amount received. Have you brought yours as yet?

BENEFIT SUPPER SOON

On Thursday, April 23d, The Women of Saint Mary's present another "covered dish supper". Tickets are now available, at $1.50 each.

Profits from the dinner will help to buy a new lighted sign-board for the front of the Church.

AN AFTERNOON MUSICALE

Sunday, May 10th, at 4:30 PM, Mrs. William X Smith will present several members of our Choir in a recital of secular music. This afternoon musicale has been arranged as a benefit for the Choir, whose members are badly in need of new cottas.

The program is to be given in the living room of the Rectory; consequently, only 50 tickets will be sold, at $1.50 each. Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Smith, or from Mrs. Zimmerly (the Parish Secretary). No tickets will be sold at the door.

KALENDAR FOR THE WEEK

Today: 8 & 11 AM, regular Services; 11 AM, Church School; 12:30 PM, Coffee Hour; 6 PM, Canterbury Club supper and meeting (Evening Prayer at 5:30).
Monday: 8 PM, regular meeting, Parish Altar Guild.
Wednesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of the Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) following.
Thursday: 6 PM, Covered Dish Supper. (Reservations at $1.50 should be made today: see Miss Pancoast.)

ALTAR GUILD NOTE

We sing in the Hymn "We love thine Altar, Lord" --- but who takes care of it? Dusting, cleaning brasses and silver, arranging flowers, seeing to it that Linens and Vestments are laundered and pressed: these are all things that do not just happen; someone has to do them! And who do you suppose does them? The Altar Guild.....

More dedicated workers are needed. All that is involved is attendance at a meeting each month, plus an hour or so about once each month.

Our Parish Altar Guild invites you to join in making ready the Altars at Saint Mary's. They need your help. Come to the meeting on Monday, and/or consult with Mrs. E. L. Miller, President of the group.

CHOIR BENEFIT

The musicale on Sunday, May 10th (4:30 P.M.) will feature three members of our Parish Choir: Miss Rita Kolacz, soprano; Mr. Horace Williams, baritone; and Miss Karlin Wylie, flutist. The Choir will conclude the program with a group of secular numbers.

Tickets, at $1.50, may be purchased from Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Zimmerly.

Proceeds from the affair will go toward the purchase of new Choir cottas.

SELF-DENIAL OFFERINGS

To date the amount received is $178. Have you turned yours in?

Other Committees and Chairman and members thereof are posted on the Bulletin Board in the Parish House.

Please consult these persons on matters relating to their several responsibilities.

The Great Diocese of Pennsylvania

The early settlers in Pennsylvania were Dutch, Swedes, English and Welsh. The Swedes established Gloria Dei in 1642. 200 years later it became part of the Episcopal Church.

Old Christ Church was established in 1695. By 1712, there were 10 Episcopal Churches in this area, all under the direction of the Church of England. Missionaries sent out by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, established in 1701, ministered to many of these early Churches.

After the Revolutionary War, in 1784 the Rev. Dr. William White, rector of Christ Church, together with representatives of the other Churches in Pennsylvania organized the Diocese. Dr. White was consecrated Bishop in 1787 in England. Bishop White is given credit for the establishment of many Diocesan and secular organizations.

In 1836, he was succeeded by Bishop Onderdonk. Then came Bishop Potter, the great organizer, 1845-65. He started some fifty Churches and various institutions such as the Episcopal Hospital and the Divinity School.

Bishop Stevens (1865-1887) continued the development of the Diocese and was responsible for the organization of sixty-three Churches. During this period, the Diocese was divided and the present area established. The Churches in the rest of the state eventually becoming four other Dioceses. There followed in succession, Bishop Whitaker (1887-1911), Bishop Mackay-Smith (1911), Bishop Rhineland (1911-1923), Bishop Garland (1924-1931) and Bishop Taitt (1931-1943).

Today under Bishop Hart, who has served since 1943, we have 204 Churches, 86,202 Communicants, 27,226 Sunday School scholars and 18 institutions. The Bishop and the Suffragan, together with the Deans of the Convocations have extended the missionary work of the Diocese into many newly developed areas.

The Diocese of Pennsylvania is the second largest Diocese in the American Church.

There will be vocal and instrumental solos, as well as choruses --- all by members of our own Choir.

Tickets at $1.50 may be had from Mrs. Smith or Mrs. Zimmerly.

ANNIVERSARY PRAYER (authorized by the Bishop)

Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, Who art the giver of every good and perfect gift: we thank Thee for the loyalty and devotion of the Bishops, Clergy, and Laity who have labored during the One Hundred Seventy-Five years of our Diocese. Make us worthy of our rich heritage and glad to extend Thy work, so that all the people of this area may learn to know Thy love, and to share with us the joy that comes through our Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Wednesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) afterward; 6:30 PM, The Women of Saint Mary's, supper, with regular meeting following at 8 PM.

Next Sunday: Pentecost, or Whitsunday.

MUSICALE TODAY AT 4:30

Special musical presentation, to benefit the Choir fund, and to help provide new cottas for the Choir.

Full notice and program are posted on the bulletin boards.

"EXPECTATION SUNDAY"

As you doubtless know, this Sunday after Ascension Day is affectionately known by the term "expectation", because while we are in the Octave of the Ascension, we find ourselves looking forward to the great importance of Whitsunday (next week). In the Collect for this day, we ask God to "... leave us not comfortless..." --- and this is echoed in the words of today's Offertory Anthem taken from next Sunday's Gospel: "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you!"

UNITED THANK OFFERING

Just a reminder: Please turn in your offerings, so they may be presented at the great Service on the 19th.

ONE HUNDRED SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS

Many of you took part in the great Celebration of this Anniversary of the Diocese. Many more of you doubtless kept the Anniversary in your prayers.

May God bless us all as we set out toward the Two Hundredth Anniversary....

Today --- A BIRTHDAY

Pentecost, or Whitsunday, marks the actual birthday of the Church; and it is fitting that we should take special notice of the occasion.

Truly, it is the energizing by the Holy Ghost that makes the very existence of the Church possible --- and on this day we recall with deep gratitude the coming of that Holy Ghost.

REBUILDING THE ORGAN

The contract has now been signed for this work, to be done during July and August, and to be completed by the first of September.

This work is made possible by your response to the appeal for support of our Parish's Capital Needs Fund.

Wednesday: 7:30 AM, Celebration of The Holy Eucharist, with breakfast (35¢) following.

Thursday: 8 PM, Parish Choir rehearsal.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

Saturday, June 6th, starting at 6 PM. This is an event to which we look forward each year. Again The Women of Saint Mary's will offer chicken salad, etc., with ice cream and cake and strawberries for dessert.

Reservations (adults $1.50, children 75¢) are now being taken by Miss Pancoast, SA 6-3025. Only those with reservations can be served on that day. Make your reservations now!

TRINITY SUNDAY

Today we enter the half-year dedicated to the praise of the glorious and undivided Trinity, lasting from now until the last Sunday in November.

One mark of this day is that the Prayer Book provides that on Trinity Sunday the "long" Exhortation (page 85) shall be used. It will be so used at the 8 AM Service today.

FOR THE SUMMER

Remember that the Church (and its running expenses) continues all during the coming "vacation weeks", and that our regular Sunday Service schedule is maintained without a break, throughout the year.

The Vestry reminds you that you should keep your pledge paid up --- even in hot weather! If you are to be away for a while, why not pay your pledge in advance?

HISTORICAL NOTE

The last hymn this morning was composed by Canon Christopher Wordsworth, a nephew of the great poet, William Wordsworth. There is an interesting association between the University and the Wordsworth family. Dr. Henry Reed, Professor of Rhetoric and English Literature (1834-54) and Vice-Provost (1846-54), was William Wordsworth's American editor. He corresponded with the poet somewhat regularly for 13 years to 1849. At Dr. Reed's request, Wordsworth sat for the famous portrait by the American artist, Henry Inman, now owned by the University. On a visit to England in 1854 Professor Reed visited Canon Wordsworth in London.

ABOUT THE COVER:

The cover of this bulletin utilizes one of the oldest and most universal symbols of Christendom, the Greek letters Chi (X) and Rho (P). In Greek, the original language of the scriptures, these were the first two letters of Christ's name. This has been recognized by Christians since antiquity as an expression of our allegiance to our Lord, the Christ.

ABOUT THE COVER:

Christ promised His disciples He would send the Holy Spirit to lead them into all truth, the greatest of which is the truth that is Christ Himself. The symbols of the dove and flames come to us from the pages of Scripture reminding us that the promise was made to us also. To the believing heart yet today comes the Spirit witnessing to the Love that gave His Only Begotten Son that we should not perish but have everlasting life.

The fall in-gathering of the United Thank Offering is under way. Blue boxes can be found on the tract table at the tower entrance. Blue envelopes are attached to this leaflet. Either may be turned in with the regular offering at all services on 19 and 26 November.

NOTE ON THE MUSIC

The last hymn today was composed by James Russell Lowell, the Boston essayist and poet, in 1845 as the issue of servitude and freedom was being resolved in this country. It now has import to the world one hundred and sixteen years later.

WORD

ABOUT THE COVER:

The cover of this bulletin utilizes one of the oldest and most universal symbols of Christendom, the Greek letters Chi (X) and Rho (P). In Greek, the original language of the scriptures, these were the first two letters of Christ's name. This has been recognized by Christians since antiquity as an expression of our allegiance to our Lord, the Christ.

ABOUT THE COVER:

With the exception of the cross, the fish is credited with being the oldest symbol in Christendom. The Greek word for fish is IXOUS (pronounced ikthus). The early Christians turned it into an acrostic that worked out as follows:

I — IHSUS	(Pronounced Yasoos)	Jesus
X — XPISTOS	(" Kristos)	Christ
O — OEOS	(" Thee-os)	God('s)
U — UIOS	(" Wee-os)	Son
S — SOTR	(" So-tare)	Savior

This was used as a code to identify Christians during the time of the Roman persecutions. However, instead of saying the Greek word, they usually drew a simple fish. Today it reminds us always of the words of Christ, "Blessed are they who are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven."

“...and He shall come again...”

Ever since the Ascension of our Lord into heaven the Christian community has been expecting Jesus Christ to return to claim and fulfill His Kingdom on earth.

This expectation has not been confined to pious escapists and mystics. It is the focus of Christian hope.

The New Testament clearly points to our Lord's promised second coming; all the catholic creeds spell it out as an article of the Faith; and each time we say the “Our Father”, we pray for the Kingdom our Lord will bring.

Despite all this, many sophisticated and intelligent churchmen betray indifference, if not embarrassment, when faced with the claim that our Lord shall come again. Most of us find ourselves on shaky ground when we have to account for those Christians who claim they know the exact time of His coming and, donning white robes, desert homes and land to climb the hills and wait. We can show how they have misused the Scriptures, but we cannot disclaim the promise of the Lord's coming to which they pay serious attention.

For many Christians in this age of the hydrogen bomb and fall-out shelters, the second coming has become confused with man-made destruction. Our Lord's great promise has been exchanged for terror and despair. Because of some of the colorful imagery used in the Bible to describe natural and civil calamities as signs of our Lord's coming again, we tend to think that the Last Great Day can be indefinitely postponed if only we are careful not to make some mistake.

Most deluded of all are those of us who seem not to want Jesus Christ to come at all, and certainly not in our lifetime. This is a far and desperate departure from the hope with which the New Testament concludes: “Even so, come, Lord Jesus”!

Lest we lose our faith in our Lord's promise and in our capacity to communicate the substance of our hope to others, we had better take time to refresh ourselves with the truth, Our Lord's coming again will neither be hastened nor postponed by anything we do. Not even the angelic hosts know the time of God's choosing for this wonderful event. We know nothing more of the time or manner of His coming than did those who watched and waited for His holy birth.

We only know that we shall behold His glory and the fulfillment of His Kingdom. Whether in catastrophic fire or in peaceful, holy light, we shall see God.

Anglican Fundamentalism

The Episcopal Church is fundamentalist in that its doctrine and worship rest squarely upon Biblical foundations. We Anglicans believe that all things necessary to salvation are to be found in the Bible, and that nothing may be taught in the Anglican communion as being necessary to salvation unless it is contained in the Holy Scriptures. It is because the Apostles' and Nicene creeds are concise statements of the truths as set forth in the Bible that these creeds are so important in the Churches of the Anglican tradition.

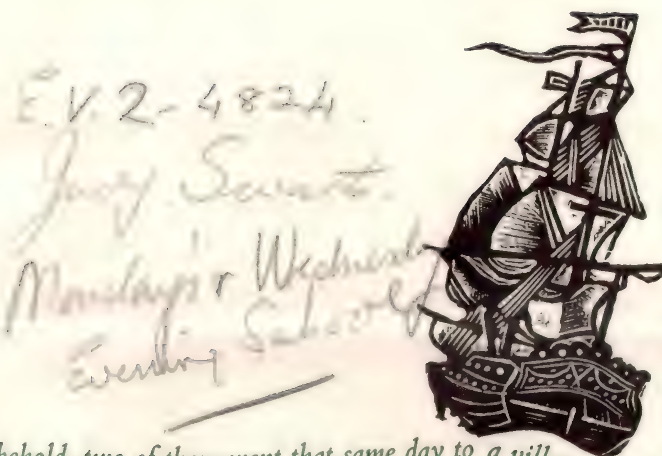

The Bible is an inspired human record of God's revelation of Himself to men. Because it is inspired and tells of God's actions, we may trust that the Bible's meaning is always truthful. We understand, therefore, that the truths of salvation expressed in the Bible are forever valid and vital. "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever." These eternal truths are fundamental to our faith.

Because this Biblical truth, however, has been recorded by men, it is subject to the limitations of both history and the human mind. That we may no longer consider the cultural or cosmological viewpoints expressed in the Bible as being exact in no way vitiates or "waters down" their essential meaning. Much of the Bible, for example, is written as poetry. Poetry often expresses truth which must be sought beyond the words as they are written.

We must never confuse literalism with truth. Literalism is an over-simplification of the Message of the Bible. Literalism gives rise to heresy and pride. We are not required to accept as factual the literal interpretation of the world as depicted in the Bible. To do so is to put an uncertain reliance upon mere words rather than to trust in the living power of God as revealed by these words.

The Bible is one of God's greatest gifts to men. It sets forth the vital and essential truths about God and men. These truths are the realities which are fundamental to the Church. They are overlooked or compromised only at the peril of our souls.

COVER: The ship, common symbol of the Church, is seen supported by the words of the Holy Scriptures.

"And behold, two of them went that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jerusalem about threescore furlongs. And they talked together of all these things which had happened. And as they passed, that while they communed together, and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them. But their eyes were holden, that they should not know him.

"And beginning at Moses, and all the Prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures, concerning himself." (Luke xxiv, 13-16 and 27)

And they drew nigh unto the village, whither they went, and he made as though he would have departed. But they constrained him, saying, Abide with us, for it is towards evening, and the day is now past: And he went in, to tarry with them. And it came to pass, as he sat at meat with them, he took bread, and read, and blessed it, and brake, and gave to them. And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vanished out of their sight. And they said one unto another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the Scriptures?" (Luke xxiv, 28-32)

"And in the evening he cometh with the twelve. And as they sat, and did eat, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, one of you which eateth with me, shall betray me. And they began to be sorrowful, and to say unto him, one by one, Is it I? And another said, Is it I? And he answered and said unto them, It is one of the twelve, that dippeth with me in the dish.

"And as they did eat, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, This is my body. And he took the cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them: and they all drank of it. And he said unto them, This is my blood of the new Testament, which is shed for many." (Mark xiv, 17-20 and 22-4)

Then he called his twelve disciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure diseases. And he sent them to preach the Kingdom of God, and to heal the sick. And he said unto them, Take nothing for your journey, neither staves, nor scrip, neither bread, neither money: neither have two coats apiece. And whatsoever house ye enter into, there abide, and thence depart. And whosoever will not receive you, when ye go out of that city, shake off the very dust from your feet for a testimony against them. And they departed, and went through the towns, preaching the Gospel, and healing every where." (Luke ix, 1-6)

"A Very Present Help"

It is often said that we are an illiterate generation of Christians. Certainly the day is long past when a knowledge of the Bible is part and parcel of every man's intellectual heritage.

Our ancestors read the Bible because they believed it to be the word of God. They read it for inspiration, for revelation, for consolation. Rarely did they read it as literature. It was left to modern man to read the Bible solely as literature, or as a means to a better understanding of his cultural heritage.

It is true that much of the art and literature of the Western world is almost meaningless without a knowledge of the Bible, and there are valid arguments for reading the Bible if only to gain a better understanding of our culture. But whatever our initial reasons for reading it may be, the significance of the Bible for us will depend upon whom we identify in it as the chief actor.

The Bible is a book which emerged from and belongs to a community of faith, a community which sees in that Book a record of God's revelation of Himself to man. This revelation is recorded sometimes as drama, sometimes as a story and sometimes as poetry.

In this record, whom do we see as the chief actor? Man or God? Some see man as the chief actor in all events, and for them the Bible is merely a record of man's reaction to his environment, which, of course, includes the divine. The traditional Christian faith, however, sees in the Bible's record of God's action in history, that God is the chief actor, not man. A full understanding of the Christian faith requires the tracing of God's relation to man from its beginnings in the Garden of Eden to its close in a vision of the heavenly garden, the new Jerusalem, from Genesis to Revelation.

We may analyze the Bible, we may criticize the Bible, we may read the Bible as "living literature." But only when we read the Bible as the divinely inspired record of God's dealing with men, will the Bible come alive for us and be "a very present help in time of trouble."

Do We Need God?

Do we need God or do we merely need a god? Man instinctively seeks some explanation for his own existence and for his world. The explanation he accepts will determine his god and the guide for his behaviour.

There are those who find a god in the State. For them the welfare of mankind is the guide for their behaviour, the reason for their being. Classical Christianity—which believes in God revealed in Jesus Christ—they regard as merely an interesting philosophical concept or as an outmoded relic of antiquity. In either case, they renounce it for their humanism.

The self-sufficient man who denies that he needs God revealed in Jesus Christ, however, cannot find in humanism satisfying answers to those questions which men have asked since the dawn of time: questions of birth, death, sorrow, joy, good, evil. For these questions humanism has no answer. Its goal is “the greatest good for the greatest number.” Its adherents forget that it was to achieve this goal that millions of souls were sacrificed in recent history in Germany and Italy, and, today, are being sacrificed in Russia.

Do we need God? We need God if we want to pray; if we really want to live in peace with our fellowmen; if we want to be able to look at the face of death without flinching.

We need God if we want to know whence we came and where we are going. We need God if we want to be saved from the results of our silly and futile attempts to deny or escape Him.

Most of all, we need God because He made us His creatures, dependent upon Him. We ignore or distort this fact of our dependence at our peril.

CANDIDATES FOR HOLY BAPTISM

Nicole Estelle Evans
Daniel Hatch Galbraith
William Jones Galbraith, III

Do We Need the Church?

Do we need the Church? Our answer depends on what we believe the Church to be. If we believe the Church is only a useful sociological institution which fills a need for fellowship, for instruction in ethics, and for social welfare, we really do not need the Church very much. Service clubs, the government, and secular social agencies can do and often are doing a more effective job than can the Church in these areas.

The Book of Common Prayer, however, has a very different concept of the Church. It says that the Church is "the blessed company of all faithful people." The Church is the Body of Christ, the extension of the Incarnation, that vehicle, divinely founded, which continues to do what the Incarnate Son of God did on earth. All this it does in His name.

In His Name, the Church preaches, teaches, heals, forgives. It is through the Church that we have the certainty that God still deals with men. Through the Church men and women find God's grace mediated to them in the sacraments. Through and in the Church the great events of life are given God's strength and blessing: birth, growing-up, marriage. In the faith taught by the Church the bitterness and sting of death are assuaged.

Known in these terms the Church is not an institution but an organism, alive and vibrant with the life of God the Holy Spirit.

Do we need the Church? Indeed we do, infinitely more than the Church needs us. We need God, we need His power at work in us, bringing salvation, the hope of freedom from sin and evil, and the opportunity to do His work with ever-increasing effectiveness.

We need the Church because it is through the Church that all this comes to us. The Church is the most precious heritage left to us by the Son of God Himself.

Transfiguration

St. Bede, in his Ecclesiastical History, tells the delightful story of a poor old country fellow and the miracle that made him a poet. Caedmon was the fellow's name, and he worked in the stable of a monastery in seventh century England.

One night, when Caedmon's turn had come to sing at a feast with his friends, he fled in confusion and embarrassment to the stable, where he fell asleep. There a visitor from God appeared to him and commanded him to sing. Caedmon, after objecting that he couldn't, finally asked what he was to sing.

"Sing the beginning of created things," replied the visitor. And from that moment, Bede tells us, Caedmon, the stable-hand, began to compose "the sweetest, gentlest songs on his religion."

This story is a scene, as Bede would visualize it, from the ages-long drama of our redemption. It tells of the wondrous power of God to transfigure human life. Caedmon's forebears were the melancholy, brutal, pagan Britons. But in Caedmon, the transforming life of Christ bears fruit in Christian songs of gladness. Here, as in the lives of all the saints, the old and the ordinary and the trivial is made new and glorious and great.

And God's transfiguring work goes quietly on today. Wherever men and women are in Christ and He in them, the common things of this world are aglow with an un-common light. In Christ, the natural friendships of man are made new in Christian love. In Him, the ties of man and woman are made the vehicles of God's out-reaching love. In Him, our work for our daily bread gains new dignity and becomes one with the work of the Carpenter of Nazareth.

On the Mount of Transfiguration, Peter, James, and John saw their Lord in an awesome glory. Through that Lord, all that is human can be transfigured, made new. Through Him all that is common can shine with the un-common radiance of His transforming love.

WHY EVIL?

The most baffling mystery confronting the average Christian is the problem of evil. If God is good and all-powerful, we ask, why, then, is there evil in the world?

For the Christian, the problem of evil arises from the collision of belief and experience. The Christian believes that God is both good and supremely powerful, yet every day of his life he is confronted by some evidence of the reality of evil.

In every age men have attempted to solve this mystery of evil. Sometimes their solution has been to think that God's power is limited. They have seen the world as a gigantic stage on which is played out a death-struggle between the two opposing forces of good and evil, with no clue offered in the drama, before the last act, as to the victor.

Those who would solve the problem this way, see evil only as a fact of nature. Rather than passionately opposing it, they resign themselves to its existence.

Others say that evil is not a reality at all but merely a figment of our imagination or even an evidence of "wrong-thinking." For them, evil exists only in the mind of man, and "there is nothing good or bad, but thinking makes it so."

For the Christian, however, the Cross of Jesus Christ takes the problem of evil down from the ivory tower of speculation and plants it squarely in life. Evil is real. The Christian suffers under it, even as his Lord suffered under it.

The final weapon of evil, death itself, was used against Christ, and He died. So do we succumb to death. But Christ by gaining the final victory over death in eternal fellowship with the Father, released us from the evil in the world.

His promise to all of us who are buried with Him in the dying of our baptism is that we shall live with Him as partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light, where sin and evil have ceased to be.

Please introduce yourself, and if you can, join us for the Coffee Hour. Visitors from other parishes who would like to be informed via a monthly newsletter of activities at St. Mary's are invited to leave their names and addresses on the tract table as indicated.

FATE or Freedom?

An automobile accident snuffs out the lives of young parents, leaving a family of five small children. An old and hopelessly sick man survives a plane crash in which all his family are killed. A salesman misses an appointment in a building in which all the occupants are killed by an explosion. What wonder of fate, we ask, has wrought these unreasonable events?

Everyday life is filled with inexplicable happenings which many of us ascribe to a fate which is both blind and mysterious. Even some who call themselves Christian resign themselves to "whatever is to be is to be." As slaves to fate they seem to accept their irrational destiny but live in abject fear of forces of which they claim neither knowledge nor control.

Certainly no Christian will deny that God's purpose may be unknown to the finite mind of man. But no Christian can believe that God, who released us from the powers of darkness through Jesus Christ, is arbitrary or capricious in dealing with those whom He created and sent His Blessed Son to save. We may not understand God's purpose, but we believe that He loves us and wills good for us.

Our world is full of tragedy and pain and sorrow which we can neither understand nor explain.

Our world is full of mysteries. Evil is a mystery but so is love, especially God's love for us. The Christian clings to this love when faced with dark and forbidding mysteries which he cannot comprehend.

Our lives and our destinies are senseless riddles unless we find their meaning in God's will for us and for His whole creation. When we commit ourselves in trusting faith to the One who made us, redeems us and makes us whole forever, we are free to live and die without fear. Trust in God discounts the riddles of fate and frees us to behold with joy the mysteries of life in God both here and hereafter.

The Christian Behind the Wheel

When is a man most dangerous? It's when he's behind the wheel of an automobile. It is the machine age, and not the atomic age, which has given man his most lethal instrument, the automobile. Atomic and hydrogen bombs rain death and destruction when men provoke war. Automobiles bring pain, destruction and death in the course of every ordinary day.

It is not that the automobile is an infernal machine. It is a wonderful machine, certainly within the providence of God, and it has been one of our greatest boons. But it is a machine, and like all devices of human making, the good or evil it can perform depends upon the disposition of the person who uses it. In most traffic accidents, the guilty party is man, not machine; mind and not motor; reflex and not roadway. It was human error which killed or maimed more than 40,000 men, women and children in only one of America's largest cities in 1960.

When Christians face up to the statistics of highway safety, it should give sufficient cause for a re-reading of the Sixth Commandment. It is not only the malice aforethought, anger or passion that give rise to murder; nor are guns, knives or poisons the only instruments. Sane, peace-loving, kindly Christians who want to save a few seconds, who get wrapped up in conversation, or who just don't think, turn out to be man-killers in the twinkling of an eye. When the horrible tragedy has happened, they are sorry beyond words, but they have killed and sinned against God and their neighbor.

As Christians, we know that we live in a sacramental universe. God's whole creation is a visible and tangible sign of His goodness toward us. His benefits are available to us whenever we use any of His gifts in the way He intends. Even the automobile can be redeemed from tragedy to joy if we use it rightly. If we remember each time we sit behind the wheel that we hold in our hands a machine which God has given us for good, we will not abuse it. If we remember that the other motorists and pedestrians, no matter how foolishly they drive or walk, are God's creatures, too, our love-our-neighbor policy will include our driving.

Many Churchmen display St. Christopher medals in their automobiles to indicate their reliance upon his patronage for their safety on the road. This is a good custom, and the practice can serve a double purpose. When we look at such a medal, we are reminded of God's constant care. It can remind us, too, to pray that we may drive in such a way as always to carry Christ, and not death, to all we pass along our way.

Please remember that the eleven o'clock service next Sunday will begin with Morning Prayer through the First Lesson and Canticle and will proceed immediately with the Holy Eucharist.

A TIME OF SEARCHING

In 1960 there were approximately six and a half million students in our colleges and universities. By 1970 this number will be almost doubled. The missionary task the Church faces on college campuses is, and will be, enormous.

The college campus is one of the most important missionary fields in our world.

The college student is at a unique point in his life. He is away from home, often for the first time, confronted with a multitude of new ideas and standards. His search for meaning in life often comes to a crisis during these years. He is ripe for conversion—to the Christian faith or to something else.

Too often the Christian statement of the purpose of life is neither adequately presented nor sympathetically heard on the college campus. The college and its faculty are often indifferent, or even actively hostile, to the implications of the Gospel. In such surroundings, many students find that their conception of the Christian faith has little chance of coping with the onslaught of new ideas which now confronts them.

The task of the Church today is to develop the kind of missionary strategy which can meet this situation. Such a strategy will require more than the presence of a chaplain in residence on the campus.

To carry out this missionary task we must think in terms of a witnessing community. The chaplain himself may well be the center of this community, but of equal importance are those students and faculty who recognize the necessity for the Christian Gospel to permeate every area of the academic life.

And, standing behind the campus community there must be a host of others who realize that they, too, have a part in this mission: the Christian alumni, the families of the students and the congregations from which the students come.

The Service begins at 10:30 a.m., in the Parish House, with the LITURGY of the PALMS. (This is found in a special booklet which will be distributed in the Parish House.)

After the Distribution of the Palms the entire assemblage will walk in procession, behind the Crucifer, through the Cloister, to the west doors of the church. Hymn 62 is sung during Procession. The hymn will be repeated as many times as is necessary to conclude the Procession.

As we proceed up the center aisle, toward the High Altar, parishioners are asked to move into the pews of their choice.

Any persons who miss the Procession may receive palms at the end of the Service.

WELCOME CANON BURROWS

The Rev. Canon Henry C. Burrows of Holy Trinity Cathedral, Port-au-Prince, Haiti, is our Guest Preacher this morning.

Canon Burrows is a graduate of Oberlin College and the Harvard Divinity School, was a Fulbright Scholar and English Instructor at Athens College, Athens, Greece. He has also been an instructor at St. Thomas' Choir School in New York, and studied at General Theological Seminary before his ordination to the priesthood in 1959.

There will be an opportunity to meet and talk with Canon Burrows at the Coffee Hour, and to hear more about the Church's work in Haiti.

The Holy Spirit in the World

Who dares claim that God works only through the Church?

In the strange and exciting first experience of the presence and powers of God in the Church's sacramental fellowship, we feel Him so personally and know His love so warmly that we can hardly conceive that any encounter like it is possible in any other way.

And this, of course, is true. Here, among us, though we deserve it or not, God's Holy Spirit is wonderfully at work as He is nowhere else in human experience. The Good News which we, as Christians, are in business to proclaim to all mankind, has much to do with the "amazing grace," the healing availability of God's personal touch in the worship and fellowship of the Church.

But as our life in the Spirit matures, it is part of our growing in wisdom to see more and more how the hand of God is over all His works. More evident here, less there, the uplifting, correcting, always loving presence and power of Almighty God is governing His creatures. One of the chief gifts of His Spirit to the Church, in fact, is the ability to see His sovereign will behind all that goes on in the world.

The prophetic gift always discerns the signs of the times—how in all things and among all peoples God is patiently, unconquerably at work. It is the task of Christians to see more deeply, to be more accurately informed and widely read, because all that happens to both individuals and society is raw material for understanding God's works and ways.

Although the Bible generally uses the exact title "Holy Spirit" to indicate God's special work in and through the Old Covenant, and Jesus and the Christian Church, there can be no question that the Spirit—in the sense of God's living action in the world—is known to be mightily at work everywhere.

And since this is so, every Christian must be humbly alert to God as His Spirit moves among all people, through all events and in all things.

"The Spirit of the Lord filleth the world; O come, let us adore him. Alleluia."

WHITSUNDAY

No one who reads the New Testament can fail to be impressed by the account given there of the Apostles' experience of the coming of the Holy Ghost, the experience that the Church commemorates liturgically on Whitsunday.

We do not know the exact nature of this experience. Certainly it was traumatic to those who were present, so much so that they could only describe it as "a rushing mighty wind" and as "cloven tongues like as of fire."

These poetic terms, however, should not blind us to the fact that what they describe was an historic event in the life of the Church. It actually did take place.

Our Lord had promised the Apostles that such an event would take place, that another "Comforter" or "strengtheners" would be given them when He was no longer physically present with them. All of this was to be part of God's plan, part of God's purpose.

Just as it is always more difficult to record an experience than it is to record an event, so is it sometimes hard for us to accept as historical fact those things which cannot be described in concrete terms.

The Apostles clearly recognized their experience of the Holy Ghost that first Whitsunday as the fulfillment of their Lord's promise to them. They were "all with one accord in one place," almost as if by some previously arranged plan. Moreover, they perceived in this coming of the Holy Ghost the culmination of the new Covenant of God's grace which superseded the old Covenant that had been given to Moses on Mt. Sinai, a covenant which had also been given amidst wind and fire.

With Christmas and Easter, the Church observes Whitsunday as one of her greatest feasts. Whitsunday is not "the birthday of the Church" as is erroneously assumed. The Christian Church was born out of the relationship between Jesus and His Apostles, the relationship which is the reconstitution of the covenant previously existing between God and His chosen people, the Jews.

Whitsunday marks the coming with power of God the Holy Spirit, enabling the Apostles in the Church to go into all the world and preach the Gospel.

One God in Three Persons, Blessed Trinity

The Doctrine of the Trinity (Tri-unity) is an attempt to summarize and explain actual religious experience. It is not a theological invention but a practical necessity to the Church which has learned to know God in three ways.

The statement of the doctrine is "There is but one living and true God . . . and in unity of this Godhead there be three persons, of one substance, power and eternity; the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost." (first Article of Religion, back of Prayer Book)

Christians, like their Jewish ancestors, know there is one God, the source and sustainer of all creation. He is the Father. But we have also seen the same God revealed in Jesus the Christ. He is the Son.

We have further experienced the power of the same God within the fellowship of the Church. He is the Holy Spirit. As we know God thus in three ways, so also we pray to the one God by addressing Father, Son or Holy Spirit.

Those who find analogies helpful to the understanding of eternal truth might think of an ice covered lake in winter. Under the ice is water. On top of it is snow. All three, water, ice and snow, are the same substance, yet each has its own distinct being.

The nature of God is beyond human comprehension, but we can know Him to the extent that He has revealed Himself as "God the Father, Who hath made me and all the world; God The Son, Who hath redeemed me, and all mankind; God the Holy Ghost, Who sanctifieth me, and all the people of God." (Catechism)

The Doctrine of the Trinity helps us clearly understand that God, the Creator, does not leave us to our own inadequate resources, but it is He who became man to bring His power into this world of evil and it is He whose presence is ever immediately available to His family, the Church.

COVER: "Symbols of the Trinity." The equilateral triangle is symbolic of the three persons in the Godhead, the circle of the unity. The three symbols in the intertwining circles represent God the Father (triangle and eye), God the Son (fish), and God the Holy Ghost (dove).

ANNIVERSARY OF THE PRAYERBOOK

June 9, 1549 (Whitsunday that year) marks the first use of the Book of Common Prayer in England, the ancestor and inspiration of all the Prayerbooks of the Anglican Communion which are the focus of the Church's Faith and Practise. The following Collect is one proposed by the Liturgical Commission of our General Convention to mark the event, and which will be used after the Trinity Sunday Collect today:

Almighty and everliving God, who didst guide thy servant Thomas Crammer, with others, to render the worship of Thy Church in a language understood of the people, make us ever thankful for this our heritage, and help us to pray in the Spirit and with the understanding, also, that we may worthily magnify Thy Holy Name; through Jesus Christ our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with Thee and the same Holy Spirit ever, one God, world without end. Amen.

Commencement for What?

Each year in late Spring, the campuses and school yards of the land bustle with quaint activities. Processions of curiously garbed people assemble for oratory, song and sage advice, disperse to festive parties and, finally, break up with moving farewells.

These annual events are traditionally called "commencement," but everything about them suggests an ending rather than a beginning. For many students and graduates the incongruity is sharp. They might well ask, "Commencement for what?"

The beginnings and becomings in life are countless and many of them occur without our notice. Lest life become a formless, aimless process, we must take notice and account of at least a few of the major steps along the way. The transition from the discipline of learning to the demands of the world's work is certainly a time to ask, "Where and how are we going?"

The Christian life begins in us when we are baptized into the victorious life of Jesus Christ, and all that we do thereafter is marked with the baptismal sign of the Church. Every new commencement is related to the initial Christian commencement of our life in Christ.

The academic commencement, then, needs to be seen in the light of obedience and dedication. The new disciplines we take on in the work of the world are subject to the total obedience of our lives to our Lord and Saviour. He calls us to serve Him in His world, and as we begin our careers we must keep His call before us. The talents and gifts we hope to cultivate are not our inventions but His benefactions. Our commencement becomes an act of thankful offering of ourselves and our opportunities to our Lord's purposes.

The world into which our learned counsellors send us forth with sage warnings and good wishes is neither cruel nor our oyster. It is a world of hard reality, dangerous and wonderful. Its hardest reality is that it is God's world, the area in which His purposes are to be worked out. The Lord Christ is in this world with power to create, correct and redeem. He is with us to sustain the obedience and dedication we offer Him as we make commencement in a new stage of the life we have in Christ.

Organ Postlude: Finale from Symphony IV C. M. Widor

John Baptist

John the Baptizer knew well the history of God's Chosen People. The Jews had repeatedly turned to God in times of trouble, but in ordinary times they had tended to forget Him.

As John surveyed the situation of his day, he could not imagine how it could be worse. The whole people of Israel were diseased in spirit. The religious leaders, concerned with maintaining their own positions of power, were content with the superficial conformity of the people and seemed to be unaware of the spiritual crisis that confronted Israel.

John, however, like the prophets of old, knew that the people's disobedience and indifference could lead only to destruction. "Repent ye," he cried, "for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." And to the religious leaders he said, "O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Bring forth, therefore, fruits meet for repentance."

John knew that the Lord God forgives those who repent, and he baptized penitents in the River Jordan to symbolize the washing away of their sins. John knew that his symbolic baptism was only the beginning: "There cometh one mightier than I after me . . . I indeed have baptized you with water: but he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost."

As John the Baptist called the people of Israel to turn from their sin and to accept the coming Messiah, so the Church calls us to repentance. We must see ourselves as we really are, not as people who have been indifferent and disobedient under the pressure of external circumstances, but as those whose selfishness and pride lie at the roots of their being. By repentance, we turn away from the old life of sin and turn to God with a new response of heart, mind, and will.

The Sacraments and Re-Union

In modern times man has been encouraged to think of himself as an individual only. "Think for yourself," "be yourself," "stand on your own feet," he has been told. This advice, when coupled with his inborn tendency to view the whole world from the standpoint of "I," tends to make him forget that he lives not only as an individual but also as a member of society.

This society of which he is a member is as much a part of God's plan for His creation as is each individual, and man's relationship with God is both personal and social.

It is the social side of man's relationship to God that is expressed in the Church's sacramental life. Christians believe that God, in His Son, has appointed certain specific ways in which He makes His presence known to His people, certain "means of grace" which are social by nature and are necessary for the health of man.

Two of these ways, which the Anglican Communion has always insisted upon as being necessary for salvation, are the sacraments of Baptism and Holy Communion. Holy baptism is the means whereby we are brought into the visible fellowship of Christ's Church." Holy Communion is our normal means of grace within the fellowship.

One of the essential tasks of Christian re-union is the recovery of the social aspect of the relationship which Christians have with each other in their Redeemer. Through His sacraments our Lord enables us to fulfill this relationship.

We who have the rich heritage of the Book of Common Prayer have the resources of sacramental worship to offer to the Christian world and to many who have virtually forgotten their sacramental heritage in the Church.

In discussing re-union with other Christian bodies we need to offer these resources in the utmost charity. We stand condemned too often by our own lack-luster devotional practices. As we talk with Christians of other traditions it must be with the fervent hope that we and they together may recover the richness of the sacramental society which Christ wills in His Church.

By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them

"Handsome is as handsome does."

"What you are speaks so loudly I cannot hear what you say."

The folklore of the world is filled with warnings about the pleasant mask and the hollow heart, the fine outward show and the corrupt character. Learning to distinguish between people who are merely glossy fakes and those who are true and trustworthy is certainly one of the most difficult of all judgments.

How we suffer for our children when we see them painfully learning the difference between people who may be merely amusing or exciting and those who can be loyal friends, solid companions, sweethearts, husbands, wives. How bitter are the memories of our own many mistakes as to the real motives and character of persons we have known. And how great are the joys of loves which have seen through what is superficial to the beauty and excellence within.

It is this kind of human experience which helps us understand the words of Jesus "By their fruits ye shall know them." (St. Matt., 7:20) These were words of advice to the infant Church. In its struggle for strength of fellowship and in the broadening of its life and work, the young Church was warned to measure its leaders wisely and not to be diverted or enticed by mere external display: pious enthusiasm; learned, thrilling speech; personal charm; clever ideas; impressive credentials; important "connections."

It is as if our Lord were saying: "The tree may be graceful against the skyline; the plant may be delicate in its beauty; the play of light and shadow may make entrancing patterns in the dancing leaves; even the blossoms may be exquisite beyond the telling. But only the testing of adversities and the unhurried coming of harvest time will produce the fruits—the power to sustain life."

It is ever so—in commonest human experience, in the formation of the early Church, in the value of the Christian life always. The inward motives, the true character, the persons we really are, reveal the proof of the mysterious workings of God's grace, the "fruit" of the Spirit: love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control (Galatians, 5:22).

Only by such "fruits" shall we be known as true children of God.

By their fruits

The Anglican Congress

On Tuesday, August 13, Toronto, Canada, will witness the opening of the Second Anglican Congress. Delegates representing more than 40 million Christians of the Anglican Communion will meet for 11 days to pray, study, and work to bring our portion of Christ's Church to a greater understanding of our duties in this age.

What is the common bond of our fellowship? At first glance it might be difficult to find. We have no common name. Anglicans around the world are known by different names: "The Church of England", "The Anglican Church", "The Protestant Episcopal Church", or "The Holy Catholic Church". We have no common race, nationality or tongue. Anglicans may be English, American, Canadian, Chinese, Indian or Maori. We may speak English or we may speak Arabic. We may be die-hard capitalists or militant socialists. What is the source of our unity?

First of all, there is the fact that we are baptized members of the Body of Christ. But we are visibly separated from many of our baptized brethren in other communions, so we must look more deeply.

The fundamental unity of Anglicanism is in doctrine. As Bishop Stephen Neill has stated, it is "to add nothing to the ancient faith of the Church, to take nothing away from it, and not to define too exactly those mysteries which God has hidden in His own knowledge."

We are also united by apostolic ministry and by a common tradition of worship, rising out of the Book of Common Prayer.

Another, and less tangible, source of unity, is born of a shared history of affection and charity which unites us with men of all races and tongues to a common spiritual ancestry.

Finally, the unity of Anglicanism is based on God's call. Anglicans recognize that, in the will of God, there is One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church. We earnestly pray for the day when that Church will be known by all men, and the term "Anglicanism" will no longer be needed. But, in the meantime, God has a vocation for His people as they are. The Anglican Congress will devoutly seek to help us to understand that vocation in our time.

The Mission of Anglicanism

As the Anglican Congress meets this month in Toronto, Canada, its delegates from all parts of the world are concentrating, through prayer and study, on the mission of the Church.

Christ sent His disciples into the world to teach all nations, and to baptize them "in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit." There is but one Gospel, and our obedience to our Lord's commission will be determined by our willingness and ability to present this Gospel to those for whom Christ also died but who do not know Him as yet.

This Gospel must be presented to them in terms they can comprehend. It is foolish and contradictory to the spirit of the Gospel to assume that men must be made to conform to our particular culture—or to any local culture—before they can understand the message of Christ.

The world-wide involvement of the Anglican Communion in the mission of the Church is revealed by the list of speakers who are addressing the sessions in Toronto. The many nations and races that are being represented at the Congress by the bishops and other delegates from the autonomous Churches of the Anglican Communion are evidence that within this particular part of Christendom there is indeed "neither Jew nor Greek . . . bond nor free."

In the last analysis, however, the mission of the Church, although it may be discussed and studied by the Congress in Toronto, will be carried out in the local congregations by the people of those congregations. And the ultimate success of this mission will depend upon our ability to understand and appreciate people of different backgrounds—cultural, racial, intellectual and economic—and by our ability to speak the truth to them in brotherly love.

This may well require that we give up some of our cherished prejudices as to what a church "should be." It will certainly call for the abandonment of any concept of the Church as being "my" Church or even "our" Church.

The mission of Anglicanism requires that each local congregation be a missionary citadel in its community and each baptized Christian be an active missionary wherever he may find himself.

Righteousness and Law

One of the recurring dangers in Christianity is that it may become mere legalism. Legalism is a way of life in which adherence to a code of conduct is considered sufficient for salvation. Legalism very often masquerades as religion and we frequently hear it said that "the quickest way to heaven is just to follow the Golden Rule." Legalism may give a man integrity, honesty and sobriety, but the one thing it cannot give is a living relationship with God.

Our Lord denied the belief that there is any formula of behaviour which will automatically bring men to God. He corrected the notion that any series of ritualistic observance can, of themselves, make a man righteous in the sight of God.

That man cannot, of himself, achieve righteousness is basic to Christian teaching about man. Man cannot find the good by himself, and he cannot gain heaven by himself. And he certainly cannot find God by himself. On the contrary, it is God who acts, God who counts him as righteous, God in His Son who made the one perfect offering that can save mankind.

To say this is not to say that the Christian can disregard the law. Paradoxically, a Christian is one who, of all men, is most careful to keep God's commandments. He obeys the laws of God in order to achieve a relationship with God but in thanksgiving for that relationship already given him in Jesus Christ.

We are not such perfect creatures that we can do without some form of common discipline and common life as Christians. The early Church never envisioned a chaos of manners and morals. Righteousness does not come from Law. Neither is it a flight from law. The man who knows himself to be counted righteous before God joyfully keeps the rules by which he may live this righteous life from day to day.

FLOWERS

The flowers for the Altar this morning are given in loving memory of Ethel C. Pancoast. May light perpetual shine upon her.

ST. MARY

Today, September 8th, is a lesser feast day which commemorates the birth of St. Mary, Mother of our Lord Jesus Christ. Of course, like many other important Christian commemorations, we don't know the exact date of her birth, but of her lowliness, humility and trust Holy Scripture and Churchmen through the ages are firmly convinced. She has been accorded many titles of honor and praise, and rightly so, but we rejoice that her trust in God and singleness of purpose are ever before us in the simple dedication of this church to St. Mary.

The Fruit of the Spirit

Every time we, as Christian people, recite the Apostle's Creed we affirm that we believe in the Holy Ghost.

Theologians, if asked to elaborate on this affirmation, would do so by saying that the Holy Ghost is the Third Person of the Blessed Trinity. This is good theology but it leaves unanswered the question: How does the Holy Ghost affect our lives?

When our Lord had that conference after dark with Nicodemus He said: "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is everyone that is born of the Spirit."

Everyone has experienced the power of the wind, yet no man has ever seen it.

When St. Paul wrote his letter to the Galatians, he told them to "walk in the Spirit."

Thus we have the metaphor of the wind, which our Lord used, and the metaphor of the plodding, sure-footed walker, which Saint Paul used to describe a man guided by the Holy Spirit of God.

St. Paul goes on to tell the Galatians what he means by walking in the Spirit. He says the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance.

But men can only walk in the Spirit if the Spirit of God dwells within their hearts. God is love and the first fruit of the Spirit is love. The Holy Ghost comes to us to give us more love for God and for our fellow men, guiding us toward true holiness.

It is the Holy Spirit who enables Christians to overcome temptation and to function as citizens of the Kingdom in their generation, their Church, and their families.

"For the love of God will shine forth in their hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us."

God or Mammon?

We live in an era of unequaled strength and bountiful prosperity. Why, then, are we so often confused and uneasy about the state of our nation? We have more material riches in America now than was thought possible for any nation to possess just a generation or two ago. Yet we are frequently uneasy, plagued by anxiety, perpetually disturbed by a mounting crime rate and alarmed by the threat of war.

And so we could go on to catalogue the symptoms of a society which seems to be losing its sense of commitment. Lost in a wild jungle of abundance, drowning in a deluge of things, we wonder why we cannot stand up boldly for the values we feel instinctively are right and true.

Does not our dilemma stem from the fact that, as St. Paul reminds us, we are trying to worship many gods and many lords?

In the midst of our confusion come the words of the one Lord, challenging us to examine the ultimate object of our allegiance: "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one and love the other; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon."

We cannot ignore the fact that the Christian faith demands from us commitment. Whom shall we serve? Either the Lord and Giver of life or the wealth and comfort of this life must finally win our allegiance. We cannot serve God and mammon. One must ultimately be the lord of our life.

Frequently in the Gospel stories we find our Lord Jesus Christ confronting men with His proclamation that God's judgment is at hand. This is the message our Lord said was like a sword. It forces men to take a stand. It cuts away all evasion and nonsense cloaking the human soul and leaves it naked before the scrutiny of Almighty God.

Christ's clear ultimatum demands that we ask ourselves, "Am I a servant of God or a servant of riches and worldly comfort?"

This is the sharp sword of God's word which comes to us now, severing the ties that bind us to our false gods and demanding that we order our life and our wealth in such a way that we are the master of things and not their slave, God's servant and not Mammon's.

WAR IN HEAVEN

Perhaps only in modern times could so many people have come to believe that the evil in life can all be explained either in natural terms or as being the result of human error and failings, past or present. In former and less comfortable ages such religious naivete would have been harder to maintain.

Christianity teaches that any explanation of evil which excludes the super-natural is too simple. The Book of Revelation says, "There was war in Heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon . . ." And the Church understands that the cleavage pictured in these words reflects a deeper division on a higher level of God's universe, on the level of those created, spiritual beings we call angels.

Christian belief is that Heaven has an army, uniformed not in pastels but in fire, and that war still goes on between the spiritual hosts of evil and the angels of God. Such a doctrine says to us: Christianity means conflict, a fight, not an easy chair in a spiritual resort.

Our Faith is no soft religion with soft pews, soft "religious" light, soft music and soft words from soft-spoken priests to soft, well-meaning Christians. Our Faith is a war being waged between the forces of God and evil in all its forms, including "depraved spiritual beings at great heights."

To be baptized is to be enrolled, with the angels, in the army of God, signed with the Cross in token that hereafter we shall manfully fight under His banner. For Christians, the battle is real and the battleground is our own hearts, the place where the two contending forces meet. Here we take up arms for evil or for good.

Meanwhile, we remember that we are fighting more than just our own weaknesses; we are taking our individual part in a cosmic war, not alone but together with battalions of angels.

And we take strength from the knowledge that in Heaven's army each has his own battle station and faces no more of the conflict than he is equipped to bear.

INTERCESSIONS

You are reminded that the box at the left of the West Door is placed so that intercession requests and thanksgivings may be noted and dropped in. Of course, you may ask the clergy at any time as well.

There is a list showing the daily schedule of intercessions but requests are always offered at once. The church building is where our common prayers and worship are offered each day.

BIRMINGHAM

The Department of Social Relations of the Diocese asks that those moved to contribute financially to the rebuilding of the bombed church or other needs, do so through the Presiding Bishop's Fund, marked "Birmingham" - noting that the National Council Office is in the best position to know where help is needed and how to transmit it.

HOLY UNCTION

The Church has always been concerned with the healing of men's bodies as well as their souls. A recent emphasis in the Church's life has been renewed interest in this healing ministry.

Now, as it has always, the Church uses Unction of the sick, a sacrament especially given for healing. In the administration of this sacrament, hands are laid upon the sick person or he is anointed (usually upon the forehead) with oil which has been blessed for this purpose. This simple action is accompanied by prayer for the healing of body and soul.

Holy Unction has both a scriptural basis and the usage by the Apostles to commend it. This practice, however, was little used in later times, except when death seemed imminent. Because it was administered only in extremis it became known as "the last rites."

This is unfortunate, because it has led people to think of Holy Unction as a prelude to death and to fear it on that account. Actually, Holy Unction can and should be administered in any serious illness, whether critical or not. Because its purpose is to bring healing both to body and soul, it should be as natural for churchmen to ask for this ministration as it is for them to call a physician.

Holy Unction is not magical. We are not guaranteed that physical cure will result where the sacrament is employed. Nor is Holy Unction a substitute for medical care. It is properly used in connection with medical care, not in place of it. Any disease, whether of body, mind or soul, destroys the wholeness of the human person. God has given the Church power to aid in restoring wholeness, which is the health He wills and we all desire.

The purpose of Holy Unction primarily, is to effect the action of God's grace upon the soul, healing and restoring. When this takes place the body is more ready for physical cure, if such be the will of God.

God has given us the sacrament of Holy Unction to be used. We neglect it at our peril, for it is yet another proof of His continuing concern for the souls and bodies of His children.

COVER: Symbols of Holy Unction. The five crosses represent the five wounds of our Lord, the vessel represents the oil used in Unction, and the flame indicates the power of the Holy Spirit.

FLOWERS

The flowers for the Altar this morning have been given in memory of the children killed in the Birmingham riot on September 15th. May they rest in peace, and may the hearts of mankind be turned to the love of all God's children.

GUEST PREACHER

We welcome to the pulpit of St. Mary's this morning no stranger, but one who is frequently among us, the Rev. Richard A. Norris, D. Phil. (Oxon). Dr. Norris served as priest-in-charge of St. Mary's for nearly a year before Fr. Scott's coming, and is Assistant Professor of Church History and Historical Theology at our neighbor, the Philadelphia Divinity School.

NEXT SUNDAY

(A) There will be Evensong at 5:00 p.m. Guest Preacher will be the Rev. Ronald W. McBride, Staff Chaplain of the Episcopal Community Services, with particular responsibility as chaplain to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania. Fr. McBride and his family are also among us here at St. Mary's.

(B) The Study/Discussion group preparing for the 19th Ecumenical Conference on Christian World Mission will meet from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. at the Rectory. We have eleven international students participating, but more Americans are invited. See Fr. Scott for details.

Ministry of Medicine

There is no question of the high regard in which the American public holds the medical professions. In the space of a single generation we have seen many of the dreaded enemies to our health checked, if not almost entirely conquered. We have learned to look and listen hopefully for news bulletins of further conquests, and we respect the army of researchers, physicians, nurses, and dentists as the heroes of our day.

So completely has the medical profession captured our imagination and confidence that advertisers have made capital of our frame of mind. The familiar picture of the white-clad man with the stethoscope or test-tube helps to sell us anything from shampoo to foot salves. What 99 out of 100 American doctors have to say about pain remedies is used to boost sales. We may be sure, however, that the medical profession has, in God's intention, a far nobler purpose than its advertising potential.

"Honor a physician with the honor due unto him for the uses which ye may have of him: for the Lord hath created him," is the way the author of Ecclesiasticus begins his praise of the physician in the Apocrypha. Whether a member of the medical profession acknowledges it or not, he is God's instrument, and we are to regard him as such: "for the Lord hath created him." His skill is God's gift, and to heal men's ills he must work in reverent co-operation with the laws of God's universe. But though we honor the physician as God's creation, we shall be careful not to trust him above God or to think that the cure to all human "disease" is within the physician's competence.

"Then give place to the physician, for the Lord hath created him: let him not go from thee, for thou hast need of him." The Christian religion has always faced squarely the fact of physical needs, and it welcomes the assistance of the sciences in meeting these needs as heartily as it relies upon the power of faith. It expects of the medical profession no more than what Ecclesiasticus required: "they shall also pray unto the Lord, that he would prosper that which they give for ease and remedy to prolong life."

TEMPERANCE

The word "temperance" has a familiar but erroneous connotation in everyday speech. As commonly used it means complete abstinence from alcoholic beverages at all times. The prohibitionist's narrow insistence upon total abstinence has logically issued in ill-fated "temperance movements" to remake society in its own image.

Most Christians today are understandably out of sympathy with such a legalistic and negative answer to the use of alcohol. At the same time, informed churchmen realize that the serious problems raised by the consumption of liquor cannot be laughed off as mere figments of a twisted imagination. The moral question involved in the use of alcohol requires our best Christian thinking.

What is the real nature of our dilemma about alcohol? The basic error the prohibitionist makes in his solution to the question is in finding the cause of the trouble in the wrong place. Blinded by his zeal to eradicate a particular aspect of sin, he sees all alcoholic beverages as evil in themselves. Here the prohibitionist makes his fundamental error, for he is calling a natural part of God's world wicked and wrong in and of itself.

In contrast to this attitude we have the broader and deeper consensus of the Church's teaching which sees the use to which a thing is put as being of foremost importance. Our enemy is not alcohol but the abuse of its use by weak and sinful men.

What, then, are we to do about the problem? We must look to our Lord's example as we do in all other critical areas of life. Jesus, we know from the New Testament, was not a prohibitionist, nor did He abstain from alcohol. He accepted the fruit of the vine as a natural and appropriate part of life, to be received with thankfulness and enjoyed in moderation. He used alcohol temperately, as a normal part of the table fellowship of mankind.

Finally, He Himself chose an everyday alcoholic drink, wine, to be a part of the sacramental means by which He would nourish His faithful people until His coming again.

Surely our Lord's attitude is our best guide to the meaning of temperance.

We will be privileged on this major festival of the Church to have as guests in the parish the Rev. and Mrs. Walter Wade on the last leg of a trip which

Saints and Sinners

Among Christians the only difference between a "saint" and a "sinner" is in the response each makes to God's love.

In every other respect, distinctions are artificial. The New Testament ignores them. Paul's letters are addressed "to the saints . . . which are at Colosse," "to the Church of God which is a Corinth, with all the saints which are in all Achaia."

In every case his epistles arrived in ordinary parishes made up of ordinary people whose only special quality, whose "sanctity," was that they were baptized communicants: men, women and children who now belonged to Jesus Christ.

When we use the two words, however, we make a distinction. We discern a gap. We see a difference between Christians, between ourselves and those who have given their lives to Christ in way which we have not, those who have allowed Him to rule their wills in a way which we have not. By so doing, they have become so much His ambassadors to the rest of us that we have put them on our calendar so that we will not forget this witness.

But were they also sinners? Of course. They themselves were the first to admit it. Out of a joy and peace, so much deeper in their lives than in ours, they communicate to us also a penitence also more profound than our own. The saints are, of all Christians, most conscious of being sinners, of failing and falling short, simply because they are, of all Christians, most steadfast in their love of Jesus Christ.

The response to God's love is the measure of the gap which separates us. We share with them a common baptism, a common altar; we are united with them in the one Catholic Church. But, because they have responded to God's love more fully, they move within the one Body differently.

We will walk with them when we can say with St. Augustine—one of the greatest of sinners who became one of the greatest of saints—"Late have I loved Thee, O Beauty so ancient and so new . . . late have I loved Thee!"

Ceremonial Notes

We are often asked about genuflecting (the custom of kneeling briefly on the right knee at certain times). It was a common form of acknowledgment used by Jesus' disciples when they came into His Presence. Now Churchmen (1) acknowledge the Sacramental Presence of Christ by genuflecting upon leaving one's place and proceeding to the Altar Rail for Communion, and (2) genuflecting upon entering a church or a pew in the church in which the Sacramental Species are Reserved, as is the case here at St. Mary's. The place of reservation is a tabernacle on or over an Altar (at St. Mary's at All Saints Altar in the south transept), or in a wall safe, known as an aumbrey. The Presence of the Reserved Sacrament is indicated by a continuously burning candle called a Sanctuary Lamp or Light.

The genuflection is in honor of God Incarnate who is the means of our salvation, so that it is also a custom to genuflect at the words in the Nicene Creed: "And was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, And was made man."

The custom is frequently observed in what would be called, for the lack of better terminology, "high church" parishes. It is a matter for the individual worshipper to do or not do depending on whether such bodily acts assist him or her in offering worship to God (although when participating in a service as a server or chorister all do the same for the sake of courtesy and orderliness). In either case, the Faith of the Church rests squarely on God become man in Jesus Christ.

You will find the regular Weekday Schedule posted on the Bulletin Board.

WAR AND PEACE

Few would argue that the great issue in today's world is the question of war and peace. Although our homes may still remain untouched by tragedy, we fear persistently that the nuclear holocaust may be drawing nearer with each breath we take.

No one can predict the pattern that events will take. Christian and non-Christian both feel within themselves profound and human longings for peace, and both fear the horrors of total war.

Although it is everyone's preoccupation, the problem of peace and war seems to defy our cleverest and best attempts at a permanent solution. We wonder can anything, even our faith, save us?

In all honesty, Christians must say that we do not know what evil may befall the world in our time so long as the nations "furiously rage together . . . and the peoples imagine a vain thing." But we can have a sure and certain hope in God's ultimate plan of salvation.

The Gospel proclaims that the loss of physical life is not the last word in God's dialogue with his human family. His call to us to lift our eyes above the horizon of history is not an invitation to escapism but a challenge to faith.

The vision of peace which is our final Christian expectation lies beyond the treaties and armaments which have been the world's hope since the beginning of history. The peace which is our highest hope can come to us only as the gift of Almighty God. This divine peace is never just the absence of human strife, however desirable this goal may be in itself. God's peace grows within us out of the deep conviction that, whatever the future may bring, His righteousness will someday win the final victory.

Only in the fulness of God's kingdom will we know a decisive end to the threat of war and the achievement of a truly lasting peace.

Caesar and God

When a child is born he becomes a citizen of the land of his parents. When this child is baptized he becomes also "an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven."

Thus the Christian is a citizen of two "countries," each of which demands his loyalty. From this dual allegiance spring both perplexities and opportunities.

When our Lord's enemies sought to trap Him into making a treasonable utterance Jesus confounded them by pointing to a Roman coin and answering: "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." By these words our Lord acknowledges the claim of both realms upon man's allegiance. He also stresses the need for man to make a clear distinction between the claims of each.

In our day the conflict between the Kingdom of Heaven and the nations of this world is increasingly involved. It is imperative that we, as Christians, recognize the reality of our dual citizenship in order that we may cope with the tensions and conflicts that result.

Christian citizenship requires, first of all, that we recognize the sovereignty of God over all things, including the nations of the earth. And we who are Christians must accept the duties of national citizenship which are for the welfare of all people and which aid the state to carry out its obligations to God for the maintenance of justice, peace and righteousness. Whenever there is conflict between the will of God and the will of the "earthly city," it is our duty to acknowledge the higher loyalty and obey the will of God.

Obviously it is not always clear what God would have us do in a given matter of citizenship. When we are uncertain what our loyalty to God demands of us then we are to seek strength through prayer and sacrament. Having prayed and studied and received Communion, the Christian citizen is to decide to the best of his ability what is right and then to act on the basis of that decision.

The Time of Your Life

What we really mean by living in "time," is to attempt to live by a plan. Time is the way in which we measure our plans. More often than not we seem to be frustrated by time. We have so little of it. There is so much to be done and we waste so much of it. We often look back over a day (or a lifetime) and say, "Where did the time go? How little I have really accomplished."

Our experience of time seems to us a chain of events which lead nowhere.

There is another kind of experience of time. The Scriptures speak of Christ as being "the same yesterday, today, and forever." This means that God is forever the contemporary of every man. In the life, death and resurrection of Jesus we have seen, and may know, the life God wills to live with us and we with Him.

In Christ we see that time is not, as we so often experience it, a meaningless chain of events. All time is God's time and is totally involved with His purpose for us and our lives with Him. In the life, death and resurrection of Christ, God's eternal will has burst into time in plain and unmistakable form.

We are, in truth, wonderfully made. We live in time, and we live in eternity. It is part of Christian living to realize this and to act upon it. Most Christians sense this, perhaps without defining it to themselves. There are moments in our lives when we say "this is right" or "this is God's will" and know that time and eternity are in harmony. But there are the other moments, when we are bogged down in the sheer purposelessness of our existence and we feel that life has no meaning.

We are called to recognize that we will reach a final point when we shall pass beyond the measure of time. At this point we will fully know the Christ who has always been with us. Time seemingly flaccid and without purpose, will cease, and we will understand what it means to live in God's eternity.

COVER: A timepiece is combined with the Alpha and Omega, first and last letters of the Greek alphabet, which signify that our Lord is the beginning and end of all things.

HOLY BAPTISM and THE CHURCH

Holy Baptism is an act that (1) bestows forgiveness of sins and (2) imparts, at least in potentiality the new life of Christ to the individual recipient - what the Prayerbook service calls "regeneration." That new life, however, is life in the whole Body of Christ and therefore the local congregation welcomes and receives the new members into Christ's Body with thanksgiving and rejoicing at the principal service of worship on the Lord's Day. It is not "private" because the whole Body is concerned.

At St. Mary's we minister to and include in our midst many persons who are here for two, three, or four years, and who move on to other places. This morning the three fathers of the three daughters who are being baptized are each doctors associated with the hospitals and medical schools of our area. Dr. Comaish is from England, and on the staff of the Hospital of the University this year. Dr. Hopton is concluding a residency at Temple University Hospital, and Dr. Pyle is in residence at the Hospital of the University.

LOYALTY SUNDAY DIRECTIONS

For the benefit of all who are unfamiliar with our method of how we make and present our pledges of loyalty and substance for the support of the parish during the year, the following is given in explanation.

Our pledging is an act of stirring worship, sacred and solemn. It is done in this way:

After the sermon and address by the Every Member Canvass chairman, a pledge card will be presented to every person present. With this card you may indicate a pledge of personal loyalty as well as a financial pledge.

All are asked to indicate their loyalty to St. Mary's as suggested in the instructions at the bottom of the card. One or more members of the family, as it seems best to you, will be urged to make a financial pledge.

No one need feel embarrassed if unable to pledge financially at this service. With the exception of visitors, everyone will be signing a card in any case. And no one will know whether you have or have not signed a financial pledge.

When all who desire have signed one or both of the pledges, the entire congregation will be asked to come forward together, not individually, while a hymn is sung by all, and lay their pledges on the alms basins which will be held by two wardens standing at the chancel steps. When this is over, all the cards are presented at the altar during the singing of the doxology.

Our Father... Hallowed be thy Name

The Christian, taught by his Saviour to pray, seeks the living presence of his Creator and Redeemer. And thus he says, "Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy Name."

How easily these familiar words slip from our lips! And yet, if there is one mark of Christian prayer that is unique and distinctive it is the privilege of calling upon God as Father. Here is no presumption on the part of a mere creature to be familiar with his Maker. Here is no guess as to the nature of God. Rather this is the petition of one who knows Christ as the only true Son of God, and who can say, with the Apostle, "God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Son into our hearts crying, Abba, Father."

Yet God is not simply our projection of earthly fatherhood. To call on Him as the Father in heaven is to recognize that His Name of Father is His revelation of Himself. We are able to discover certain intimations about God's nature in the world around us, in our own consciences and in the lives of others. The crowning revelation is found in His words, "this is my Son," and the Son says, "after this manner pray ye, our Father..."

In the Lord's Prayer this unique revelation of God's Fatherhood is qualified, however, by the words "Hallowed be thy Name." God's name is holy. He is not simply the sum of human aspirations and fears. He is not the servant of the supplicants. Close as He is to every man and woman, He is also the Holy One "who inhabiteth eternity."

We begin our prayer in the knowledge that we are the sons of God, not merely as creatures, but by His adoption and grace. Our petitions are to the Father, the Father who loves us and has given His Son for us. Yet, at the same time, He is the Father who dwells in majesty and mystery. We approach His throne mindful of His holiness desiring that His holiness will make us holy, desiring that all men may be quickened by His holiness, desiring that His people may be a fit vehicle to carry His holiness to the nations.

And now, as our Saviour Christ hath taught us, we are bold to say: "Our Father..."

COVER: The Hebrew letters within the sunburst form the word "Jehovah" and are occasionally used by Christians to represent God the Father.

Thy Kingdom Come

The Kingdom of God has come. The Kingdom is already at work in the lives of men and in the operation of the world, in the life, death and resurrection of our Lord, in the presence of the Holy Spirit in His Church.

The presence of God's Kingdom is a fact by which the Christian lives, yet, in the world, as in our lives, this fact is often obscured. Prayers are uttered by the lips of men who know themselves to be alienated, by men who live in such a way that the presence of God is often unclear.

When we pray "Thy Kingdom Come" we recognize both the actuality of what God has done and is doing and the alienation and sin of our world. We know ourselves to be members of the visible outpost of the Kingdom, the Church on earth, and we are praying that this reign of God may be shown in its fullness.

When we pray "Thy Kingdom come," we are actually praying for three things. We are praying that God's rule may be known and obeyed throughout the whole world. This is really a prayer for the mission of the Church into whose hands the Lord has entrusted the message and means of grace which is the only hope of mankind. There are those who have not heard the Good News of Christ; there are those who have heard it but ignore it. There are men and nations that live in bitter fear and distrust of their fellows. We pray that God's Kingdom may come among them.

We are also praying that God's rule may be known in our own lives. Frequently we are a disgrace to the Gospel we profess. Our characters as individual Christians are often a bigger barrier to the conversion of the heathen than the "difficulties" of doctrine which we are so eager to blame. When a person prays that the Kingdom will come, he is saying that he is willing to fight the evil which he knows in the world. But this must include asking God to help him fight the evil which he knows to be in his own life.

Finally, we are praying for that universal rule of Christ which can only come when His Father wills. Men will not be able to overcome the evil which is in the world. The world will always be a mixture of good and ill. The Christian places his ultimate hope in that day when the rule of God will be triumphant "on earth as it is in heaven."

Prayer and Magic

"There is nothing left to do now but pray."

These words appear to express great faith but they actually reveal an attitude more closely related to magic than to prayer. What they really say, if we consider them carefully is: "Because all human resources have failed, we have no choice but to try God."

Such an attitude is really a challenge to the power of God and verges on magic.

The essence of magic is the attempt to produce a desired result, either by the manipulation of supernatural powers or by the mastery of secret forces in nature.

The essence of Christian prayer is our will to be controlled, our will to be mastered, our will to be acted upon by the Will of God.

Prayer, when it is regarded only as a last resort or when it is merely the recitation of a formula designed to produce certain desired results, is quickly reduced to the level of magic. No thoughtful Christian really believes that prayer is magic; but Christians are not always thoughtful.

The praying of a Christian must be a dialogue. Prayer involves speaking to God, but even more important, it also involves listening to God. Every act of prayer must be controlled and supported by the thought: "not my will, but thine be done." This is the safeguard that keeps us from using prayer as if it were magic. This is the condition of all Christian praying which forbids us from trying to use God in order to control people and situations.

Prayer is the will to be used by the Will of God, and prayer based on this truth produces its own fruits in the moral life of the praying Christian. Such a Christian necessarily becomes more loving, more temperate, purer, and more joyful in the service of God. These are the fruits by which the reality of prayer shall be known.

EMBER DAYS

Wednesday, Friday and Saturday are the Advent Ember Days to be observed as days of fasting as directed

The Power and the Glory

We are a generation familiar with power. We know more about it than our ancestors could have dreamed. We push buttons that start motors, give bright light and blast mountains. We drive high-speed cars. We know what atomic fission can do, and we have seen men thrust far into outer space.

But what we know of glory is another thing. We glory in our progress and we glorify the people and institutions and machines which bring us closer to unravelling and manipulating life's mysteries. Amazement and awe before the mystery of the world fade as we are given new assurances that we will soon know what it is all about.

To know more of the power and less of the glory is a tragedy for modern man. Because we are fast losing our capacity to contemplate and enjoy the brightness and majesty of those wonders which are beyond our apprehending, the fun and excitement of living are diminishing. The real tragedy, however, is that we more and more believe that because the power is entrusted to our hands, the glory likewise is ours. As a result of this distortion in our thinking, the power has brought fear and the glory is dust.

There is nothing wrong in power if we recognize its Source. All power is of God and comes from Him. Christians know, too, that His power is even more than might and force. In Jesus Christ we see His power as love, overcoming sin and death and over-ruling our will to usurp His power. And in God's power to overrule our sinful wills we see our true hope of glory.

When we pray "Thine is . . . the power and the glory," we ascribe to our heavenly Father what is His and His alone. We do not and cannot give Him what is already His. What we do in this prayer is recognize that both the power and the glory are His. We give thanks that He has made us the beneficiaries of His power and has given us the hope of sharing in the glory of eternal life with Him.

The Friend of the Friendless

The Episcopal Church, through the Presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief, shares in the united effort of the Christian people of America to aid the starving and homeless of Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

To administer the Fund a special corporation, known as "Church World Service" has been functioning as a department of the World Council of Churches with general headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

Administration covers not only the distribution of money but also the distribution of clothing and other living necessities. In many cases funds are used to provide temporary barrack-chapels, together with modest equipment, for religious services and educational and recreational programs.

This Fund has made an important contribution not only to the relief of the physical and material needs of thousands of our fellow-men but also to the moral and spiritual necessities of the people it aids.

To be able and willing to do something to relieve the distress of human beings suffering the ravages of hunger and cold is a great work. To be able and willing to do something to relieve the distress of human souls suffering from a famine of the Spirit of God is a greater work.

That the souls of men may live and not die, our offerings are requested.

The Holy Eucharist is celebrated daily as follows:

Monday and Wednesday - 7:30 a.m.
Tuesday (in the CA Chapel) 11:00 a.m.
Thursday - 5:30 p.m.
Friday - 12:15 p.m.
Saturday - 8:30 a.m.

Note: Evening Prayer and Intercessions will not resume until January 13th.

The Laying On of Hands

The laying on of hands by the Bishop in confirmation is God's method of commissioning men and women for their ministry as laymen in the Church.

When adults come into the Church, confirmation may follow baptism immediately as it did in the early Church. When young children are baptized, confirmation is delayed for a number of years until the faith of their sponsors, in which they were baptized, becomes their own.

Entrance into the Church is through baptism and confirmation. In baptism we are born into the family of God. In confirmation we are strengthened by God the Holy Spirit for adult responsibilities in that family. Although the two sacraments are often administered separately they can best be understood as being parts of the two-fold initiatory rite of the Christian community.

In baptism we renounce self-sufficiency, realizing that sin is our attempt to live without God. We are willing by faith to have our "old self" die and be buried with Christ in the waters of baptism. God raises us to new life in Christ, makes us members of the Church (that body of people who look to God for their security), and gives us the opportunity of living with Him through eternity.

In confirmation, we renew our vows of loyalty to Christ, we realize that the life to which we are called as Churchmen requires superhuman power, and in faith we kneel before the Bishop for the gift of the Holy Spirit. God enables us by His indwelling to continue His forever and daily increase in His Holy Spirit more and more until we come into His everlasting kingdom.

The chief privilege and responsibility of those confirmed is to take part in the offering the Eucharist, our sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving.

Not Slothful in Business

To the enthusiastic churchman who says: "Give me some Christian work to do," the only honest answer is, "You've already got it. God has already given you Christian work to do." And in this answer are the essentials of what is meant by "vocation."

Christianity teaches that each of us has his own vocation, a calling from God to his own work in the world, a divine bidding to certain tasks. How we answer this vocation, in what surroundings we fulfill it, where and when we specifically perform it all depend on our individual situations. But one thing is certain: the real "Christian work" for each of us is our daily work, the work we do on the ordinary, practical stage of everyday life.

Dorothy Sayers said of vocation: "Let the Church remember . . . every maker and worker is called to serve God in his profession or trade, not outside it."

This is to say that real "Christian work" involves far more than the men of the congregation painting the parish house on a Saturday afternoon, or the women cleaning the parish kitchen. Christian work is primarily what Christian men and women, Christian fathers, mothers, students, office and factory workers and executive do all week long.

Christians believe that work is natural and good and that there is no essential difference between "religious" and "secular" vocations because each is a summons from God. God is the one who calls every man to his work. Therefore, to do it well, to do it honestly, and to do it willingly is at the same time to serve God.

When the Divine Carpenter Himself became man He chose not a life of idleness in a palace but a shop and a life of work.

WEEK OF PRAYER FOR CHRISTIAN UNITY

We are distributing Intercession Leaflets for your daily use this week. Please, do not just lay your copy aside. Use it! All Christians are now participating in this effort.

It is an exciting and thankworthy event that Christians in the whole University Community will not only pray the same prayers this week, but will meet here at St. Mary's next Sunday for supper, two inspiring speakers and corporate prayer. The speakers are The Rev. L. W. Yolton, Director and Metropolitan University
Pastor of the Westminster Foundation of Philadelphia and Father Anthony Massimini, S.T.D., of the School of Theology, St. Charles Borromeo Seminary.

But, we must get some idea of the number to prepare supper for. Please use this reservation form:

I plan to be at the Canterbury supper, January 26th, to observe with all campus Christians the Week of Prayer for Unity.

The Purification

There was nothing unusual in what Mary and Joseph did forty days after the birth of Jesus. They simply took the Infant to the Temple to offer there the sacrifices Moses had prescribed for a firstborn son.

The unusual thing was done by Simeon, an old man, who stepped forward, took the Child from His Mother and began to thank God that after a lifetime of waiting he had been allowed to see the promised One sent to save Israel and to be the Light of all men.

Because of this unusual event, Eastern Orthodox Christians call this day, not the Presentation or the Purification, but the Meeting: the encounter between the old man Simeon and the newborn Christ.

For St. Augustine, the picture of the old man holding the new baby portrayed a great spiritual truth. Writing about it, he said of our Lord, "He comes to the world in the world's old age."

We, too, can often see in Simeon a symbolic figure of our own souls. There is a sense in which every man is an old man as he faces Christ: conscious of frailty but hoping for strength; tired of the burden of past failures and sins but seeking forgiveness; wearied by disappointments but longing for renewal. There is also a sense in which Christ faces every man always as the Divine Infant: small enough for frailty to hold, a new life without a past, ready to grow.

Midway between Christmas and Easter, the Feast of the Purification recalls to us that God's promised answer to His world is Jesus Christ and no other. He is the One in whom the Meeting perpetually occurs, for us as for Simeon, the meeting of the old age of man's need the eternally new love of God.

Theological Education

At the time of his conversion St. Paul asked: "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?"

Today men in many places are prayerfully asking this same question. Among those who find that God is asking them to serve Him in the Christian ministry, many will seek to prepare themselves in our theological seminaries.

The Episcopal Church demands much from the men who enter her priesthood. Seven years of study, four in college and three in seminary, are usually required. A college degree is the normal prerequisite to entrance into the seminary. At the end of seminary life, comprehensive examinations, covering the entire three years of study, must be passed for the bachelor's degree in divinity.

Even then a man may not be ordained until he has passed the required examination for the diaconate and priesthood conducted by a diocesan board of examining chaplains. Thus, in addition to the intellectual attainment demanded by the seminary, the candidate for holy orders is under constant scrutiny by the seminary faculty, the standing committee of the diocese and his bishop.

The seminaries realize always that the quality of the future leadership of the Church rests largely in their hands. They are training today the future bishops, priests and deacons of the Church. They seek constantly to give the candidates the best teachers and the best courses, both traditional and modern. The measure of their success in this task depends in large part on the measure of our support as laymen.

The eleven seminaries of the Episcopal Church are: Berkeley Divinity School, New Haven, Conn.; Bexley Hall, Gambier, Ohio; Church Divinity School of the Pacific, Berkeley, Calif.; Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, Pa.; Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.; Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest, Austin, Texas; General Theological Seminary, New York City; Nashotah House, Nashotah, Wis.; School of Theology of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.; Seabury-Western Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill. and Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, Va.

FLOWERS

The flowers today are given in loving memory of two former parishioners, Mary Farr (departed this life November 24, 1962) and Virginia Cocker (departed this life January 19, 1964). May light perpetual shine upon them.

WEEKDAY WORSHIP

Evening Prayer and Intercessions daily Monday thru Friday at 5:00 p.m.

The Daily Eucharist will be celebrated as follows: Monday and Wednesday, 7:30 a.m.; Tuesday, 11:00 a.m. at the C.A.; Thursday, 5:30 p.m.; Friday, 12:15 Noon; Saturday, 8:30 a.m.

NEXT SUNDAY

February 2nd, patronal day of our parish since it is the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, is the scheduled date of the episcopal visitation. Our diocesan, Bishop Armstrong, will be represented by the Rt. Rev. Andrew Y. Y. Tsu who will confirm the persons from our parish presented to him at 4:00 p.m. A reception for the confirmands and Bishop Tsu will follow the service.

A NEED

A need exists for two or three students to continue our assistance to St. Barnabas Church, Kensington, on Friday afternoons when teachers are needed for their Sunday School held on Friday afternoon. Please speak to the clergy.

Brotherhood

However much we may yearn for its attainment, most of us are a little weary of hearing about "Brotherhood." During one month of every year we are exhorted by slogans and posters, radio announcements and feature stories, to "practice brotherhood." Well-intentioned though these annual efforts may be, such sporadic and superficial application of a noble principle has not penetrated very deeply into the ingrained ways of the world because it does not get to the heart of the problem: How can all men be brothers?

To answer this question we need only to turn to what our Faith teaches. We are to regard all men as brothers because we have a common Father, Almighty God. As Christians we also know that we are sinners who have chosen to live by and for our own desires instead of obeying the sovereign will of our Creator. We have turned against our common Father, and, as a consequence, the unity of mankind is shattered. Dissension and hatred rather than brotherly love characterize humanity's tragic effort to live together in a peaceful society.

Because so few realize who their common Father is and what He expects of them, brotherhood is rarely manifested in the affairs of men.

Surely it is insufficient to counsel brotherhood to a world weary of its hollow and formal invocation. What we need first is a radical, new start in life. To become our brother's brother we must be born again in Jesus Christ.

Only when we have found this new birth in our Savior are we able to live and work together as brothers. By means of the sacrament of Holy Baptism, God has given us the gift of new life in Him, a gift which enables us to recognize our fellowmen as brothers because we have seen the Father in His Son.

As we grow stronger and more mature in this new life we are able to show to others the same kind of love that God has shown to us. Then, as this flame of charity burns brightly within our life, we can be certain that it will illuminate the pathway to brotherhood for all mankind.

Noah and the Promise of the Covenant

Even people with a strong religious faith have to deal with the problem of despair. All of us find ourselves, from time to time, in a world we do not recognize, in a world in which we seem cut off and adrift, in a world that God seems to have forgotten. God may once have spoken with a voice loud and clear, but where is He now?

So it must have seemed to Noah on the ark. Even though God had promised protection, where was He now, after all these days of rain when there were only gray skies and an endless expanse of water to behold?

Then, after two fruitless flights, the dove returns to the ark bringing an olive leaf in her beak. To Noah, that leaf was a sign that God had not forgotten His promises, that life and hope were once more emerging from death and despair.

God acts often in this fashion. He gives us His signs in ways that may seem as insignificant and unimportant as an olive leaf. These signs, rightly understood, mean that He is still with us, that He does care and that He will not leave us alone forever.

In token of His continuing concern, the flood was followed by a covenant: God set the rainbow in the sky as a sign of His first great promise to His people.

This covenant was followed by the pacts with Abraham and with Moses and then with the greatest pact of them all — that covenant with all men — the testament which is conveyed through the blood of God's only Son Jesus Christ.

To Noah, God promised seed time and harvest, the regular round of the seasons, the promise that God will never desert man. No matter how far away He may sometimes seem in times of calamity and sorrow, He nevertheless is there.

The covenant God made with Noah is our eternal promise that the Creator of the world is never absent from His creation, that He who made us will sustain us in spite of our own confusion and despair.

COVER: The dove, with a sprig of olive, is a familiar symbol recalling the end of the flood and the Covenant which God made with Noah. Text: Genesis 9:15.

Abraham and the People of the Covenant

The story of Abraham is the story of the beginning of the People of the Covenant. The Hebrew people, who traced the foundation of their race and nation back to Abraham, were a people of faith, a people who, above all else, believed that they had a particular and unique relationship to God. They believed themselves to be God's chosen people, a people whom God had selected to be His own in a way not given to any other race or nation.

This choice began with God's command to Abraham to leave his home and native country and to venture forth into the unknown, depending only upon God's promise that He would make of him a great nation.

Abraham went forth in faith, in obedience to God's command. His particular vocation was to found a new nation, Israel. God told Abraham, "I will multiply . . . and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast obeyed my voice . . ."

And so, ultimately, it is to Abraham that we Christians, members of the new Israel, the Christian Church, trace our spiritual ancestry.

Some people are interested in their ancestry for trivial reasons, others because of a real desire to live up to a distinguished inheritance. Such men seek for a particular characteristic which may be common to all their forebears.

If we ask ourselves what was Abraham's outstanding characteristic, the answer must be, faith in God and a ready obedience to God's will.

Certainly Abraham did not know all that God had in store for him when he began his journey. He did not even try to find out. It was sufficient for him to obey God's call in confident trust.

The result was that God made his name great and made of him a blessing to all succeeding generations.

COVER: "Abraham Counts the Stars," by E. M. Lilien, 19th century artist, depicts the vision of Abraham in which he is told that his descendants shall be as numerous as the stars of heaven.

Moses

The second great step in preparing the world for the coming of Christ was the revelation that there is a moral law running through the universe, that this is not a world of magic or caprice but one of order.

Again we are indebted to our Jewish forefathers for presenting, under God's guidance, a moral code that has stood the test of the ages. Moses is the first great figure in this stream of moral leaders.

Picture to yourself his task. He was called to weld a slave population, newly escaped from Egyptian bondage, into a self-reliant people. That he accepted the call of God at all attests to his stature.

What did Moses do for the world? He went up into a mountain alone with his God and came down with a moral code—the Ten Commandments.

It is true the code consisted mostly of negative—"Thou shalt not"—commandments, but it was a glorious beginning. Even our Lord, during his Temptation, witnessed to the necessity of being able to say "no" to evil as a prelude to utter consecration to the good.

In the Jewish tradition, through centuries of experience, the Ten Commandments were expanded and interpreted so as to rule every activity of Jewish life, and there were dark chapters in history when the goal of producing "a holy people of a holy god" was lost sight of, when bigotry and apathy or exclusiveness shriveled the souls of men.

But the Law did prepare the way for Christ, who Himself came not to do His own will, but the Father's. Its end was to produce a holy people, obedient to God, who would accept the Christ when He came proclaiming a new law of freedom for sons, not slaves.

Under His leadership, men might escape from the basic slavery of sin. They would know more deeply the God "whose service is perfect freedom", and understand a Son who "became obedient, even to the death of the cross".

COVER: "Moses," a sculpture (c. 1513-1516) by Michelangelo. The two tablets (in this instance following the ancient Hebrew grouping) represent the law.

The Tree of Glory

At the beginning, in the middle, and at the end of time, there stands a tree. On each of these trees is focused the destiny of man: each tree is a symbol of the progress of each one of us, and the three tell the odyssey of mankind as a whole.

In the beginning, in the midst of Eden, there stood the Tree of Knowledge—the tree which was forbidden to Adam and Eve. But the fruit of this tree was good, and the serpent succeeded in his attempt to lure Adam and Eve. By their eating of this fruit, they disobeyed God, aspired to equality with Him, and, for their sin, suffered banishment and separation from God.

In the middle of time, at that point on which all prior events focus and from which all subsequent events take their meaning, there stands another tree. We call this tree at the crux of time, the Cross—the tree of shame which became the Tree of Glory.

The Cross is truly the crux of life. It is so for the whole created order, for by the victory that was won there by our Lord the whole creation was restored once again to communion with God. The Cross is the crux of the lives of individual men and women as well, for by it and by our response to it hangs our hope of salvation.

At the end of time, as St. John describes it in his vision in Revelation, there stands another tree. This, too, is a glorious tree, though not the instrument of our salvation now, but rather the symbol and evidence of it. This is the Tree of Life for the healing of all nations. By its fruit and by its leaves are all men drawn into the community of the blessed.

This tree, then, marks the completion of our spiritual odyssey—from the tree by which men fell, to the tree on which men's salvation was wrought, to the tree under whose branches all nations are gathered in once more.

THE ROAD TO EMMAUS

As we look back to that first Easter day, we sometimes forget that the risen Christ appeared to the disciples in various ways. To some, the revelation He gave of Himself was direct and unmistakable. To others, however, Jesus became known more gradually as He patiently opened their eyes of faith to His resurrection victory.

In his gospel, St. Luke, gives us a unique account of this slower awakening to faith in the risen Lord as he relates what happened on the road to Emmaus. It seems that two from the Lord's company were journeying to this village not far from Jerusalem. While they were talking about the strange and awesome events that had so recently taken place in the holy city, Jesus Himself drew near and joined their conversation. Neither Cleopas nor his companion recognized the Lord in this stranger.

Puzzled at the stranger's apparent ignorance of the happenings of the weekend, the two travelers told the story of Jesus of Nazareth, "a prophet mighty in deed and word . . . which should have redeemed Israel."

As if in answer to their doubt at reports that the crucified Lord had risen from the dead, the stranger reminded them of the promises of God to the people of Israel and how the Scriptures pointed to the Christ's sufferings. Fascinated, the two disciples insisted he spend the night with them, joining them first for supper.

Then came the moment when they knew Him to be their risen Lord: "And it came to pass, as He sat at meat with them, He took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to them. And their eyes were opened, and they knew Him . . ."

We, who also know Him in the breaking of bread, the Holy Eucharist, can give thanks for His coming to us as well. And with our eyes of faith opened, we too can behold God in all of His works, especially in those "... gifts and creatures of bread and wine" which we offer to the Father until the day when the Son shall come again to call us to the eternal banquet of the Messiah in heaven.

CHRIST APPEARS TO THOMAS

Some men have found it difficult to accept as fact the physical resurrection of Jesus Christ. St. Thomas was one of the first to experience this difficulty. For this reason, succeeding generations have often found him a sympathetic figure.

We know very little about this man, who has given his name to the phrase, "doubting Thomas", except that he was one of the twelve apostles and that he refused to believe in the resurrection of Jesus Christ until he could, "see in His hands the print of the nails . . . and thrust my hand in His side."

Tradition tells us that St. Thomas was martyred in India, where he won numerous converts to Christianity. He is India's patron saint, but we have no further record of him in Holy Scripture after the famous encounter with his crucified and risen Lord.

The apostles and their converts knew that Jesus was the Son of God because God had raised Him from the dead. They and many others had seen the risen Christ, talked with Him and eaten with Him. St. Thomas, however, had to have his faith confirmed by tangible evidence.

Those of us who feel a kinship with St. Thomas in his doubting, in his demand for "proof", need to recall our Lord's words after Thomas had seen and finally accepted without further question his risen Lord:

" . . . because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen and yet have believed."

Christ, by His presence and love, brought Thomas from doubt to faith. We, when in disbelief or doubt, may know that the same Lord is present to bring us to faith.

AT THE LAKESHORE

It happened at dawn, after they had fished all night and had netted nothing.

The figure on the lakeshore shouted, "Have you caught anything?"—the way fishermen always have and always do: "Any luck?"

When they had to answer, no, he called again, "Cast off the other side of the boat."

And when they did this they "found they could not haul the net aboard, there were so many fish in it."

Then John, recognizing Him, said, "It is the Lord!"

Then Peter dived from the boat and swam to shore to Him. And then the other six fisherman Apostles rowed in, towing the net and the catch.

It made quite a fish story. And, since they were fishermen, they counted the haul: 153; they marked that they were "big ones"; and when they had the catch ashore, breakfast was already prepared: toast and broiled fish.

Long afterwards John put it into the permanent record, and so it comes to us.

The resurrection appearance of Christ to His apostles on the Galilean lakeshore, narrated in the 21st chapter of St. John's Gospel, is perhaps the most utterly ordinary of all His post-Easter appearances. No wishfully pious theorizing could ever just have made it up. A sentimental spirituality might have conceived the Lord perched in mid-air over a rose bush or wrapped in rainbow light; not a Lord present in something as down-to-earth as a fishing trip, even to the extent of cooking breakfast for seven hungry men.

Yet to His own the Risen One came, still caught up in the midst of the commonplace, everyday movements of life, and met them there.

Just as you could expect of a God who entered our common place in a manger in a stable. Just as you can expect of a God who enters our every day in bread and wine.

The Earliest Easter Story

In his first letter to the Corinthians, St. Paul writes to them of the resurrection of Jesus Christ (I Cor. 15:3-7) and thus provides us with the earliest account of that event. The Apostle does not say when or where the appearances of which he wrote took place. He only says that after His death and resurrection Jesus appeared to Peter, to the rest of the disciples, to a group of some 500 people, this last an event which St. Paul alone mentions.

Although his source for his account of the Resurrection must have been the experience of other people, St. Paul intimates that these experiences can be checked when he goes on to say in his epistle that most of the 500 to whom Christ appeared are still alive at the time of his writing.

Thus in the first century, before the Gospels were written, we have an account of Christ's resurrection, that central event which was the cornerstone of the Apostles' preaching and has always been a cornerstone of the Christian faith.

St. Paul continues his account with an affirmation of an appearance of the risen Lord that he himself experienced. From other sources we are familiar with this, the story of his conversion on the road to Damascus.

Unfortunately St. Paul does not tell us what the resurrection appearances of Christ were like. From our knowledge of his own experiences—which he likens to that of others—we can surmise, however, that they must have been real, objective encounters with the Risen Lord. Something tremendous indeed must have happened to change the frightened men who fled from Calvary into a fearless band, able to teach on the street corners of the very city where the Man whose praises they sang had shortly before been executed as a criminal.

St. Paul's account proclaims that the vitality of the experience of the Risen Lord is based on personal encounter. This is equally true today. The events the Gospels portray may indeed be capable of historical proof, but they speak to us not on that basis but on the basis of personal encounter with Jesus Christ.

COVER: "The Conversion of St. Paul," by the Spanish artist, Caravaggio, painted in 1601. Here the striking use of light captures the dramatic action of the event.

O GOD, who, through the preaching of the blessed Apostle Saint Paul, hast caused the light of the Gospel to shine throughout the world; Grant, we beseech thee, that we, having his wonderful conversion in remembrance, may show forth our thankfulness unto thee for the same, by following the holy doctrine which he taught; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

WAITING UPON GOD

Patience has often been described as the most difficult virtue. Human beings do not like to wait. Most of us are impetuous and want "to get on with the job."

Surely impatience must have been an overpowering emotion assailing the hearts of the disciples as they witnessed the Ascension of their Master. All the doubts and fears which had overcome their hopes on Good Friday had long since vanished in the blinding joy of Easter and the great forty days. Now they knew that the God of their fathers had indeed "visited and redeemed his people". How they must have longed to start in on the task which had been enjoined upon them, the task of teaching and baptizing. Surely they must have felt that more than any other men in history they were provided with everything necessary for their great task.

Yet their Lord said to them "tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high."

This speaks to a common human condition. Few of us want to wait for God's time. We want to do things in our own way and in our own time, which usually is just as rapidly as possible. But the Christian life should have about it always something of this period of waiting upon God. God does not come to us only in moments of crisis or of action. He comes in times of peace and calm as well. We often need times of assimilation and of preparation. The life of the true Christian is always characterized by "waiting upon the Lord," waiting patiently for God's promise, waiting it may be, for an additional outpouring of the spirit.

Our temptation is to regard the time of waiting as time lost, time wasted. But it need not be so, if we wait in patience seeking to profit by what God has done for us in the past and confident that the future which He holds out to those who are faithful embraces such good things as pass man's understanding.

Pentecost

Whitsunday is the Church's commemoration of one of the dramatic moments in human history. A little band of men was gathered together in an upstairs room. None of them was the sort we would think of as a leader in his community. They were not learned, not wealthy, not popular, not powerful. They were bound together not by ambition but by devotion to Jesus. He had told them to come together to pray and wait. And they obeyed.

Then something happened. None of them was ever able to describe it adequately. One said it was as though they had been burned by fire. Another said it was as if they had been shaken by a tornado. They could not describe it, but they knew what it was. God the Holy Ghost had seized upon them. He came among them and filled them with His power and gave them His wisdom. This they knew with certainty, and their lives bore it out.

To those ordinary men, now filled with our Lord the Spirit, was entrusted the greatest of all human endeavors. The ministry of rescue which Jesus had completed in His Ascension was now to be carried through the ages to all men. God came to us in a single perfect Man. Beginning with Pentecost He continued that coming in a community of sinners.

The fulfillment of Pentecost is the history of that community of sinners. In every generation the Church has suffered persecution from outside and corruption from within. Through the power of the Holy Ghost she has survived these persecutions and has been cleansed of corruption.

Through twenty centuries the Church has manifested a wisdom and a vitality for which Pentecost is the only possible explanation.

The Creed of Saint Athanasius — Excerpts

Now the Catholic Faith is this: that we worship one God in Trinity, and the Trinity in Unity; neither confusing the Persons, nor dividing the substance.

For there is one Person of the Father, another of the Son, another of the Holy Ghost.

But the Godhead of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost is all one, the glory equal, the majesty co-eternal.

Such as the Father is, such is the Son, and such is the Holy Ghost . . .

So the Father is God, the Son God, the Holy Ghost God; And yet there are not three Gods, but one God . . .

For like as we are compelled by the Christian verity to confess each Person by himself to be both God and Lord so are we forbidden by the Catholic Religion to speak of three Gods or three Lords . . .

And in this Trinity there is no before or after, no greater or less; but all three Persons are co-eternal together and co-equal.

So that in all ways, as is aforesaid, both the Trinity is to be worshipped in Unity, and the Unity in Trinity.

He therefore that would be saved, let him thus think of the Trinity Furthermore, it is necessary to eternal salvation that he also believe faithfully the Incarnation of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Now the right Faith is that we believe and confess that our Lord Jesus Christ, the son of God, is both God and Man . . .

This is the Catholic Faith, which except a man do faithfully and steadfastly believe, he cannot be saved.”

This creed, ascribed to St. Athanasius, spells out in detail the Doctrine of the Trinity. It was written in the late fourth or early fifth century to clarify and defend the faith of the Church.

While it is not of the same weight of Christendom as the Apostles’ and Nicene creeds, it has long been used in Anglicanism as a hymn in praise of the Triune God. In the Church of England it is always used on Trinity Sunday.

COVER: Abstract presentation of the Trinity. The equilateral triangle is symbolic of the three persons in the Godhead. The circle is symbolic of infinity and unity.

Memorial Day

In our time, the observance of Memorial Day has become a rather half-hearted affair. The police and fire departments, the Scouts and the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs may manage some sort of a parade, and some eminent civic leader will deliver himself of a thundering herd of platitudes. But the vast majority of the populace will be working in the yard, or away on a picnic. About all that is really left of the observance is our rather Shinto-like decoration of our ancestors' graves.

Our apathy is due in part, no doubt, to our general reluctance to be enthusiastic about much of anything except our own private pre-occupations. Perhaps even more, our apathy is born of a healthy scepticism for that splendid oratory which graces the day. In 1964, we are a little weary of hearing about wars to bring peace. Somehow the issues that have been stated so loud and long on this day are not the issues that Memorial Day raises and we are, however dimly, uneasy in these grand evasions. The "American Way of Life" and "democracy" and "those who have not died in vain" do not seem, as things have worked out, to stack up with the misery, and the heart-break, and the savagery, and the seeming futility which death in war brings.

Perhaps the very establishment of Memorial Day itself, among a generation now dead, is more to the point than all the fine phrases to which we wearily listen. The story is, in outline, a very simple one. In those first awful years following the cessation of hostilities in the War between the States, a group of Southern women made it a practice to place flowers on the graves of a nearby battlefield. In itself this is not remarkable. What is remarkable is that, with the deep wounds still so fresh in their hearts and lives, they were yet able to pay this honor not simply to their own dead, but to the dead whose armies had defeated them.

This quiet, almost unwitting recognition that our allegiances to nation and to causes are superseded by even greater allegiances to our brothers under God is the forgotten message of Memorial Day. In our time, this is a far more urgent — and a far more winning — message than that of the rolling phrases which we hear year by year.

COVER: "Over the Top," is a sketch by Kerr Aby, a U.S. artist in France during World War I. Crossed palms are a symbol of martyrdom and victory. Collect is found on page 42 of the Prayer Book.

Memorial Days.

ALMIGHTY God, our heavenly Father, in whose hands are the living and the dead; We give thee thanks for all those thy servants who have laid down their lives in the service of our country. Grant to them thy mercy and the light of thy presence, that the good work which thou hast begun in them may be perfected; through Jesus Christ thy Son our Lord. Amen.

SUNDAY NOTES

This Sunday Father Scott has been invited to All Saints Church, Fallsington to present the mission of St. Mary's to the University and City.

Next Sunday, Harold Jenkins of our congregation, who is entering his senior year at General Theological Seminary in New York, will be the guest preacher here in his home parish at the 10:30 a.m. service. We hope many will be here to greet him. The rest of the summer he will be working under the direction of the Rev. John Schultz, Rector of Trinity Church, Ambler.

WEEKDAY WORSHIP

Evening Prayer and Intercessions daily
Monday through Friday at 5:00 p.m.

The Daily Eucharist will be celebrated as follows: Monday and Wednesday, 7:30 a.m.; Tuesday 11:00 a.m. in the C.A.; Thursday, 5:30 p.m.; Friday, 12:15 noon; Saturday, 8:30 a.m.

COURTSHIP

Despite Tennyson's assurance that "in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love", falling in love and courtship are serious and difficult realities which require the insights of the Christian faith if they are to be an appropriate prelude to marriage.

The task of growing in knowledge and affection for another human being is the wonderful opportunity which courtship brings. It is a necessary and valuable interim period between the first blush of love and the final covenant of marriage.

Preferences may vary as to minor matters regarding the social niceties of courtship, but the fundamental relationship remains the same: two people are deciding, "Do I want to give myself in marriage to this person?"

Certainly the most important duty a couple has to perform during this period of courtship is to take an honest look at themselves and at each other as potential spouses and parents. While romantic love is a wonderful mutual discovery of nearly every couple during courtship it is not by itself a sufficient basis upon which to found a lifelong relationship. What is required to safeguard the future of both lovers is that candid, mature look at the facts about themselves which may save them from later sorrow.

With this in mind, the Church requires that every couple seeking the Church's blessing of a marriage shall receive counselling from their pastor. Too often this counselling is delayed until the couple has all of their plans firmly in mind. Yet the task of such a counsellor is to point out the stubborn realities of religious differences, family finance, personal shortcomings and a host of other stumbling blocks to nuptial peace.

By his sympathetic insight the pastor can frequently bring many problems to a happier solution and let Christian common sense enlighten and guide the blessings of love.

MARRIAGE

June is traditionally the month of weddings. As we share in the joy of the wedding celebration and watch the shining faces of the bride and groom, do we often think of this somber statistic: one out of every four marriages in the United States ends in divorce?

These figures seem to indicate that we have lost sight of what marriage involves, and particularly of what this unique relationship means in the eyes of God.

Holy Scripture gives us several clear insights into the marriage covenant. Perhaps the most beautiful and famous is from the Epistle to the Ephesians where St. Paul compares the relationship between husband and wife to that between Christ and His Church:

"The husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church . . . Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church and gave himself for it." And so it is within this framework of marriage as a divine institution that we must examine the purposes of marriage in our society.

The natural end of marriage is procreation. The love that draws a man and woman into marriage has a creative and sacrificial quality which is best fulfilled in parenthood. Marriage, therefore, is not an end in itself. It is a united ministry to others, and for most couples the first of those "others" are their own children. There is no greater Christian undertaking than the ministry of parenthood.

Behind parenthood, of course, is one of the most powerful forces that draw men and women together in marriage, the drive of sexual desire. This is a healthy, normal, God-given part of our nature which can be a source of deep fulfillment. Quite apart from its creative power it can strengthen the tender spiritual love between husband and wife and refresh and enrich their whole relationship.

All marriages are not blessed with children. Parenthood may enrich marriage but it will not sustain it. Neither will sex. In the daily living of husband and wife, what will matter most is that they are true and loyal friends.

Upon all these purposes of marriage our Lord has set His seal of permanence: "Those whom God hath joined together let not man put asunder."

COVER- Intertwined rings enclosed in a circle are symbolic of the marriage union. The Christogram is derived from Christ's name in Greek. Text is from Ephesians 5:31.

The Christian Behind the Wheel

When is a man most dangerous? It's when he's behind the wheel of an automobile. It is the machine age, and not the atomic age, which has given man his most lethal instrument, the automobile. Atomic and hydrogen bombs rain death and destruction when men provoke war. Automobiles bring pain, destruction and death in the course of every ordinary day.

It is not that the automobile is an infernal machine. It is a wonderful machine, certainly within the providence of God, and it has been one of our greatest boons. But it is a machine, and like all devices of human making, the good or evil it can perform depends upon the disposition of the person who uses it. In most traffic accidents, the guilty party is man, not machine; mind and not motor; reflex and not roadway. It was human error which killed or maimed more than 38,000 men, women and children in only one of America's largest cities last year.

When Christians face up to the statistics of highway safety, it should give sufficient cause for a re-reading of the Sixth Commandment. It is not only the malice aforethought, anger or passion that gave rise to murder; nor are guns, knives or poisons the only instruments. Sane, peace-loving, kindly Christians who want to save a few seconds, who get wrapped up in conversation, or who just don't think, turn out to be man-killers in the twinkling of an eye. When the horrible tragedy has happened, they are sorry beyond words, but they have killed and sinned against God and their neighbor.

As Christians, we know that we live in a sacramental universe. God's whole creation is visible and tangible sign of His goodness toward us. His benefits are available to us whenever we use any of His gifts in the way He intends. Even the automobile can be redeemed from tragedy to joy if we use it rightly. If we remember each time we sit behind the wheel that we hold in our hands a machine which God has given us for good, we will not abuse it. If we remember that the other motorists and pedestrians, no matter how foolishly they drive or walk, are God's creatures, too, our love-our-neighbor policy will include our driving.

Many Churchmen display St. Christopher medals in their automobiles to indicate their reliance upon his patronage for their safety on the road. This is a good custom, and the practice can serve a double purpose. When we look at such a medal, we are reminded of God's constant care. It can remind us, too, to pray that we may drive in such a way as always to carry Christ, and not death, to all we pass along our way.

St. Peter... Andrew's Gift to God

It is possible to imagine the Christian Church starting out minus almost any one of the 12 apostles, but not minus St. Peter. Of the original 12, Peter was the apostle; he was the man in whom Christ saw those traits of character which grace could make into an unshakable bedrock of faith; he was the captain on whom Christ bestowed the name Petros, "Rock".

Yet without Andrew there would have been no Peter — only a fisherman named Simon, living out an obscure life in Galilee.

The Gospel relates that it was Andrew who met Christ first, who knew Christ first, who first was Christ's disciple, sent to him by St. John Baptist. And then it says that when Andrew himself had found our Lord, "the first thing he did was to find his brother Simon" and "he brought Simon to Jesus".

The reason Andrew could bring Peter to Christ was that Andrew had already found and followed Christ himself. This is the secret of all Christian influence, direct personal knowledge of Jesus Christ, a living relationship with Him. Compared with Peter, Andrew was a very ordinary person, but an ordinary person in whose heart, in whose faith, and in whose life the Presence of Christ was evident.

It is a Presence, and not talk, or clever explanations, or theological arguments, which still today attracts brothers to Christ by showing to them the Lamb of God whom we have followed. The story of how Peter met our Lord is our evidence that it is exactly the ordinary people of the Church who can be tremendous successes for Jesus Christ.

On St. Peter's Day we give thanks for the life and work of one of the greatest of all God's servants. But we also remember that this life and work were possible only because someone else presented Peter to Jesus, someone as ordinary as we are, but someone who had himself first found the Lord.

Recreation

In the United States we refer to "taking a vacation". In Europe people say they are "taking a holiday". But whichever phrase is used, what is usually meant is the same: an opportunity to "take time off", either from daily work or from a customary routine, for a change of scene and activity.

The history of holidays is the history of holy days. In the Jewish calendar every seventh day was a Sabbath of rest. Every seventh year, even the ground was allowed to rest.

From this background the Christian Church made its holy days not only days when the faithful came together to offer praise to God, but also holidays, when the laborer could rest from his labor. Before the advent of the 40-hour week (with annual vacations with pay), such holidays were often the only opportunity the working man had for a rest.

That we all need to relax and rest was recognized by our Lord when He said: "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest awhile."

Here He was reminding us that we are to be good stewards not only of our money but of our time, at rest as at work. Time used for rest, renewal and refreshment is truly time used for recreation, the true meaning of which is "re-creation".

Today, our notion of a holiday is likely to be mostly an opportunity to get away—the faster the better. We need only to read the newspaper accounts of the holiday death toll on the highways to realize how far we have come from thinking of a holiday as a time for rest and re-creation.

A vacation—or holiday—that drains our strength and energy or leaves us temporarily bankrupt not only defeats its purpose—which is recreation—but is an unholy use of the time God has given us.

VACATIONS

Father Chapman is away for July; his address has been requested; it is: Box 48, Halcott Center, New York.

Father Scott will be on vacation in August.

CULT AND CULTURE

The words "cult" and "culture" are even more closely related than they sound. A people's cult is its way of worship. A people's culture is the whole body of its moral, spiritual and material development.

One of the marks of a vital and integrated society is a coherence between cult and culture. A cult swathed in tradition and bound by custom alone soon withers and becomes archaic. A culture without a cult decays and dies.

The cult of Christians and the culture in which we live in the present day seldom seem to be saying the same thing. There are many signs of this inconsistency, and many remedies are suggested.

More than anything else, these times demand a reunion of cult and culture. If our contemporary culture is to live and grow, it must be rooted in the only true ground of life and growth, the faith and hope and love that are the substance of the Christian cult. If the Christian cult is to be relevant, it must be prepared to bless and use the arts and crafts of living men.

The gulf between the Christian cult and the contemporary culture may be wide and deep, but a bridge still spans it. This bridge is art: not just the art that ornaments, exalts and dignifies the unholy present from out of a hallowed past, but the art that expresses, reflects and symbolizes the human pilgrimage here and now.

Art can be a sacramental means through which the culture's ultimate meaning is discerned in the cult and by which the cult elevates the culture into the light of the eternal.

The Affluent Society

"There was a rich man who was clothed in purple and fine linen and who feasted sumptuously every day. And at his gate lay a poor man named Lazarus, full of sores."

Lazarus was not asking much. A few crumbs from Dives' table would have been gratefully received. But Dives went his way.

Later in the Parable, when Dives wound up in torment with a wide gulf separating him from Lazarus, it is very possible he excused his former conduct by saying in all honesty, that he had no intention of being cruel. He simply had not seen Lazarus at his door.

Dives and Lazarus are creatures of two different worlds. Dives is affluent. Purple and fine linen and rich food—these have become the world in which he lives. It is not his wealth but his absorption with his world that makes his story a warning to us all.

The danger in our society does not lie in the possession of wealth, for, by Biblical standards, we are all rich. The danger lies, rather, in our being so charmed with the products of our world, fine linen, rich food, gadgets, goods and services, that we "absolutely cannot get along without" them. We become engrossed with the products of nature and forget the products of grace. The world in which we live becomes a man-made world in which we exclude—in practice if not in fact—those things we do not like.

The Gospel does not condemn "affluence" as such. Our Lord did not tell all rich men to become paupers for His sake. The Gospel, however, does warn us again and again of the dangers we face in this world of our own making, a world in which God is but a pious afterthought.

In our society of affluence there are billions of people named Lazarus. And, like Dives, we are tempted not to see them. The sight of their sores is disturbing. We would rather not look. We do not intend to be cruel. We simply do not see them as they lie at the gate.

Christian Education

In a child's first years, he comes to feel either that he is surrounded with trustworthy love or that he is alone in a threatening world. Whether he will later learn to respond to the love of God depends largely upon these early experiences. As children grow older, home experiences of discipline and forgiveness pave the way for an understanding of God's judgment and mercy. This teaching is implied in the day-to-day life of the family where Christian education begins.

- Moreover, explicit teaching about God needs to be related to the life of the family. If God is not spoken of in the home frequently and naturally and has no place in the family's life, He is not likely to seem real to the children.

Religious education is not a process of learning facts about God. It is a process of growing into a trustful relationship with God.

Christian education is primarily growth into full realization of two facts: first, the sober fact that things have gone wrong in our relations with God, with other people, and with ourselves; second, the glorious fact that our Lord's sacrifice makes it possible for us to turn about and enables us to break through the barrier of sin which separates us from God and man.

The Church's task of education is not merely a program to teach children from kindergarten through high school. It is a program for people of all ages, a program to help and supplement the religious education which goes on in families from generation to generation.

Long before a child is born, the Church begins his religious training. The first step is the education of those who are his parents; teaching Christian marriage, baptism and family relationships, and the need for and availability of God's help.

In later years the responsibility of the Church is to see that childish ideas of God are gradually replaced by ideas which are meaningful to mature minds and adequate for adult experience.

Such a program of education is the Church's most urgent job.

The Church and the University

We are told in the first and great commandment to "love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind."

By this commandment the Church is committed to the proposition that the training of the mind, as an instrument for deepening our understanding of and relationship with God, is one of our basic Christian duties.

Historically, universities were born and grew within the context of the Church. Today, however, there could hardly be a wider separation than now exists between the university, which does not care about the Gospel, and the Church, which, for the most part, is still unaware of the magnitude of the separation.

For those who believe that Christ is the Light of the World, the Source of all Truth, the Fountain of Wisdom, this separation is tragic and disastrous for both the Church and the university.

It is no longer sufficient to consider the university world as a prime missionary field, although this it certainly is.

It is no longer sufficient to consider the university as merely a phase in the life of our young people. During these four years they are often faced with an onslaught of new ideas which are presented from points of view inimical to the Gospel. This is not a phase but a critical period in their lives.

On the other hand, we have passed the time when any of us can consider the university as a "godless" institution from which our young people must be "protected." The university is dedicated to the search for truth, and no matter how often or how badly it may stumble, the ideal, the goal is still there. St. Ambrose once said: "Every truth is spoken by the Holy Spirit." We can only assume that God loves the university as much as he loves His Church.

What then is the Church to do? Surely here lies a ministry of reconciliation of the greatest magnitude. Can we really do any better than faithfully obey that "first and great commandment": "Thou shalt love thy Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind"?

The Golden Rule Is Not Enough

During World War II, nearly every citizen became familiar with the word "priority." Whether we wanted to buy a tire or build a house, the Government decreed that we had to get a permit first. Because of the war effort, military needs had priority and had to be met first.

There are always necessary priorities in religion, also. Some attitudes and beliefs are more fundamental than others, even though all may be ultimately important in the complete context of faith. Our Lord Jesus Christ expressed this very clearly when He answered the lawyers' question: "Master, which is the great commandment in the law?"

Jesus replied, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment."

Our Lord thereby established the priority of our devotion to God. Only then does He add, "And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

After we have humbly acknowledged our total dependence upon our Creator, Redeemer, and Sustainer, the second commandment follows naturally and inevitably. The whole-hearted response of faith we make towards God changes the way we look at ourselves and our neighbors. Only after we have dedicated heart, mind, and soul to the Lord God can we begin to accept ourselves and others with respect and charity.

The Golden Rule was never meant to stand alone or in contrast with the "first and great commandment." Instead, the love we have for our neighbor and ourselves comes as a divine gift to us, something given in return for that total offering we make to God when we heed Christ's commandment to love and serve Him with priority.

MUTUAL RESPONSIBILITY

Most of us think we know what "missions" are. "Missions," we say, are the way in which those who are well-to-do share their substance with those who are less fortunate. This is done by providing hospitals and schools and by paying the salaries of "missionaries." In short, we think mission is something rich churches do for poor ones.

We, as Anglicans, have been bidden by the Toronto Anglican Congress of 1963 to expand these ideas. The Christian commandment is to love one's neighbor as oneself because of the love of God for us. Christian charity includes mission. We must be aware of our interdependence. Those to whom we "give" have as much to give us as we have to give them. The whole concept of the Church is that it is missionary. Such is the message of the Anglican Congress Document, Mutual Responsibility and Interdependence in the Body of Christ.

The practical implications of this document will be hard for us to realize—in our own thinking, as well as in our practice. We are being summoned to a sharing, not only of money, but of man-power and talent. We are being asked to share without any conditions attached to that sharing. No longer may we go into a foreign country and tell it what to do in the name of Christ. We must simply be there, in love of God and of our neighbor, to help with the work that must be done.

We are called to a new day. The whole world is now a scene of mission. In the past we have accepted challenges to aid others who needed us. We must now see that, in the Body of Christ, we also need them. "Foreign" missions should become as necessary to us as we have been to them in the past.

The document on Mutual Responsibility is a proposal to revolutionize the Anglican Communion. It deserves the prayerful study of every Churchman.

The General Convention

The Sixty-First General Convention of the Episcopal Church opens October 11th with a great service in Kiel Auditorium in St. Louis. Participating in this splendid occasion will be bishops, and deputies, as well as delegates to the Triennial Meeting of the Women of the Church, which meets concurrently with the Convention.

Highlights of the two-week gathering will include three joint sessions of the bishops, deputies, and churchwomen and an Ecumenical Dinner for 1,500 persons, scheduled for Wednesday, October 14.

The problems, reports, and questions facing this triennial assembly of the Church will be contemporary and urgent. Yet the principle of an elected body of churchmen gathering to legislate for their communion is one which has long been established in Christendom.

Ever since the first councils of the early Church, periods of representative government have always been characterized by spiritual reform, missionary zeal, and renewed interest in responsible social action. A representative form of ecclesiastical government has been part of the heritage of Anglicanism for centuries, and each province or national church within the Anglican Communion shares this tradition.

In the United States, the Episcopal Church's governmental structure is similar to that of our federal government. The House of Bishops corresponds to the Senate, and the House of Deputies to the House of Representatives. An equal number of priests and laymen from each diocese and missionary district make up the membership in the House of Deputies.

As the Convention discusses the Church's budget, canon law, the admission of new dioceses, or proposed changes in the liturgy, the voices of both the clergy and laity are heard. As in any deliberative assembly, timidity, inaction, or ill-considered decisions may result on occasion. Still, the unfortunate risks of democracy are, in the long run, preferable to the "safety" of ecclesiastical authoritarianism.

COVER: Symbolic representation of General Convention. Superimposed on the seal of the Episcopal Church is the bishop's staff, representing the House of Bishops, and the gavel, representing the House of Deputies.

FATHER CHAPMAN

Fr. Chapman is attending the annual National Conference of the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity, meeting in St. Louis and coinciding with the opening of the triennial General Convention of the Episcopal Church, whose deliberations will continue through October 20th. Fr. Chapman will be back on Tuesday this week.

SINGERS?

Aside from the choir where additional candidates will be welcome, a group is interested in singing more fully the propers and ordinary of the Eucharist. Present thinking is to get together for this purpose at the eight o'clock Sunday Eucharist, but before any final decision is made, we will want the interested persons to meet together with the clergy. Chester Bishop will function as the clearing house for this project. Please contact him. (EV2-0905).

MORE NOTES FOR NEWCOMERS

In an effort to answer questions by many of our newcomers about practices at St. Mary's, we turn to the Eucharistic vestments. They are six in number. The alb is the full length, white tunic derived from the common clothing of the first century Mediterranean world. It symbolizes the new life in Christ in the same manner as the white baptismal garment. The cord or girdle worn around the waist is quite utilitarian, but symbolizes the strength of chastity, the dedication of one's physical body to Christ. The white linen collar or scarf at the neck is first placed over the head and represents the helmet of salvation "with which St. Paul bids the Christian arm himself." The maniple worn on the left arm derives from a hand towel and symbolizes the priestly function of serving the Lord's people at the Lord's Table. The stole derives from the Jewish prayer shawl worn around the neck, and symbolizes our obedience to Christ whose yoke we put on. The chasuble derives from a dress coat worn by Roman citizens of rank, but symbolizes the seamless robe for which the soldiers cast dice at the foot of the cross where Christ made sacrifice for us. Together with the chalice veil and burse, the maniple, stole and chasuble are made in the colors of the feast or season (next week).

All six vestments deriving from clothing of the ancient world symbolize the continuity of the Church in the Communion of Saints, world without end.

ST. LUKE

In his second letter to Timothy, St. Paul describes the situation in which he finds himself. Deserted by his friends, left behind by his associates, and very much alone and lonely, he writes: "Only Luke is with me."

It is significant that the man who stayed with Paul was Luke, a Greek who had chosen to throw in his lot with a group of strange and less-well-educated people, followers of a new cult that was rising in Palestine. That Luke, who stayed, was a physician, is significant, too. As so often happens today, the doctor stayed in places and with people because they needed his attentions, and not because they were "the right people."

But most significant of all was that while Luke was a man of medicine, well-educated and a man of compassion, he was also a man who loved God more than he loved himself. And he was aware that often the best medical treatment for any disease is our acknowledgement that we are human beings and need God's love.

Disease is a mark of this human-ness and is part of our heritage. The mark of the believer is the way he faces this heritage. Paul used it—and he was often ill—as a reminder that he owed whatever he was to God who made him. Luke used illness and his skill as a physician as proof that God loves his children and accepts them with all their faults, weaknesses and illnesses. Luke, loving God with his skill as a doctor, received from God a returning love which he gave freely to all who needed it.

Luke is an example of humility and love in the face of sickness and disease. He gave his life in service to those who were ill; and in doing so, he showed that he gave the glory to God, not to himself.

Disease is not given to us as punishment so much as a time of trial, a time to learn, and a time to give of ourselves to those around us. The person who in his own illness can find ways of using his weakness to help others in difficulty, by ministering to his family and perhaps even to the doctors and nurses around him, can claim true kinship with St. Luke as a child of God and a follower of Christ.

F. Mendelssohn

"...And here we offer and present unto thee..."

Those men and women who have an awareness that this is God's world are fortunate indeed. For them religion is a vivid reality. They are aware that the air they breathe, the ground on which they walk, the children they love, even the skills and ability which enable them to gain comforts and security for themselves, have all been freely given to them by God.

There is no need to speak to them of "stewardship," budgets, or an Every Member Canvass. For them there is no problem of "giving" to the Church. They do not consider that they "give" but only that they "return" to God all they can, in worldly goods, in love and service.

But even for those of us who are less fortunate, there is the very human desire to want to pay our way. Few of us want to be charity patients or parasites.

It is the conviction and practice of the Episcopal Church that its "goods" are not for sale. There are no price tags on baptisms, Holy Communions, nor even for instruction for our children in Sunday school. Our clergy are not paid salaries to perform so many sacraments or to preach so many sermons. They are given "livings" in order that they may devote all their time to the work they trust God has called them to do, and which the Gospel of Christ clearly commands. Church buildings and other equipment are but tools and conveniences for more effective work and worship.

The amount of support given to the ministry and to the buildings and equipment is determined voluntarily by us. Our elected vestry determines how much we will spend locally in our parish. Our delegates to Diocesan Convention decide how much each local church should spend for the Church's work in the Diocese. Our General Convention, to which our Diocese sends deputies, determines the budget for the National Church.

The entire process is democratic and self-imposed. There is no secret, irresponsible and far-off "star chamber" to assess us; no bishop who imposes a financial burden.

To guide us in determining how much our support will be, there is only our own sense of gratitude, or perhaps just our enthusiasm for what the Church is trying to do, or possibly just our desire as self-respecting members to pay our own way.

If we remember our Lord's words, "Freely ye have received, freely give," we shall have our answer.

We offer and present unto thee, O Lord ...

All Saints' Day

The Feast of All Saints is the day the Church remembers men and women whose names the world has largely forgotten. Some of them were smart, but they were not quite brilliant enough to prevent our forgetting them. Some of them were courageous, but they were not quite brave enough for us to remember them as heroes. Some of them were stupid, but they were not quite stupid enough for us to think of them as quaint.

These are the "holy common people of God." They are common not because they are drab, but because they are a cross-section of humanity. Kings and bishops, slaves and acolytes, every walk of life is represented. From the first century to the twentieth, hundreds of thousands of them have fought under Christ's banner against sin, the world, and the devil, and have now come to share in Christ's triumph.

It is in this battle of Christian love against evil that we see another sort of commonness in the saints. There are only ten Commandments to be broken, and there are only seven gifts of the Holy Spirit to receive. Thus their failings are the same as our failings, and the power which was available to them is available to us.

Their ambitions, joys, frustrations, and fears were all the same as ours. They got just as hungry and just as tired. Their minds wandered in church, and they lost their tempers with their children. Their loved ones died and they missed them, and their husbands or wives often failed to understand them.

But it is from these things which we have in common with them that their uncommonness begins to emerge. The saints lived ordinary lives, but they lived them with extraordinary conviction that Jesus Christ had a claim to make upon those lives. Their lives were saintly in that they were offered to God, consecrated, set apart, made uncommon. Their lives were sacramental, common things given to God in order that God might use them as symbols and as instruments of His love.

The great saints, the wonderful heroes of Christian history, ought not to be forgotten. But an army consisting solely of generals would be in trouble. Those whom we remember on the feast of All Saints are the common folk of the Christian army, those who, unrecognized, carried Christ's love into the seemingly insignificant places where all battles are really won. These are the holy common people of God, those who have "come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." (Eph. 4:13)

The Politician's Vocation

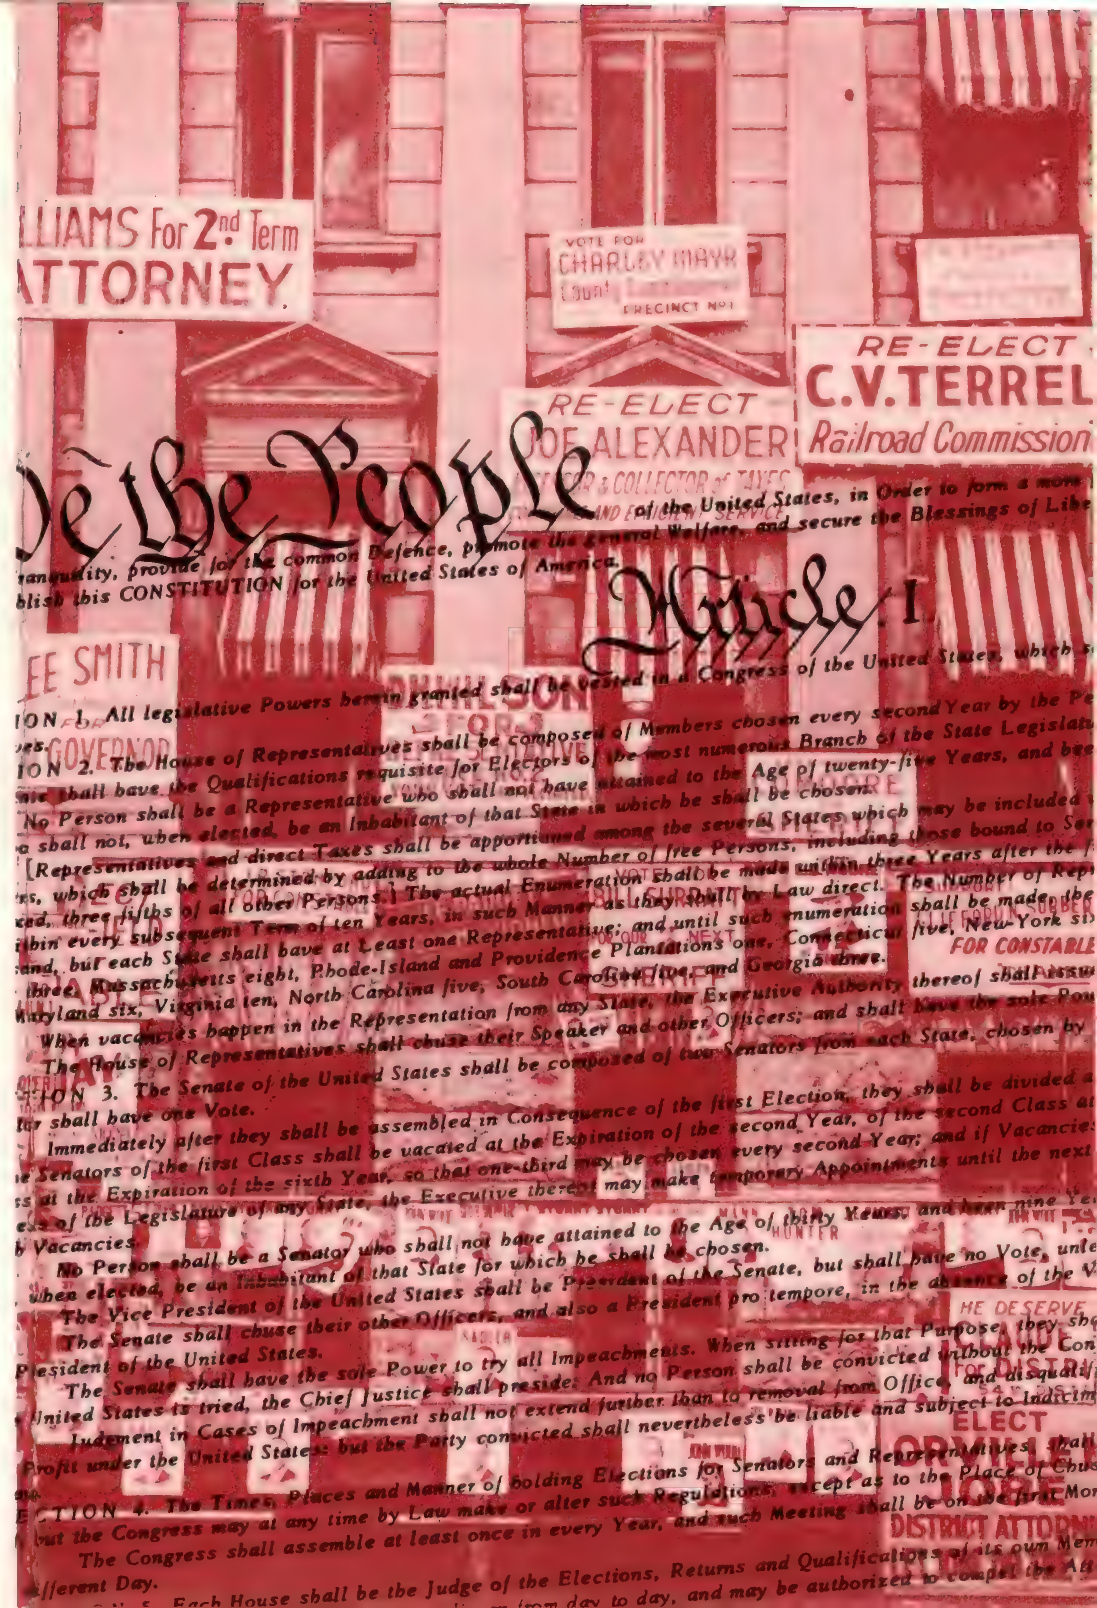

The Prayer Book offices of Morning and Evening Prayer contain "A Prayer for the President of the United States, and all in Civil Authority."

Often, perhaps especially when the dust of the political battlefield is just beginning to settle and the wounds of the combatants have not yet healed, we find the words of these prayers unreal. How, we wonder, can we honestly refer to mere politicians as "servants" of Almighty God, and "faithfully and obediently honour them" as His "ministers"?

Yet the meaning of the prayer is unmistakable. The men and women to whom the authority and responsibility of government have been given are not to be dismissed scornfully as "mere politicians." No Christian has the right to be cynical about politics, for it is a vocation of genuine worth in God's sight. Nor can we legitimately refuse to support by our prayers and respect those officials with whom we are in disagreement. Even if we count ourselves part of the loyal opposition and are not in agreement with majority opinion on various issues or personalities, we owe our co-operation and encouragement, as well as our criticism, to those in public office, because they are stewards of the common good.

It has been rightly said that a public office is a public trust. But one who is called to exercise the art of government is responsible not only to the people and the Constitution of the land. The politician's vocation to rule and govern wisely and well comes ultimately from the divine Ruler and Governor of all creation. Anyone who is set in authority must be guided in his exercise of it by the voice of God, not simply the voice of the people, for the two are not always saying the same things.

Here is where there is no substitute for an informed Christian conscience guiding the words and deeds of those to whom we entrust the sacred responsibility of our government.

Son of Man

"What is man that thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that thou dost visit him?" asked the psalmist.

At the beginning of Israel's thought, the "son of man" meant simple "man." But as the concept of God's righteousness and man's sin unfolded, the words "son of man" came to mean far more.

The Son of Man was the true Israel. In the Book of Daniel, he becomes the avenger of God, sent from heaven to vindicate the righteousness of the King.

In the New Testament, our Lord applies this title in both these meanings when He says, in speaking of the last day: "You shall see the Son of man coming in clouds of great glory."

Then He goes on to give it another, even newer meaning, when He asks those few who followed Him: "Whom do you say that I, the Son of man, am?"

A figure of majesty, and a figure of humility: the two are apparently contradictory. Yet they are not. Christ reigns over all of creation. We look for His coming in glorious majesty. We know Him as the judge of thought, word and deed, and as the vindicator of righteousness for all mankind.

Yet He is more than judge, and other than judge. He is also The Man, who has lived His life among other men, who has known their strengths and weaknesses, their temptations and triumphs. He does not simply stand apart, identified with some abstraction called "man" or "human nature." Rather, He is The Man who identifies Himself with every man, in his power and in his weakness.

The psalmist continues: "Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, to crown him with glory and worship."

Any man may well puzzle over these words. He will understand them only when he comprehends that the true Son of man is also the Son of God who will vindicate God's cause in the life of everyman, day by day, and at the end.

The Messianic Hope

The coming of Christ was prepared for not only through Holy Men, the Holy Law and the Holy Prophets, but also through the hope of earnest Jews for a Messiah.

The Chosen People had suffered a bitter history, personally and nationally. They knew personal failure of holiness in keeping the Law. They knew national defeat by the military might of pagan nations.

They recognized the need for someone greater than Abraham, Moses, and the Prophets to guide them personally. They longed for someone like their ancient King David to rule them righteously, restore their national dignity and vindicate the honor of Jehovah as the only true God.

Where could they find grounds for faith and hope?

Some of them believed deliverance would come through a particular royal personage who would lead a military revolt and gain the throne as a Son of David. But this hope waned as royal families became degraded and corrupt.

Some believed release would come suddenly from heaven through a Son of Man, who, with the hosts of heaven, would annihilate their enemies. But the long silence and inactivity of God in sending such a Son baffled this hope too.

Some thought, perhaps, that the Christ would come as a suffering slave who would offer the supreme example of their long-suffering God, and melt the hearts of the ungodly. But it seemed hopeless to think that pagan nations could ever be moved to sympathy or righteousness.

But through the years the conviction grew that God must do something, and God did.

Jesus of Bethlehem and Nazareth was the Messiah, but not the Messiah the Jews had pictured. God, too, had His plan which was not in all ways the Jews' plan. God's plan for the Messiahship of His Son was so different from that of the Jews that they refused to recognize or accept Him.

God's plan was too big in scope for narrow nationalists who wanted only to lord it over other peoples.

God's plan was too demanding for those who expected God to do it all by magic.

God's plan was too long-range for the impatient; too humble for those who could think only of God's majesty; too merciful for those accustomed to rigorous law.

But Christ was God's Messiah, and "as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God."

COVER: "The Jesse Tree," derived from Isaiah 11:1, depicts the cross rooted in the star of David and thus links Christ with the Old Testament.

THANKSGIVING DAY

1964

THANKSGIVING DAY MORNING PRAYER

and

SOLEMN EUCHARIST

The Hymns to be used respectively at the Procession into the church, the Offertory, and the Procession out of the church are 137, 308 and 140.

At Morning Prayer, the Prayerbook provides for a special Canticle on p.264, which replaces the Venite.

The Psalm is Number 145, p. 520.

The Lesson from the Old Testament is Deuteronomy 26:1-11.

The Canticle is the Te Deum, p. 10, sung to tune numbers 613 and 617 in the Hymnal (Monk and Croft).

The Collect, Epistle and Gospel will be found on pages 265 and 266.

A celebration of the Eucharist is called Solemn when there are two assistant ministers with the celebrant. The service is also sung in more completeness than is often the case in Episcopal churches. The participation of several clergy in the celebration and the singing have, throughout most of Christian history, been the mark of observance of each Lord's Day and certain other great occasions. The service today incorporates some traditional elements of worship modified by present day Liturgical study and the influence of the Ecumenical Movement that embraces Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox alike.

Celebrant, Deacon and Subdeacon. Earliest Eucharistic worship involved the whole Christian community in a city or village at a single service. At first, the bishop alone was the celebrant assisted by all other clergy present. The three ministers are expressive of the community; a deacon is one who serve or assists, and may be a priest; a subdeacon may be a layman. The celebrant wears the chasuble; the deacon the dalmatic; and the subdeacon, the tunicle. The subdeacon sings the Epistle and the deacon, the Gospel.

Incense. Incense has been common to worship the world over, and is referred to by Old and New Testament alike. For example, Revelation is a book which seems to have a Solemn Eucharistic celebration with incense as the scene upon which its meditations are based. Incense is a gift (presented to the Holy Child by the Wise Men); incense ascends in smoke, and so represents our prayers ("Let my prayer be set forth as the incense" says the Psalmist).

The Bread and Wine are brought out of the congregation's midst because they represent our offering of work, substance and time. Likewise, the money offering is presented directly to the celebrant by a member of the congregation.

The Fracture, or breaking of the bread, follows the whole Prayer of Consecration which concludes with the Lord's Prayer. The celebrant says aloud to the congregation, "The Peace of the Lord be always with you", to which response is made, "And with thy spirit."

The Prayer of Humble Access shall be said together by the congregation, a recommendation of our Standing Liturgical Commission.

The Kiss of Peace is a symbolic gesture of our love for one another which follows the Confession and our declared intention of receiving Holy Communion, the Sacrament of Love and Unity. Those in the sanctuary will give and receive the "Peace" in the ancient form; those in the choir and congregation will give and receive it in the form of the "right hand of fellowship." In both cases, the giver says, "The Peace of the Lord be always with you," and the recipient responds, "And with thy spirit" and then turns to the next person and gives the "Peace." The ceremony begins with the celebrant and passes outward through the whole congregation.

Other questions and comments are invited. It is important for Christians to enter liturgical study and experimentation as one of the avenues of Christian understanding of one another, of our obligation toward God, and of our mission to His world.

The Vestments for the three ministers of the service (the celebrant, the deacon, and subdeacon) are borrowed from St. Mark's Church, 16th and Locust Sts.

Death

The harsh fact of death has appalled men throughout the ages. "If a man die, shall he live again?" So Job's ancient cry echoes through all time, repeating the question that sages and philosophers, from their store of human knowledge and reason, have tried in vain to answer.

Even the Hebrew people of the Old Testament regarded death as a dreary existence in an underworld they called Sheol, or "the pit." With little hope for the future, the author of Psalm 30 wondered, "Shall the dust give thanks unto thee, or shall it declare thy truth?" After the warm and exciting reality of this life, the grave brought only a cold and dismal end of fellowship with God and man.

Although Christian doctrine does not make light of death either, it sees it from a different perspective—the resurrection victory of Jesus Christ. Death is real, and it is often a painful process, both for the dying and for those who are bereft. Yet there is hope for new life beyond death because of the triumph of the risen Lord.

Seen from the vantage point of Christ's resurrection, death becomes something other than the final frustration of all earthly effort.

More than any other happening, death is the event which evaluates our present existence. It is also the gateway to life immortal. By our baptism into the death of Christ, our spiritual death unto sin has already been put behind us. Because we regard the saving death of Jesus as an exodus rather than a finality, our physical death becomes a point of embarkation, not an ultimate destination.

No man, however wise, has ever been able to explain away or mitigate the tragedy of death. Like the question of the origin of evil, the existence of death in God's creation seems beyond our ability to comprehend. But we who have been made God's children in Holy Baptism can confidently trust His paternal love than when we pass through this "gloomy portal," we shall see the Lord of life and death resplendent in His glorious majesty.

This vision, the blessed hope of everlasting life, gives us cause to rejoice with St. Paul, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

COVER: Over the grave is seen the cross of triumph and the crown, both symbols of our Lords' victory over death.

Santa Claus

The pain in the child's eyes was evident. "There isn't any Easter Rabbit, and now there isn't any Santa Claus. I suppose there isn't any God either," he said.

How can the adult world allow the child the joys of fairyland and yet spare him the pain of waking to "reality?" The people who told him of God are the same people who told him of Santa Claus. What, and whom, is he to trust?

There was, of course, a Santa Claus. His name was Nicholas, he was Bishop of Myra in the fourth century, and, in a savage age, he was a protector of children.

Over the centuries "Saint Nicholas" has become "Santa Claus," and is still remembered as a friend of the young. We might tell the child this story, if he is six. But it is a little difficult when he is two, and his beliefs are being formed.

Parents can spare their children, and themselves, a good deal of grief and confusion if they will simply begin with the Christian truth, and then go on to the legend.

The Christian truth is that Christmas is about giving. It is about God's gift. God has given His Son to us. We know what God is like because we see Him in Jesus, and we see Him first as a Baby, in a manger, with the heavens opening to pour glory onto the desert. Christmas is about what God has given. This is what we first establish with the child.

We, as men, wish to show forth God's gift. We do this by thanking Him, and by giving to each other. The importance of the Christmas gift lies in the giving, not in the getting. The child may not understand this, but he will accept his parents' words for it—if they believe it.

In St. Nicholas—whom we remember today as Santa Claus—we have someone who represents all of the giving that we do in the love of God which is present at this holy season. Children differ from one another. But if we begin, in our explanation of Christmas, with God in Christ, and go on from there to Santa Claus, we will at least be on the proper road. We may then, in a child or an adult, even see the joy without the pain.

JUDGMENT

"... And he shall come again, with glory, to judge both the quick and the dead ..."

Until the Incarnation of our Lord, the judgment of God was realized only in the transgression of the Law by the individual, or, historically, in the disobedience of men and nations.

The declared word of God, as found in the first five books of the Old Testament, was both the yardstick for righteousness and the means by which God determined the faithfulness of His people. The judgment of God was to be seen in His continuing intervention in the affairs of Israel, at times to reward and at times to chastise.

The New Testament is primarily concerned with the judgment that comes at the end of history. Divine judgment is closely associated with the final coming of Christ on the Day of the Lord. On this Day, the judgment which we face will be one of impartial justice. Christ knows all, and our puny stratagems and clever rationalizations, which are so familiar to us all, will be of no avail.

"God is not mocked." (Gal. 6:7) In His complete revelation to us, He has shown His love and mercy as well as His justice. He is not indecisive, nor is He vindictive. His loving concern gives each of us the opportunity to amend our lives, to be truly penitent, and to approach His complete righteousness in abiding trust.

As Christians facing judgment, we are most fortunate for we are already living in the life eternal. We already live under the judgment of Christ. Each day is a new opportunity to make amends, to repent, and to cast ourselves upon His mercy.

God's initial act, the Creation, was love. His final act can be nothing less. His judgment is also love.

LESTER DAYS

Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday are the Advent Ember Days. The Prayerbook propers (pp. 260-261) deal with the Church's ministry of reconciliation expressed through Holy Orders and bids our special attention. They are also (p. li) days of fasting, on which the Church requires such a measure of abstinence as is more especially suited to extraordinary acts and exercises of devotion. Any fast is the sacrifice of an act that is good for one that is better.

For example, to give up an extra five minutes of conversation, sleep, TV, or what-have-you for intercessions is an act of fasting and an act of devotion. To give up meat on a fast day is a reminder of our Lord's offering of himself, even to the cross for us, and a means of preparing us to be ready to do likewise. The whole object of fasting is to "put on Christ" in thought, word, and deed.

Heaven and Hell

Both the Old and New Testaments can be interpreted as supporting the belief that Heaven and Hell are locations to which one is consigned after death. Certain medieval concepts have also reinforced man's thinking of heaven and hell in terms of gold-paved streets and fire.

It is a serious mistake, however, to take the symbolic language of the Bible and use it to construct abstract answers in order to satisfy the questions which man would like to ask about such matters. It is sufficient to presume that heaven and hell are states of existence, rather than geographical locations.

Whatever tentative answers one may propose to man's natural curiosity about his life after death, these answers must be based, not on a few isolated biblical texts, but on God's total revelation of Himself in Christ as a God of love.

Of this we may be certain: Heaven is our final and complete reconciliation with God. In the words of St. John, "We shall see Him as He is."

Hell is the complete isolation of one's self and the irrevocable separation of our souls from God. It is the casting of one's soul upon the refuse heap of eternity.

"In my father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you . . . where I am there ye may be also."

In the last analysis, neither our Lord nor the writers of the New Testament were attempting to give pat answers to the philosophical questions man proposed, but were trying rather to awaken within the heart of each man the sense of holy fear and awe before the supreme Judge of all.

COVER: The ansated cross and crossed palms, both symbols of eternal life, are seen in this Coptic stone slab which dates from 5th century Egypt. The prayer is found on page 334 of the Prayer Book.

ALMIGHTY God, with whom do live the spirits of those who depart hence in the Lord, and with whom the souls of the faithful, after they are delivered from the burden of the flesh, are in joy and felicity; We give thee hearty thanks for the good examples of all those thy servants, who, having finished their course in faith, do now rest from their labours. And we beseech thee, that we, with all those who are departed in the true faith of thy holy Name, may have our perfect consummation and bliss, both in body and soul, in thy eternal and everlasting glory; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

SOME MRI POINTS AND THE PASTORAL LETTER

The Bishop's Pastoral Letter which was read to us last Sunday referred to increasing our knowledge and prayers of intercession and thanksgiving for the Church's worldwide fellowships, and commended to our use a new Forward Movement publication: FAR AND NEAR.

The booklets are now available in the Tract Rack, comprising a biblical meditation and notes on a diocese and its work for each day of the year.

Furthermore, through Mary Abraham, our charming Christian friend from India, who is studying at the University and attending St. Mary's, correspondence has been initiated with the Reverend Theodore Tawari of Christ Church Parish and School in Lucknow. Exchange of news and ways of assisting will, it is hoped, become a regular part of our parish letter.

The Anonymous Author

To St. John, Apostle of our Lord, are ascribed several of the New Testament writings. These are the Gospel according to St. John, the Revelation of St. John the Divine, and three general epistles. The Christian ages have witnessed to the fact that these writings in themselves are sufficient monuments to this blessed man.

Strangely enough, St. John's reference to himself in the Gospel bearing his name is always in an anonymous fashion. That is, he leaves his "mark" on the Gospel by some descriptive phrase such as "that other disciple," or "the disciple whom Jesus loved," never actually naming himself.

St. John and his brother St. James, sons of Zebedee, apparently had a reasonable share of the world's goods, as is suggested by their appearance on the scene with "hired servants." St. John was one of those present when John Baptist hailed Jesus as "Lamb of God." The call to follow our Lord came later on when he and James, together with Peter and Andrew, gave up their work as fishermen to become fishers of men.

As the story of his life can be pieced together, we see St. John as one very intimately connected with the great events of Holy Week. He it was who sat next to Jesus at the Last Supper and asked who would betray Him; who gained access to the hall where Jesus was tried before Caiaphas; who alone stood with our Lord's Mother at the Cross; who raced Peter to the tomb at the news of the Resurrection.

White is the color for the Feast of St. John because he alone of the apostles died a natural death. This carries out the tradition that his life was a long one. In his old age, while in exile on the Island of Patmos in the Aegean Sea, he set down the great vision of the Heavenly Jerusalem. This vision, enshrined in the Book of The Revelation of St. John the Divine, served as an encouragement to the persecuted Christians of his time and is the fitting climax of the New Testament.

In his last years, according to St. Jerome, St. John, too enfeebled to walk, was carried to the church where he would habitually address his congregation, saying, "Little children, love one another."

The Acceptable Year of the Lord

When our Lord went into the synagogue in Nazareth and read from the book of the prophet Isaiah, it is significant that He ended His reading in mid-passage with the words “. . . the acceptable year of the Lord,” and omitted the remainder of the verse in which Isaiah also proclaimed “the day of vengeance of our God.”

The Jews who were listening, knew that God's continual gift to mankind was His eternal mercy, but they were also aware that occasions of man's disobedience demanded His judgment.

They knew that the establishing of Israel's homeland after the death of Moses was “the year of the Lord.” They also knew that, under the yoke of Roman rule, they were experiencing the day of vengeance.

Now, when Christ read this passage, He was calling the attention of His people to the fact that God's mercy was still available for their taking. His message was the proclamation of the Messianic Age, the dawning of God's Kingdom in their midst.

Each New Year holds for every one of us the promise of an acceptable year. Each new year provides the occasion not only for new resolution and fresh determination, but also the opportunity to become more aware of the constant grace of God.

The acceptable year of the Lord is the era in which we already live, an era opened by the coming of the Christ. Although, at times, we may experience the judgment of God, it is in His acceptable year that we truly come to know Him.

At the beginning of a New Year we can make a choice. We can rejoice in His Promise, or we may cringe under His judgment. The critical point is the manner in which we react to God's great good news. We become either better or worse. We can never remain the same, once the Gospel confronts us.

Penance

"I don't see how any man can forgive sins. Only God can forgive sins. And anyway, I do not need anyone between me and God. I can go directly to Him."

Such are the objections with which people customarily face the thought of sacramental penance. And, of course, the statements are true. Only God can forgive sins. The question that still remains, but is seldom asked, however, is: how does God forgive sins? A man is not absolved out of thin air, and a good conscience is not achieved by wishful thinking.

Christ left the power of absolution to His Church. The Church, in turn, pronounces this absolution to God's people through His priests. They are men set apart for this purpose: sworn to maintain the secrets of those who come to them, ordained to pronounce the healing word of mercy to those whose souls are torn apart, or hardened, by the thoughts, words and deeds that keep them from God.

At the time of the English Reformation, the Church of England (and, in turn, the Episcopal Church) abolished penance as a compulsory requisite for Church membership. Wisely, however, it was retained as a pastoral office. "If there be any of you, who . . . cannot quiet his own conscience herein, but requireth further comfort or counsel, let him come to me, or to some other Minister of God's Word, and open his grief," reads the second exhortation at Holy Communion.

And from that day until now, men and women have found in these words the encouragement to seek pastoral aid, to open their souls, and to hear the word of Christ's forgiveness proclaimed to them.

The last of the objections to the sacrament of Penance, "I can go directly to God," remains.

But so do these questions: Do you? Is your conscience quiet because you are at peace with God or because you have smothered it? Can you arouse it of yourself, or do you need help? Finally, knowing your sin, are you prepared to accept forgiveness?

Should an individual use sacramental penance? Only his honest answers to these last questions will tell him.

COVER: The keys are symbols of forgiveness and are frequently used to represent Penance.

Marriage

Some years ago a young bride was quoted by the newspapers as saying: "It's so wonderful to be getting married in June, and for the first time, too."

This is an extreme example of a common assumption that marriage is merely a matter of mutual convenience, tinged, if possible, with happiness. If a marriage is successful, we say the couple is "fortunate." If the marriage breaks up, we say it is "too bad."

When asked why marriage should be permanent, we give confused reasons. We plead the well-being of the children; but this argument is good only if there are children. We argue that both people are reasonable and should be able to resolve their differences; but many reasonable people can have differences that simply cannot be resolved. We mention the "good of society;" but people on the verge of divorce care little about society and its good.

The Church has something very different to say about marriage and its permanence. The Church says, first, that marriage is sacramental. Marriage signifies the mystical union that is betwixt Christ and His Church. Marriage shows, in miniature, the relationship between God and His people.

In other words, the Church regards marriage not merely as a contract but as a covenant. A contract is a legal relationship that can be dissolved with the consent of the parties involved (which is how many people regard marriage today). A covenant, which is comparable to the covenant between God and His people, represents the complete giving of each party to the other.

At the beginning of every argument between husband and wife (and there will be arguments between husband and wife) there should be the mutual thought: "God has joined me to this person. We are flesh of the same flesh and bone of the same bone. We are one."

Finally, the Church regards marriage as a vocation. It is to be entered into only when man and woman recognize that God is calling them to this union, and that He also enters the marriage with them.

COVER: The cross and entwined circles are the symbol of Christian marriage while the six water pots recall our Lord's miracle at the wedding feast in Cana. Text from the marriage service, page 300 in the Prayer Book.

Unction

Oil has always been used for its medicinal quality. It is not surprising therefore, to find that our Lord sent out His disciples who "cast out many devils, and anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them."

Our present use of Unction stems from the injunction written by St. James in the fifth chapter of his epistle in which he admonishes his readers to "call for the elders of the church and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord."

It is unfortunate that the centuries between the primitive Church and our present time have obscured the real meaning of Unction. Too often Unction is considered to be a sacrament only for the dying. The administration of Unction is not meant to be "the last rite." As ordered in the Book of Common Prayer Unction is clearly a ministry of healing. The rubric on page 320 begins: "When any sick person shall in humble faith desire the ministry of healing through the anointing . . . or laying on of hands . . ."

The rite itself has no magical power. Rather it is a sacramental rite signifying outwardly and visibly the strengthening, the renewing and the healing of the whole man. Unction is not a substitute for or a rival of medical care but a complement to it.

Our primary responsibility is to keep ourselves fit at all times to meet our Lord. The purpose of Unction is to convey a sacramental grace to one who needs it in illness to "relieve his distress; to release him from sin, and drive away all pain of soul and body . . . and to pray that the blessing of health may be restored to him."

COVER: Symbols of Holy Unction. The five crosses represent the five wounds of our Lord, the vessel represents the oil used in Unction, and the flame indicates the power of the Holy Spirit.

Holy Orders

"It is evident unto all men, diligently reading Holy Scripture and ancient authors, that from the Apostles' time there have been these Orders of Ministers in Christ's Church—Bishops, Priests, and Deacons."

So begins the Preface to the ordinal of the Book of Common Prayer, reminding us of the antiquity and universality of the three-fold ministry in the tradition of the Church. To this day, the Episcopal Church continues to set apart men for the ordained ministry in this way and in no other.

The call to receive Holy Orders is a summons to serve the Lord Jesus Christ in a special way. All Christians are called to share the life of the redeemed and redeeming community through the ministry of the laity. Some, however, are ordained to the distinct office and work of a Deacon, Priest, or Bishop in the Church of God.

Just as Israel was called, not to a position of privilege, but to one of service and responsibility, so a man who is ordained to the sacred ministry must seek always to serve His Lord and Master in humility and dedication.

In order that fit persons shall exercise the historic ministry within this branch of the Catholic Church, the Prayer Book directs that, "no man shall be accounted or taken to be a lawful Bishop, Priest, or Deacon . . . except he be called, tried, examined, and admitted . . . according to the Canons of the Protestant Episcopal Church."

From long experience, the Church has found that a candidate's zeal and willingness to serve must be matched by careful preparation and study before official recognition of his fitness to be ordained can be given.

When the Church, through the Bishop, lays hands upon men duly called and prepared for the sacred ministry, "holy orders" are indeed conveyed to these soldiers of Christ. They are commissioned to serve in the Army of the Living God, a Battalion whose trophies of warfare are "not a jeweled crown, nor a blood stained sword, but theirs by the love of Christ, a kingdom won."

Rule of Life

If they think about it at all, most people associate a Rule of Life with those men and women who have taken up their vocations as monks or nuns.

Whether we realize it or not, we have all adopted a rule of life which is in keeping with our aspirations. Concert pianists practice long and faithfully. Those who seek careers as scientists, or business men, or in the professions, all accept willingly the regimen they must follow, and all would be amazed to be told that they have a rule of life.

The Christian, St. Paul advised, should strive to practice his faith with the same zeal and devotion to excellence that a champion athlete shows toward the mastery of his sport. This advice most of us are reluctant to follow. Even though we realize we could never become an expert guitar player just by buying an instrument and a book of instructions, we blissfully assume that we can know the peace and joy of a Christian life without any of its discipline. It is not surprising that so many of us fall by the wayside.

The reason for consciously adopting a definite rule of prayer, worship and study, is to help us follow a disciplined Christian life. The rule we adopt should be appropriate, of course, for that state of life to which God has called us. A businessman or a farmer may not necessarily keep the same rule as a seminarian or a priest. The vocation of a housewife will necessarily make her rule different from but no less important than that of a nun.

In every case our rule should be realistic. As an athlete starts his training slowly and gradually increases its intensity, so should we first adopt a rule that is possible for us to keep. Our rule should always be there to focus our attention upon the centrality of God's will for daily living.

"Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain."

The Church Militant

The first and primary mark of the Christian Church is that it belongs to Christ, its one invisible Head.

Christian doctrine also states that the Church is more than and other than an earthly society, a mere product of history. The Church is invisible, a spiritual fact, originating and dependent upon the sovereign grace of God. The Church is the whole company of the elect who have been, who are, or who will be, on earth and in heaven.

But the Church is also visible, known and recognized in the world of time and sense. We who are baptized are its members. This visible and institutional form which we, the living, recognize and are members of, is known as the Church Militant.

Life in the Spirit is never disembodied; it is incarnate in a Body whose effective instruments are Word, Sacrament and Ministry. The visible Church, the Church Militant, is God's medium whereby His grace is transmitted in recognizable forms.

The Church Militant, God's army in the world, is a necessary agency of mediation. Man does not think or act in a vacuum. Just as the Being and attributes of God are more readily seen and understood in the Person of Christ, so the "means of grace" provided by God are more easily discerned in the sacramental life which we know as the Church.

It is true that the Church Militant is an earthen vessel, but it holds treasure; nothing less than the riches of the Incarnate Lord.

COVER: People in their everyday pursuits are seen superimposed on the Cross Crosslet, the missionary cross which spreads in all directions.

Saint Mark's Portrait of The Christ

In St. Mark's portrait of our Lord, we find a warm appreciation of the fact that He was truly man. He was sleeping the sleep of the weary when the storm arose on the lake. He looked on the Pharisees with anger. He wondered at the lack of faith among the people of His home town. In the Garden of Gethsemane, He felt distress and dread. He was disappointed. He asked questions for information, even as an ordinary mortal.

We have the touching picture of His taking children into His arms affectionately, when the disciples would have brushed them aside to protect Him in His weariness. When the rich young ruler could not sell all and follow Him, Jesus had an attitude of understanding and generosity.

But above all, as St. Mark sees Jesus He was a man of heroic action. He rebuked the Pharisees and Scribes because of their hypocritical conduct, and cut through the gordian knot of their academic riddles with a sharp logic that was dedicated to the well-being of the common man. He healed people of disease, and, when asked to do so, did it on the Sabbath Day because He saw no good reason to wait. He always met the need of those who asked with swift and adequate action. He set His face in determined and courageous fashion to go up to Jerusalem. He laid down his life in obedience to the Divine Command.

St. Mark gives us his impression of Jesus' heroic effort to carry out the greatest task ever conceived: to set up the Kingdom of God on earth. He tells us in simple and unpretentious fashion how forceful was the impact of the Christ upon the people of His time.

Saint Matthew's Portrait of The Christ

The portrait of our Lord according to St. Matthew has two great emphases. We see Jesus, first, as the great Teacher; second, as the Messiah long expected by the Jewish people.

Whereas St. Mark in his gospel emphasized what Jesus did, St. Matthew records more of what Jesus taught.

He teaches with deep authority, and interprets the Jewish Law with clearness of insight that astonishes His followers. He takes His listeners away from the confusion and grind of community life, and teaches them by the side of a lake or upon a sloping hillside.

In St. Matthew's account, our Lord is pictured as giving six great sermons or major addresses, beginning with the wonderful Sermon on the Mount. Following the preface of the Beatitudes, we find Him laying down in bold and specific terms the great requirements for citizenship in the Kingdom of God. The gospel ends with the Divine Commission: "Go ye . . . and teach all nations."

St. Matthew sets forth also our Lord's proper connection with the Old Testament and the Jewish religion. He is the long-expected Messiah of His people; both David's son and David's Lord. St. Matthew continually shows our Lord as acting to fulfill the words of the prophets concerning the Messiah, and quotes Him as saying, "Think not that I am come to destroy the Law or the Prophets; I came not to destroy but to fulfill."

St. Matthew's affords a new understanding of the depth, beauty, and universality of our Lord's teaching, and of His role in relation to His countrymen.

COVER: The winged man is assigned to St. Matthew because the humanity of Christ is stressed throughout his Gospel.

Saint Luke's Portrait of Christ

Saint Luke, in his picture of the life of our Lord, sets forth as one of his aims to start at the beginning (something not done before his writing) and then to proceed in chronological steps through the life of Jesus to His Resurrection and Ascension.

So we find in this gospel the beautiful and heart-warming stories of the birth of Jesus that enrich the Christmas festival. We find the picture of the boy Jesus in the temple, already about His father's business. We see the adult Jesus bringing the good news of salvation to the poor and down-trodden. His mission is to minister to all bound down by physical or spiritual bonds, to proclaim the message of the Kingdom of all people.

St. Luke pictures our Lord as a person of determination and independence. Jesus brooks no interference with His new and revolutionary teaching, either on the part of His family, the people of His home community, or from national religious leaders. He is limited as to time, and must press His work without delay. He must, while the time is ripe, spread the word abroad and bid men to follow Him. He bids His followers to be of similar character, leave all to follow Him, letting nothing stand in the way of the supreme importance of the work of the Kingdom.

The gospel was St. Luke's first great work. The Acts of the Apostles, his "second volume," continues the story. In it he states that Jesus' work only started in the gospel story, and continued on in and through His Church, fortified by His Risen Presence. Acts 1:1 reminds us that it is up to us, His followers, to add our loyal and single-minded contributions to the work of the greatest Social Worker, Psychologist, Humanitarian and Redeeming Power ever known.

COVER: The ox, being a symbol of sacrifice, was assigned to St. Luke who emphasized the atoning sacrifice of Christ in his Gospel.

Saint John's Portrait of The Christ

The good news according to St. John might be said to present a portrait of the "idealized" or "transfigured" Christ.

St. John the Evangelist is quite aware of the historical Palestinian events of our Lord's life, as recorded in the other three gospels. But he is far more concerned that we know the significance of those events as placed in the proper background of Eternity. He sees in the historic fact of "The Word made Flesh" an acted parable. He is eager that we fully realize that Jesus was He who was with God in the beginning, and who is now ever-present with us.

In the prologue he writes, "So the Word became flesh and blood, and lived for a while with us, abounding in blessing and truth; and we saw the honor God had given Him, such honor as an only son received from his father."—St. John 4:11

In St. John's account, we come to know Jesus of Nazareth as not only the Jewish Messiah, but the Savior of the World, its Light and Redeemer. He comes to bring Life to men through a supreme revelation of the nature and wisdom of God. But only those who perceive the inner meaning of the acts and teaching of Jesus of Nazareth will understand His true importance. Through mystical union with Him, through a partaking of the Bread of Life, we may have Life and may have it abundantly.

Thus Saint John the Evangelist presents to us the Jesus of history, transfigured by the light of the Christ of Faith. He makes explicit what is implicit in the other gospels. He discloses the glory of the Son of God, in truth and grace, in such fashion as to call into being that faith which in and through Him lays hold onto Eternal Life.

COVER: The symbol of the eagle is assigned to St. John because in his Gospel he soars to lofty heights in dealing with the divinity of our Lord.

The Servant of the Lord

More than 500 years before the birth of Jesus, a prophet told the people of Israel about a mysterious figure who would take upon himself the sins of the world. Eventually the words of this seer were incorporated into The Book of the Prophet Isaiah, and we can read them in Isa. 42:1-4; 49:1-6; 50:4-9, and 52:13-53:12.

As we read these four passages, it is sometimes difficult for us to tell whether the prophet is speaking of an historical person, a group of people, or the ideal servant of God. Possibly the prophet himself was not certain, for he may well have been inspired to speak of the Servant of the Lord in ways beyond his own limited understanding. Without the perspective of the Christian revelation he could not have known how complete his prophecy was to be fulfilled in Jesus Christ, who was a real person, the representative of God's people Israel, and the perfectly obedient Son of the Father.

This vision of the Servant of the Lord became the pattern in which Jesus Himself saw the way in which His own ministry was to be fulfilled.

No one but our blessed Savior could be fulfillment of these beautiful and comforting words we read in Isaiah 53:46:

"Surely he hath borne our griefs,
and carried our sorrows;
Yet we did esteem him stricken,
smitten of God, and afflicted.
But he was wounded for our transgressions,
he was bruised for our iniquities;
the chastisement of our peace was upon him;
and with his stripes we are healed.
All we like sheep have gone astray;
We have turned everyone to his own way;
and the Lord hath laid on him
the iniquity of us all."

About only One, the Man of Sorrows on the cross, can these sublime words have been spoken.

Surely he hath borne our griefs

PARISH NOTES

At last, work has begun on the parish house. For the next several months, there will be certain inconveniences, but we hope to maintain all of our normal activities despite them. However, any groups meeting, any suppers planned, will be subject to last minute change, but it is all in a very good cause!

The Nursery-Kindergarten School Committee has been very busy under Garrett Thrasher's chairmanship, and an attractive brochure will soon be ready. Mrs. Jacqueline Harley, who attends St. Mary's, and who is an exceptionally well-qualified teacher, has been engaged to teach our kindergarten class.

The annual parish meeting and election of Vestrymen will be Easter Monday, April 19th. You will find posted on the parish house bulletin board the communicant list and the ten nominees for the six vacancies on the Vestry. A sketch of the candidates will soon be available. Please plan now to be present for a review of the parish and the election on April 19th.

MAUNDY THURSDAY

The Watch List is available for you to sign your name to a spot that will maintain the Vigil from 6:30 p.m. Thursday until Noon Friday.

The Service begins at 10:30 a.m., in the Parish House, with the LITURGY of the PALMS. (This is found in a special booklet which will be distributed in the Parish House.)

After the Distribution of the Palms, the entire assemblage will walk in procession, behind the Crucifer, through the Cloister, to the west doors of the church. Hymn 62 is sung during Procession. The hymn will be repeated as many times as is necessary to conclude the Procession.

As we proceed up the center aisle, toward the High Altar, parishioners are asked to move into the pews of their choice.

Any persons who miss the Procession may receive palms at the end of the Service.

Creation

To some people the doctrine of creation brings to mind a lush tropical garden inhabited by an innocent, care-free man and woman. Others conceive of it as a gigantic collision of galactic bodies out of which the earth evolved slowly and inevitably in a completely impersonal process.

The Christian doctrine of creation holds that neither of these concepts can explain satisfactorily the miracle of this world and this life upon it.

Although the traditional and Old Testament picture of creation has been, and continues to be, considerably altered by our increased scientific knowledge, the intrinsic nature of God's activities remains constant.

The essence of the Christian doctrine of creation is not that God initiated the world at a particular moment in time, but that its very existence, however or whenever inaugurated, is dependent upon His will.

Archbishop Temple stated that "the world exists because God chose to call it into being and chooses to sustain it in being." Thus God's creative activity is more than merely an act of power; it is an act of love. God's activity in creation is not merely that of a potter working with his clay; it is the unending expression of His continuing presence. His gift of our Lord Jesus Christ to the world is the supreme manifestation of His creative love.

Man's increasing knowledge has changed his explanations concerning creation and he has often felt there was a conflict between his faith and his knowledge. But to a Christian, the doctrine of creation is not a scientific explanation, but an affirmation. It is an affirmation that God so loved and still so loves that He chose to call and chooses to sustain this life at this time in this world.

The Exodus

"And Moses summoned all Israel, and said to them, "Hear, O Israel . . . the Lord our God made a covenant with us . . . Not with our fathers . . . but with us, who are all of us here alive this day. The Lord spoke with you face to face at the mountain, out of the midst of the fire."—(Deuteronomy 5)

With these words a wilful, weak and rebellious people were brought out of captivity by the mercy of their God.

The Israelites were not heroes, marching forth to glory, but a fearful race, led by an agent of God, Moses. In the wilderness and in battle God went before them, summoning them to courage and faith. This saga of a captive people led to freedom is one which has inspired a longing for liberty for more than 3,000 years.

Yet, as the Israelites soon discovered, the freedom of the body is not enough for man. Loosed from their bondage to the Egyptians, they were still the prisoners of sin and of death.

That first Covenant which was made through Moses was but the promise of God's final glory among men. More than a millenium later, Jesus of Nazareth spoke to men on the mountain of promise. One "like unto Moses", He delivered a new Law, a law not of prescription but of perfection. The bonds of sin and death could not be loosed by codes or ordinances. No amount of human striving could do away with these shackles.

Then, as the new Moses was brought to trial, suffered, and died, even the hope of a final exodus, which would loose the fetters of sin and death, appeared to be vain.

But three days later the New Covenant was sealed. The risen Christ appeared as the victor over death, and man was delivered—was reunited—to his Creator.

A new freedom had been won and the New People of that freedom could see the promise of God fulfilled in One whom they knew to be God's Son.

The Promised Land

Unique among the world's religions is the Old Testament concept of the Covenant. The Covenant is not a bargain with God. It is God who both made the demands and gave the promises. It is Israel that promised to obey. Thus Israel was admitted into God's sphere of life and was thereby sanctified. Israel became not a partner in a contract-relationship, but a people in communion with God.

Having stated the terms of the Covenant, God also made the promises which He would not break. The history of Israel, therefore, did not end with the Exodus but was to be continued in the hope-filled Promised Land.

Although Moses was to die before the tribe of Israel crossed the Jordan, he confidently passed the leadership of the tribe into the hands of Joshua. And, as God had promised, Israel came out of the wilderness into the land of promise.

So concerned are we with building a better world that we tend to forget this basic Biblical faith: it is God who makes the promises and it is God who fulfills them. The whole nature of God is involved in His promises.

We need God. A faith which merely encourages us to rely on our own determination and to trust only our own strength betrays our teaching and our heritage. Biblical faith centers on God and His promises. We depend upon His revelation for our knowledge of Him. We depend upon His selection of us, not upon our selection of Him.

The Promised Land is His redemption and is ours for the taking. How? In our obedience to His command, in our life with His Son. It is available to us only because He has offered it to us in forgiveness, not because we have earned it by our righteousness.

"... thou may goest into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, a land that floweth with milk and honey; as the Lord God of thy fathers promised thee."

The Tabernacle of God

From the time of the Exodus the Jews had a special knowledge of the Presence of God. He was their God; they were His People. In the days of their wanderings, His glory filled the tabernacle (or tent) which they carried with them in the wilderness. In this way the cloud of His presence went with them always. And from that time on the belief in the "tabernacled" presence of God was part of the faith of Israel.

In that belief they knew that God does not dwell in a fixed place but always in their midst, wherever they might be. And when the Ark of the Covenant, which was kept in the tent, was captured in battle, the devout Jew mourned "the Glory is departed from Israel".

In this symbolism of the tabernacle the prophets saw an even deeper meaning. When Jerusalem was destroyed in 586 B.C., and the Ark was again captured, Ezekiel interpreted this departure of the glory of God and the destruction of the city as the justice which God meted out to an idolatrous people. He knew that God, in His glory, would return when His justice had been satisfied. And, in a vision, Ezekiel saw the day when the glory of God came into the house by the way of the gate which faces toward the east. "And the spirit took me up, and brought me into the inner court; and behold, the Glory of God filled the temple." (Ezekiel 43:4-5)

The return of the glory of God to Israel was the continuing hope of the Jews, a hope not realized in the Old Testament. Generation after generation expected the return of the tabernacled presence of God and "died in faith, not having received the promises." (Hebrews 11:13)

The glory of God in His tent, in His tabernacled presence, is one of the clues to the mystery of Christ in the New Testament.

"Master, let us make three tabernacles", said Peter on the Mount of the Transfiguration.

With the Cross and Resurrection, the secret is revealed: the glory has returned to Israel, the tabernacle of God is with men.

"And the Word was made flesh, and tabernacled among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."

The Religious Life

In the Sacrament of Holy Baptism the candidate or godparent is asked, "Dost thou renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all covetous desires of the same, and the sinful desires of the flesh . . .?"

By his baptism each Christian is committed, therefore, to obedience to God's will as opposed to the devils' disobedience, to detachment and freedom from the enslavement of worldly riches, and to purity. This is the Christian Way whereby each soul can achieve that holiness which our Lord himself commanded, "Be ye perfect even as your Father in heaven is perfect."

There are many paths along which Christian souls may travel, but the way is always pointed by obedience, detachment, purity. These are the vocation of every Christian.

One of these paths is the Religious Life—a course along which God calls certain souls to live their baptismal vows in an intensified form. These souls amplify the baptismal vow of detachment by one of poverty, renouncing all possessions so as to be free from the encumbrances of worldly riches. They amplify the vow of purity by one of chastity that, unhindered by personal attachments, they may serve the Lord only. They make a specific vow of obedience, to free themselves from their own wills in order to serve God according to His good pleasure.

All Christians are called to worship and prayer. The Religious is called to a life where ample time is provided for the regular daily pattern of Christian worship and private prayer.

Each Religious has the privilege of taking his part in this pattern of worship; each has been set free by being bound by his vows to his Lord in whom is perfect liberty. Each has responded to Christ's invitation to take up the cross and follow Him, and this following is all joy.

Pentecost

Things were never the same after Pentecost. Our Lord's apostles had been through the loneliness and shame of Good Friday. They had known the wonder of Easter and of the days after Easter when they had seen our Lord and talked to Him from time to time. They had seen Him taken up into heaven at the Ascension. They had waited patiently in Jerusalem as He had told them to do.

And now, on the day of Pentecost, something happened which was more than they could have imagined. They described it later as a day of holy fires and trembling earth and rushing winds, a day when the barriers of language and nationality dissolved before the Lord, the Holy Spirit.

The Strengtheners had come to dwell among men as the prophets had foretold and as Jesus had promised.

This handful of apostles and disciples became, in Christ, the New Israel, the Church. These men who had cowered in a locked room for fear of the Jews went boldly out to proclaim the Good News to the world. Never again would they be entirely dependent upon their own strength. Never again would suffering or the threat of death frighten them into inactivity. Going forth in His Name, they would never be without Him.

The companionship they had known on the roads of Palestine had only been a foretaste of what they now knew. Before, they had walked with Jesus; now He dwelt in their hearts and they were filled with all the fulness of God. His teachings and example were recalled to them. His peace healed their angers and fears. His love forgave their sins and restored to them the hope of victory.

No wonder the Church observes Pentecost as one of its three great feasts. Whitsunday is not just an historical commemoration. The flood of power and love of the first Pentecost has never subsided. Christ still pours His victorious power into His fallen creation through His Church. God the Holy Spirit still fills the hearts of the holy people of God and kindles anew in them the flame of His Love.

COVER: A flame is the symbol of the Holy Spirit because of this association in the Pentecost account. Text is from the Collect for Whitsunday, page 180 in the Prayer Book.

Trinity

A member of the British House of Commons is said to have once described God as "a sort of something out there somewhere."

These words describe all too accurately the nature of the God many of us have in mind—if our actions are to be believed.

He is "out there", and we are "down here". We say that we are trying to find Him, but we are uncertain what He will be like if we succeed.

The Christian teaching about a Trinitarian God is our corrective of this type of vague thinking. The doctrine of the Trinity says that God is removed from us and yet is involved in our most personal activities.

The Church and the Scriptures say: "God has shown Himself. First, He revealed Himself as Father to Israel. Next He is shown as the Son, Jesus, who is raised from the dead and proclaimed Christ. Finally, He continues to be known in the Community which is bound together in the power of His Spirit. And as He has shown Himself, so He is."

This teaching, which is not really difficult, is, of course, never complete. In the Trinity we are talking about God and thus are talking about realms which will always be mysterious to the mind of man.

But we are also talking about Someone who is personal to each of us.

The doctrine of the Trinity describes the way in which, day by day, we are humbly to know God. We desire to pray. We get down on our knees and nothing happens! Perhaps we are overwhelmed by our own unworthiness. Perhaps we are unable to shake off the cares of the day that crowd in upon us. We arise, feeling frustrated and lost. This is because we began with ourselves and not with God. It is the Holy Spirit of God who first says: "Now you must pray. Use my strength."

It is the Son of God who says "I know your prayers are unworthy. Join them to mine."

It is the loving Father who receives the prayers and, in receiving them, receives His child who offered them.

"Father, Son and Holy Ghost. O come, let us adore Him."

What is a Missionary?

"Some work in sultry forests, where apes swing to and fro." These words are from a missionary hymn with a particular appeal to children. The same hymn speaks of "camel-trains", "rice-fields", and other exotic scenes which bring to mind the areas in which missionaries work, or rather, the areas in which some missionaries work.

Recent years have seen a drastic revision in the concept of missionary work. The "missionary" used to be someone who was involved with the rice-field, camel-trains and sultry forests: an interesting, if rather odd person, who periodically returned home to show pictures of quaint people doing quaint things.

Our knowledge of today's world has changed all this. The far-off lands are only a few hours away, and their inhabitants attend our colleges and universities and are frequent visitors in our country.

With these modern developments, our concept of the Church's mission has become much more complicated. The stranger in our midst may have been educated in a mission school and still remain a Buddhist or Moslem. Or he may be a Christian from some "sultry forest" who recoils in horror upon exposure to our "Christian" civilization.

We are learning to recognize that "Christendom" is not the geographical area we once thought. It may exist in an Eastern nation and may have ceased to be a reality in the slums of our cities, the patios of our suburbs, or at the family table we have abandoned for the T.V. dinner.

With a changing concept of what missionary work is, the important question is not "What is a missionary?" but rather, "who is a missionary?"

The biblical answer is: we are. If we are baptized, if we profess Jesus as Lord, we have been entered into that great company of those who have promised to show forth the love of God by proclaiming the life, death and resurrection of His Son.

The question each of us must answer daily before God is not: "Should I be a missionary?" It is, rather: "What kind of missionary was I today?"

Dry Bones

"Why does God let such things happen?"

As they were carried off into exile in Babylon, this question was uppermost in the minds of Ezekiel's fellow-countrymen. They wondered why the God of Israel had forsaken them and had allowed their land to fall into the hands of a heathen and alien people.

As the author of Psalm 137 recalls those bitter days so poignantly: "By the waters of Babylon we sat down and wept when we remembered thee, O Sion."

In the midst of this widespread doubt and dejection, however, came the voice of God speaking to the prophet Ezekiel with a startling message of hope and gladness for His messenger to deliver: the nation of Israel would rise again!

This prophecy Ezekiel declared in his remarkable vision of the valley of the dry bones. (Ezekiel 37:1-14) In his vision, the prophet saw the scattered remnants of his nation, dry and lifeless because of their sins. Suddenly, at the word of God, "there was a noise, and behold a shaking and the bones came together, bone to his bone."

But without the spirit of God, the dead do not yet live. And so Ezekiel "prophesied . . . and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army."

We read this prophecy of Ezekiel today in the knowledge that God has wrought an even greater miracle for our salvation. He has raised from the dead His only-begotten Son, Jesus Christ, to be the pledge of our own resurrection at the Last Day. As members of the new Israel, the Church of Jesus Christ, we may hope for more than just an eventual restoration of earthly existence.

We are given a personal newness of life which, although it begins now, will endure and prosper through eternity. To be fit for such a destiny, we must be reclothed in the garments of immortality. We must be given a new body, one which will be a better instrument of service in the nearer presence of God.

Only then will the prophecy of Ezekiel be truly fulfilled: "Behold, O my people, I will open your graves . . . and shall put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live."

Through the Ages

To make a will is not only prudent and wise: it is also a religious obligation.

The rubric on page 320 of the Prayer Book says: "The Minister is ordered, from time to time, to advise the People, whilst they are in health, to make Wills arranging for the disposal of their temporal goods, and, when of ability, to leave Bequests for religious and charitable uses."

It is interesting that this is the only use in the Prayer Book of the word "ordered!"

A will does three things. It conveys our possessions and it simplifies the problems of administering our estate in the courts. Its most significant function, however, especially for those of us who have few possessions and meager estates, lies in the fact that it is a written testimonial of our love and our concern for those we leave behind.

During our lifetime our money is truly part of our lives. Because it takes our energy and our time, every dollar we earn is part of ourselves. Whatever money we may inherit is also a living thing for it is hallmarked with the life of our forebears.

During our lifetime we give our money to the Church as the measure of our devotion to God and our desire to carry on in our time and world the work of our Lord Jesus Christ. After our lifetime, a bequest in our will to the Church can make our money part of our witness. As the writer to the Hebrew says of Abel's gift: "By it he, being dead, yet speaketh."

Bequests, small as well as large, made before any of us was born, still speak the devotion to our Lord of countless men and women long dead. It may be through a little mission chapel, or a scholarship for a seminary student or a jewel from a much-loved ring that now adds its beauty to an altar cross; but in every case it is the devotion of the giver that still speaks and lives on.

Few of us realize the boundless opportunities to minister to the spiritual, intellectual, and material needs of men and women that are ours through our bequests to the Church. Whether the beneficiary is our diocese, our parish, the National Church, or some particularly designated work of one of these, we can know that our money will advance the Kingdom of God and will continue down through the ages as a living voice of our devotion to our Lord.

EV6 - 1748

Whose Neighbor Am I?

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Many people boast that their whole religion could be reduced to this one precept: the religion of the golden rule. They point with pride to its simplicity: no outworn creed or complicated dogma here.

But is the Golden Rule really so simple? How do we identify who is our neighbor, beyond the obvious instances of the people across the street or the elderly lady next door? Who is my neighbor when I am waiting at a four-way traffic sign during the rush-hour? Who is my neighbor in a crowd trying to get on an already-crowded bus? Who is my neighbor when I am asked to give my money for missions in the Every Member Canvass?

The sharp young theology student who asked our Lord: "And who is my neighbor?" knew that the question was not easily answered. Instead of answering the question directly our Lord told the now-familiar story of the man who was beaten up, robbed and left by the side of the road, the priest who passed by on the other side, the man who continued on his way and the Samaritan, a foreigner, who not only stopped and administered first aid, but took the injured man to an inn and paid for his care. He concluded His story by asking the young theology student: "Who proved to be neighbor to the man who fell among robbers?"

Our Lord saw through the young man's question and recognized He was being asked for a precise, legalistic definition that would sanctify a limited responsibility and identify as "neighbor" only those who were friends, business associates, or others whom he might find it easy and pleasant to befriend.

Our Lord refused to agree to a legalistic interpretation of neighbor. Instead, He reverses the question and puts the responsibility on our shoulders to be neighbor to any who need our help.

Christians cannot ask, "Who is my neighbor?" We must examine our consciences by asking ourselves, "Whose neighbor am I?"

IN THE PEW, AND GIVE TO THE CLERGY UPON LEAVING.

Does It make a Difference?

At one time or another every man alive has had serious doubts about his faith. During these periods of doubt he may wonder whether it makes any real difference what he does believe. He may even come to regard the Church's teaching about God, Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit as arbitrary doctrines conceived primarily to enhance the Church's authority and status.

The scriptural accounts on which the Faith is based, however, are not fairy tales, nor were they fabricated by someone for his own or the Church's edification. Our Bible and subsequent credal statements are the result of the Church's living experience with a living God, an experience which does not end with the scriptural revelation. The relationship of God and man, which is revealed in the scriptures, is the only reason for the Church's existence.

The very fact that the world about us reveals that God is a God of order and intelligence tells us that our faith has ordered and intelligent answers to our predicament.

The Church does not present its doctrines as capricious regulations. In the creeds, the Church proclaims in human concepts and with inadequate language its beliefs about an almost inexplicable experience.

When the Faith is accepted and lived, all human concepts of morals, duty, philosophy and action fall into their proper perspective with God as our Creator and man as His creatures.

There may be real purpose and value in non-conformity. But a real peril lies in wait for the religious non-conformist. This peril is that non-conformity can easily degenerate into unbelief. And unbelief, as the Epistle to the Hebrews warns, leads one "to fall away from the living God." (Hebrews 3:12)

What we believe makes more difference than we may realize.

There is need for a student for four to six hours a week doing secretarial work in our office at the C.A. Scholarship funds make it possible to pay $1.25 per hour. Please see Fr. Scott for further details.

Please remember to fill in a name and address card in the pew, and give to the clergy upon leaving.

The Ministry of Listening

"That was a nice little talk this morning, Reverend."

These words, said by someone in all sincerity at the church door nearly every Sunday, are evidence of how frequently the clergyman's preaching task is misunderstood. Too often his responsibility "to preach the Word of God" is understood to mean the entertainment of an audience instead of the edification of a congregation of Christ's Church.

A sermon, on occasion, may be pleasant to hear, with genuine touches of humor. It may, in some cases be eloquent and a delight to the ear. Its purpose, however, is always that of a dialogue between one who is ordained to speak in God's Name and those who have been baptized in that Name. A sermon is never a monologue, even though it is spoken by only one man, the preacher.

A sermon is the communication, in words, of the meaning of God's act in Christ to those who accept Jesus as the Word of God. Without some prior commitment to the Gospel of Christ and a willingness on the part of those who listen to discover new dimensions of discipleship, no congregation can "hear" a sermon, much less respond to its message.

It is significant that in its Biblical context the word "hear" carries the implication of "obey." To be heard most effectively, a sermon should occur in the context of the Church's corporate worship where it can make clear and relevant the themes of faith found in the Holy Scriptures, the liturgy and the Christian tradition.

Those who listen to the sermon have a right to expect that the truth of God will be set forth with honesty, vigor and charity by the preacher. But for their part, they must be prepared to be attentive and responsive to his message.

Without the ministry of listening the ministry of preaching cannot be fulfilled.

Religion and Psychiatry

St. Luke tells of our Lord sending the seventy "into every city and place whither he himself would come." Among the directions He gave to the disciples was the command to heal the sick, saying to them "the Kingdom of God is come near to you. (Luke 10:9)

The Christian knows that all healing, whether of the mind, the emotions or the body, comes from God. The Kingdom of God is near a healed person. Often a person's acknowledgement of God's nearness in a cure results in the awareness of God's sovereignty over all that person's life, and many people attribute their awakening in Christ to just such an experience.

Although we tend to think of healing first in terms of physical ailments, the role of God in the healing process is the same when applied to the more subtle ailments which affect human emotions and behavior. The healer of the mind is no less a healer than the one who cures the malfunction of the body.

Many devout Christians still feel a confusion as the place of psychiatric care for a Christian. "If I am a good Christian," they think, "I will not have these emotional problems."

They overlook the complex nature of man and the forces, of which they may not be aware, that operate none-the-less in their lives. The psychiatrist's function, properly understood, is to bring a person to that point of emotional self-understanding where he can make free decisions for which he is morally responsible. The doctor's ministry of emotional healing and the Church's ministry of reconciliation are not contradictory but complementary.

The thirty-eighth chapter of Ecclesiasticus begins: "Honor a physician . . . for the Lord hath created him." And in the fourth verse of the same chapter we read, "The Lord hath created medicinces out of the earth, and he that is wise will not abhor them."

FLOWERS

The flowers on the Altar are given in loving memory of Mary Wentworth Leech who departed this life September 17, 1965 in her 94th year. Mrs. Leech had been a faithful member of this parish most of her life, and contributed much time and effort to its welfare. May she rest in peace and light perpetual shine upon her.

INJUSTICE

On the bulletin board is a statement of the Most Rev. John E. Hines, Presiding Bishop, on the acquittal of Thomas Coleman for the murder of Jonathan Daniels. Perjury and the character assassination of a dead man were freely used by the law enforcement authorities of Lowndes County, Alabama. This is the real threat to the whole American concept of law, of which this is but the latest in a long series of mockeries of law and justice.

DIOCESAN ACADEMIC SERVICE and DINNER

NEXT SUNDAY

The extraordinary event, the annual Diocesan-wide gathering of the Academic Community, will take place at 5:30 p.m. for Evensong here at St. Mary's with Bishop DeWitt preaching, and in addition to our choir, the choir from Lincoln University.

At 7:00 p.m. there will be a dinner at the C.A. Tickets are $1.75 ($1.00 for students) and may be purchased from the rector at the Coffee Hour, or at our office in the C.A. this week. The speaker is well known and very able - Professor E. Digby Baltzell and he will speak on "The New Morality."

"THE CHANGING ROLES OF MEN AND WOMEN IN LOVE AND SEX RELATIONSHIPS"

This is the subject of four sessions, to be led by a member of the Marriage Council Staff of the University School of Medicine under C.A. sponsorship on four successive Wednesdays, beginning Oct. 27th - 7:30-9:00 p.m., Room 20, at the C.A. Fr. Scott assists.

The Last Day

When men consider the concept of the end of time, their thinking invariably involves the calendar. Many times during the Christian era various sects, and not a few self-appointed prophets, have predicted the exact hour and date on which the world would come to an end. The phenomenon is still with us.

But if we properly analyze the 10th chapter of the book of the prophet Daniel, or Mark 13, or the book of the Revelation of St. John the Divine on which these "prophecies" are all based, it becomes apparent that the emphasis in the visions described is not upon terror and catastrophe.

The error of these spurious interpretations becomes particularly apparent when considered in the light of our Lord's teaching and of our own experience with the living God. The import of these misunderstood messages concerns our preparedness for the Last Day, rather than the chronology of cataclysmic doom.

Our Lord's teaching informs us that the life everlasting is an extension of our present life, and that what we do and think at this time is a definite link with that which is eternal.

More important than our preoccupation with timetables is our sincerity in changing our present way of living and conducting our thoughts and actions as if each day were our last.

While we cannot minimize the inevitability of God's Judgment on each of us, more important than the crumbling of temple walls and the fissuring of the earth's crust is the manner in which we prepare ourselves for our encounter with God.

The Book of Common Prayer advises us most succinctly how to face the Last Day: "And grant us grace always to live in such a state that we may never be afraid to die; so that, living and dying, we may be thine . . ."

THE REV. FERGUS M. FULFORD

We welcome to St. Mary's pulpit this morning Fr. Fulford who is completing a semester of study at the Philadelphia Divinity School under a continuing education grant for clergy. When the rector was also serving in the Diocese of Long Island, Fr. Fulford and he exchanged pulpits with profit to both them and their parishes. Fr. Fulford has been Vicar of St. Barnabas Church, Brooklyn for the past nineteen years.

NEXT SUNDAY

At 4:00 p.m. a group of boys, who have composed a drama under Mr. Herman Rice's direction, will present "A Christmas in Mantua." Mr. Rice is the leader of the "Young Great Society," and many of us have had a chance to meet him and hear of the inspiring efforts at self improvement among our neighbors that the Society has begun.

Those who wish to contribute cash, clothing or food for Mantua residents can make the program an opportunity to do so.

The Feast of St. Stephen

*Good King Wenceslas looked out
On the feast of Stephen:*

So runs the familiar English Christmas carol written by John Mason Neale.

There is something heartening about this legend of the page who, in the cold of a winter night, thawed his frozen feet by placing them in the snowy footprints of the patron saint of Bohemia, Good King Wenceslas. But the true import which the Church finds in her observance of the Feast of St. Stephen is far more heartening.

In the life and death of Stephen, the first Christian martyr, the Church finds the expression and example of one of the primary qualities of the Christian life, forgiveness.

When Stephen dared to declare that Jesus was the Prophet announced by Moses, he infuriated the men of Jerusalem. In accordance with the Mosaic Law, but apparently without formal trial, he was stoned to death. He died confessing the Christ, and his last words, much like the words of his Lord at His death, were words of forgiveness:

"Lord, lay not this sin to their charge."

The most natural response with which man reacts to an insult or a hurt is to strike back, to retaliate. If he cannot hit with his fist he lashes with his tongue.

But Stephen, following in the spirit of his Lord, demonstrated the potential of the human heart. By forgiving his attackers Stephen displayed the spirit of Christ. In forgiving those who stoned him Stephen walked in Jesus' footsteps.

We live in a world scarred by lynchings, boycotts, reprisals, revolt, mass murders and wars. We live lives scarred by resentments, grudges and animosities, and feel justified in striking back.

The spirit of Stephen was different. And it is time to be different.

Saint Stephen

GRANT, O Lord, that, in all our sufferings here upon earth for the testimony of thy truth, we may steadfastly look up to heaven, and by faith behold the glory that shall be revealed; and, being filled with the Holy Ghost, may learn to love and bless our persecutors by the example of thy first Martyr Saint Stephen, who prayed for his murderers to thee, O blessed Jesus, who standest at the right hand of God to succour all those who suffer for thee, our only Mediator and Advocate. Amen.

The Name of Jesus

The name "Jesus" was well known to the Jews, and was in common use during our Lord's time. The Apocryphal book "Ecclesiasticus" was written by Jesus, the son of Sirach, and there are other men of this name mentioned in the Bible and in other writings.

The name Jesus is derived from the Old Testament name "Joshua," which means "the salvation of the Lord." Unquestionably, the early Christian would see the parallel between the Joshua who led his people out of the wilderness, across Jordan, and into the Promised Land, and the "new Joshua" who led His people out of the wilderness of sin and death, through the waters of baptism, and into the Kingdom of God.

The name given to our Lord is more than just coincidence. From the beginning of His life He is designated by God as the Savior. Thus, St. Luke records "his name was called Jesus, which was so named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb," and St. Matthew adds "for he shall save his people from their sins." From the beginning of the Gospel, we are told that this Man is God's own agent of salvation.

Those who followed Jesus during His period of teaching would not have known the full significance of His Name. At the most, it would have seemed a fortunate coincidence that this man who spoke so clearly of salvation should have been named "the salvation of the Lord."

It is only after the Resurrection that the full meaning of the Name can be known as the God-given Name of the Savior of the world. It is only in the fellowship of the Risen Christ that the Apostle Paul can write: "God also has highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."

COVER: The initial letters of the Greek words for "Jesus Christ, God's Son, Saviour" spell the Greek word for fish. Thus the fish became a secret sign used by the early Christians under persecution.

The Three Wise Men

They were from the East and they had come a long way. They had left the pastel palaces and the comfortable luxury of their kingdoms to venture forth across the bitter desert to follow a star. The Bible calls this desert "the land of Kadesh," the land of the bandit and a wasteland full of danger.

After a journey of many months, they found what they were looking for in a stable in an obscure country—a young peasant girl, her middle-aged spouse and a newborn Infant.

When they saw Him in the mother's arms, they knew their harrowing journey was over and they gave Him their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.

Any man who would find Christ must seek Him, leaving behind his comfortable presuppositions and luxurious prejudices as the Wise Men left their palaces. To find Christ we must venture forth in faith across the desert of this life, with only the star of hope to lead us over the sometimes bitter miles.

And when we reach our destination we, like the Wise Men, may find Christ the Lord enthroned not in regal splendor but in an unexpectedly homely, unpretentious setting. But it is there, where He is, in this ordinary world, that we are to offer our gifts, as did the Wise Men, not of gold, frankincense and myrrh, but "our selves, our souls and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy and living sacrifice."

The star of hope still shines, beckoning us to follow, and at the journey's end is Christ.

Christian Discipline in Society

"Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God."

These words of St. Paul to the Christians of ancient Rome must have sounded harsh and strange to many who heard them. Were not "the powers that be" frequently stern and hard-hearted, often unresponsive to the claims of mercy, justice, and brotherly love? Yet the Apostle clearly counsels Christians to respect and obey them as "God's ministers!"

As we look about the world today and perceive the presence of injustice and persecution, we, too, may be tempted to ignore St. Paul's admonition to respect the civil authority.

Because the state is sometimes corrupt and un-Christian in its actions, the moral authority of government, in extraordinary situations, can be invalidated beyond our duty to obey. And yet, Paul warns, our opposition to this injustice or corruption, must never degenerate into an irresponsible invitation to social anarchy. It is both a matter of conscience and a matter of prudence for Christians to do everything possible to uphold the civil authority's general claim to obedience.

No Christian can ever take a position which puts him in conflict with the forces of law and order in society except for a most grievous cause and except that he be willing to accept the consequences of his actions. In all normal circumstances, we are counselled by Holy Scripture and the tradition of the Church to "render . . . to all their dues." Of all people, Christian citizens should be peaceful and law-abiding elements of stability in a world already all too prone to chaos and disorder. For Christians the deepest motive for obedience in society is not merely to avoid punishment but to hold back the cruel forces of mob violence and terror which are restrained only by the presence of a stable government.

No human institution is ever perfect and the civil authority is no exception. Nevertheless, it has a definite and worthy purpose in the divine providence of the affairs of men.

"Wherefore ye must needs be subject, not only for wrath, but also for conscience sake."

PARISH GUEST TODAY

We welcome the Rev. L.W. Yolton, Director of the Westminster Foundation of Philadelphia. Mr. Yolton is a graduate of Harvard and Union Theological Seminary, and has served in urban parishes, and comes to Philadelphia from being Study Secretary for the New England SCM. Mr. Yolton is also carrying out some of the Rev. Lacy Harwell's responsibilities at our neighbor, Tabernacle Church, during Mr. Harwell's leave. At the same time Fr. Scott is preaching at Tabernacle Church.

Why?

1) The Consultation on Church Union is an official activity of Episcopalians, Presbyterians and others, in which an explanation of our unity and our differences is being explored. One of COCU's suggestions is that meaningful pulpit exchanges take place at the local level. A year ago we made an exchange, but how improved is each congregation's understanding of each other and the road ahead?

2) Today is a significant anniversary. On January 30, 1649, King Charles I was beheaded at the conclusion of the English Civil War, in which Anglicans and Presbyterians were protagonists.

THANKS

We are grateful for the assistance of faculty members at Philadelphia Divinity School during this time in which we lack an associate for assisting with services. The Rev. Richard A. Norris, Jr., Associate Professor of Ecclesiastical History and Historical Theology, is the Celebrant today, assisted by the Rev. John T. Townsend, Assistant Professor of Biblical Languages and New Testament.

FLOWERS

The flowers on the altar today are given in loving memory of Edgar T. Pancoast, priest. May he rest in peace and light perpetual shine upon him.

Races—Rat and Christian

We are all in the "rat race," living in a world of jet planes, TV and commercials, area codes and digit dialing, urban renewal and rural electrification, executive meetings and mass protests, causes and organizations, traffic jams and super-markets. The concentric patterns in our lives often seem to lead to a bustling nowhere. This is true of the 20th century; it was true of the first century.

No one knew this better than St. Paul who wrote to the Church at Corinth, "Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize . . ."

The Christian life is not an easy one; it was never intended to be. To live the Christian life demands discipline, determination and hard work. Just as in a running race, we must be fit to run and be willing to expend just a little more effort than we thought ourselves capable. Just as the athlete prepares for his contest, so should the Christian prepare for his own venture.

There is one great difference, however, between the rat race and the Christian race, as St. Paul goes on to say: ". . . Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible." Every runner who wishes to run a straight and true race must know the location of the finish line. In the rat race there is only the corruptible crown. In the Christian race the goal is our incorruptible life in our Lord.

One of the amazing facts about the Christian race is that every entrant who sets his course for the finish line can reach it. It is the only race in which everyone may win the prize.

The sooner we begin the process of discipline, determination and hard work, the sooner, with God's help, we shall be on the mark of the only race that really counts—the Christian race.

clear that fasting means laying aside some good thing for some better purpose. For instance there are student groups observing fasts as an expression of their concern for peace in Vietnam. Some will recall that Fr. Hewett fasted in order to bring concern for justice in the Chester Civil Rights effort two years ago. These are vivid examples of the disciplining of the self toward a higher goal through bodily need. At our canvass dinner a student suggested that to forgo one lunch a week in order to support the Church's ministry was a fast for Churchmen to consider.

SOME CONSIDERATIONS

- 1) Individuals may have time, talent or treasure to make available to the Young Great Society's bootstrap efforts in Mantua.
- 2) Not only will St. Mary's have a Thursday evening Lenten Study as usual, but some should make the "extraordinary" effort to participate in Lenten Study at and with the Tabernacle Church congregation. Pulpit exchanges are only a small starter.
- 3) Do some have time to make calls on shut-ins? Catherine Huntington of St. Mary's vestry is seeking to establish such a program.
- 4) The tract rack has a number of helpful leaflets concerning Lenten observance and the personal spiritual life.

ST. MARY'S LENTEN PLANS

- 1) Ash Wednesday (February 23) - services at 7a.m., 10 a.m., noon and 5:30 p.m. Father Dunstan of The Order of St. Francis will preach briefly at all services.
- 2) Thursdays during March - 5:30 p.m. Eucharist followed by Supper and Program ending at 8:00 p.m. Subjects will be The New Morality and Liturgical Changes.

PRE-LENT

Now -not Ash Wednesday- is the time to give thought to the Lenten Observance this year. We know that The Prayerbook speaks of "extraordinary acts and exercises of doctrine" and of "fasting." It is Why Abstinence?

There are some Christian people who look upon fasting and abstinence as archaic customs of no real value today. How, they ask, can the giving up of meat on Fridays possibly affect their relationship to the Risen Lord?

The fact that some form of fasting and abstinence is practiced by the majority of Christians throughout the world and has been the usage of devout Christians throughout many centuries should call for a deeper look into the significance and value of this ancient custom.

Our Church's rules about fasting and abstinence are based on the Christian endeavor to dedicate all of time to our Lord. The calendar of saints and the seasons of the Christian year following, as they do, one upon the other constantly remind us of our divine inheritance and of the need to make sacred every moment of our passage through the time allotted to us.

As each Sunday is regarded as another Easter and is celebrated with the joy of the Resurrection, so each Friday is a reminder of the Crucifixion on the first Good Friday. The dietary disciplines of fasting and abstinence help to underline the significance of the day.

The other reason for this Christian observance has to do with an elementary fact of human nature: unless man can discipline his appetite for food and drink and small things in general, it is highly unlikely he will be able to discipline his appetite for things more vitally connected with his spiritual well-being. The discipline of fasting and abstinence is a proving ground for the will. How can we resist the powerful and seductive temptations of the world if we cannot say "no" to ourselves in the minor matter of food and drink?

The Christian believes that his life is essentially one of constant warfare against the powers that would deny him Christ and the Kingdom of Heaven. The ability to say "no" to oneself is a vital weapon in our spiritual arsenal.

Sunday, March 20th:

The Rev. John E. Lamb, M.S.L.S., Assistant Librarian at Philadelphia Divinity School, will be the preacher.

Sunday, March 27th:

The Rev. Alan McFarlane will be guest preacher. Fr. McFarlane, while a recent graduate student at Columbia, co-authored an extensive research project on the Protestant Campus Ministry. He is a native of Montreal, graduate of McGill, and has recently been assistant rector of a large parish in metropolitan New York.

FATHER SCOTT AWAY

Fr. Scott will be out of town Wednesday through Saturday conducting a teaching mission in his former parish, All Saints, South Charleston, West Virginia. The office hours and schedule of services will be maintained as usual.

Atonement

The word, Atonement, one of the great words in the language of the Christian Church, is not to be found anywhere in the pages of the New Testament. Nor is it found in either the Apostles' or the Nicene Creed. But this does not mean that it is a word to be passed over lightly or relegated to insignificance.

The New Testament and the Creeds are concerned with what God did in Jesus Christ, in the language of theology what God did in Christ is called the Atonement.

One of the basic results of sin is separation. We are separated from our brother by our sin; we are separated as well from God. God has, in St. Paul's phrase, reconciled the world to Himself in Christ. God has ended a separation which man could not heal. He has made us at-one with Himself. It is this fact with which the Atonement is concerned.

By Christ's victorious death on the Cross, in which the powers of sin, death and evil have been broken, mankind is no longer helplessly enslaved to them. Their ultimate power has been vanquished. Mankind, so long estranged from God, is reconciled by Christ's saving act on the Cross.

And this reconciliation is available to all men in the sacrament of Baptism in which we become part of Christ's spiritual Body, the New Israel of God, the Holy Catholic Church. It is in Baptism that we, by God's grace, become part of our Lord's redeemed humanity and therefore at-one with the Father.

All the other great words of Christianity describing Jesus: Incarnation, Passion, Death and Ascension, are summed up by this one word Atonement. Indeed it is at the core of our understanding as to what Jesus Christ means to us and to all mankind.

NOTES ON LITURGICAL CHANGES

1. POSTURE

Kneeling, like fasting, expresses penitence. Once confession has been made, the Christian stands erect, renewed by Christ's absolution, ready to celebrate the Eucharist. Standing implies life and readiness to serve God. God is not dead, but often the Church appears to be. Let's rise up! At the words of consecration, one may certainly bow in adoration, but let us kneel only in penitence and in receiving the favor of a blessing.

2. WORD AND SACRAMENT

The Eucharistic action of offering, consecration, breaking, and distributing begins with the presentation of bread, wine, and alms. At that point the clergy and assistants will enter the sanctuary for the first time. Litanies (including the Kyrie), Psalms, Lessons and Preaching are the Ministry of the Word, and are the proper preparation for participation in the Eucharist.

3. PARTICIPATION IN THE LITURGY

The Liturgy is led and presided over by the priest, but it is participated in fully by the people. Therefore: a) Upon entering church please take a wafer from the bread box and place it in the ciborium as your offering of bread that will be presented.

b) Layreaders will read the Lessons

c) The Prayer of Humble Access and the Prayer of Thanksgiving will be said by the priest and the congregation in unison.

d) Join in singing the "propers" - the gradual, offertory and communion verses, noting the lines that are sung by the cantor alone. Our singing should express vitality and celebration, and, although hesitant at times, should improve with practice.

4. OTHER CHANGES

The following changes will either or both speed up the slow spots in the service and heighten the seasonal observances (in the way color changes do now)

a) The Venite (and Antiphon, if any) will be used normally as the procession into the choir. Exceptions will be the use of the Litany during Lent which will also replace the Psalm or Psalms, and the use of a Festival Procession with hymns and incense on the greater festivals.

b) The Gloria in Excelsis will be sung (standing) immediately following the Kyrie (except that it will be omitted during Lent) instead of after the Communion. This is its original place, completing the pleading of the Kyrie with a song of praise. Also Communion is the climax of the Liturgy, and the congregation should then move speedily to fellowship and the carrying of grace into the world.

c) The Fracture is restored to its proper sequence in the four action shape of the Liturgy. The Prayer of Consecration is the blessing of the bread and wine, concluding with the Lord's Prayer, after which the Bread is broken. The placing of a fraction of the Bread in the Chalice symbolizes redemption and reunion which is the purpose of the Eucharistic action. Please join in the response to the Celebrant's salutation.

CONCLUDING COMMENTS

1. These changes are the result of study and discussion; the point is to help our understanding of the Christian worshipping community and its vocation in today's world. The changes are experimental; we may want to review them, and at our parish dinner after the festival Eucharist on Ascension (May 19th) we shall have had two months' experience to discuss.

2. The changes are suggested for the principal Sunday service when the whole congregation is gathered together. It is suggested that our practice at the ordinary weekday services continue as they are.

 10:30 a.m.

The Service begins at 10:30 a.m., in the Parish House, with the LITURGY of the PALMS. (This is found in a special booklet which will be distributed in the Parish House.)

After the Distribution of the Palms, the entire assemblage will walk in procession singing Hymn 62 behind the Crucifer, through the Cloister, around the church. As we proceed up the center aisle, toward the High Altar, parishioners are asked to move into the pews of their choice.

Any persons who miss the Procession may receive palms at the end of the Service.

At the words of consecration, one may certainly bow in adoration, but let us kneel only in penitence and in receiving the favor of a blessing.

The Good Shepherd

It is difficult for the 20th century mind to comprehend the continuing promise of God when it is couched in the language and setting of a pastoral society.

In the story of the Good Shepherd our Lord is assuring His followers that He will never forsake them. And He is also reassuring us.

There is no way in which this story could be effectively modernized or brought up to date. It might begin with, "I am the Big Brother," or, "I am the New Society" or, "I am the United Appeal." None of these beginnings, however, could continue, as did our Lord, with the words "and giveth his life for the sheep."

The entire tone of Christ's account of the Good Shepherd is not unlike that of the parable of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10:25-36). In the parable of the Good Samaritan the love of God for the man who had fallen victim to bandits is the kind of love the Good Shepherd promises to his flock. But whereas the fallen traveler is ignored and deserted by his fellow-man on the Jericho road, Christ promises that He will never abandon those of His own flock to the perils of life.

Indeed, the flock of God is not entrusted to the hireling, one who flees in time of stress and danger. It is Christ Himself who is the constant and ever-present protector of those who are of the fold.

The story of the Good Shepherd is not merely an account of human compassion or kindness or of a deep sense of responsibility. It is the illustration, in human terms, of the fact that "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son to the end that all that believe in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

SAINT MARY'S NURSERY: KINDERGARTEN

Applications are now being filed for next September's classes. Three-year-olds, four-year-olds, and kindergarten. Blanks are available at the office or in the parish house.

INTERCESSIONS

It is suggested that persons wishing to ask particular intercessions make a note and give them to Dr. Ryals or whoever else is appointed as they come into church. The intentions should fit one of five categories, namely:

(1) those in authority, (2) bishops and clergy, (3) members of the church large, (4) persons in sickness or adversity, and (5) the faithful departed.

LOOKING AHEAD

- (A) Sunday, May 8th at 4:00 p.m. Saint Mary's will be the place for an area Confirmation Service including us, Saint George's, and Saint James', Kingsessing.
- (B) Preachers at 10:30 a.m.: May 8th, The Reverend Richard Norris, jr. D. Phil; May 15th, Charles T. Mason, senior seminarian and member of this parish; and May 22nd, The Reverend Hayden McCallum, Th. D.

VICTIMS

Contributions from St. Mary's congregation have totaled $105.00, but this represents only eight contributors. The actual losses of the victims, excluding hospital costs, have been estimated at almost $11,000.00. To date just under $4,000.00 has been collected. Perhaps there are a few more who have been waiting to be asked to give? Please see Father Scott.

THE OFFICE AT 3601 LOCUST STREET

Mrs. Martin is working only part time. Mrs. Harrington left in March. Mr. John McConnell is acting as secretary and will be in the office 9:30 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Son and the Slave

Paul's youthful training as a rabbinical student is apparent in most of his writing, but in no place is it more evident than in his Epistle to the Galatians. Here, in the fourth chapter, Paul applies the historical account of Abraham's family, with which, as a student, he was familiar, to the contemporary situation.

The story, as told in Genesis, is about the relationship of Abraham to his two sons; one by Hagar, a slave, and the other by Sarah, a freewoman. In Paul's Epistle to the Galatians he likens the relationship of Abraham and these two sons to the plight of mankind. He equates Hagar, the slave woman, with the law, the flesh, the earthly Jerusalem and continued slavery. Sarah, the freewoman, he cites as the figure for faith, the Spirit, Jerusalem above, and freedom in the life of Christ.

Paul points out that man, as represented by the slave woman's son, might legally claim his sonship under the Father. But it is only under the free grace of the life in Christ, as represented by the son of Sarah, that man can be the inheritor of everlasting life and incorporated into the Kingdom.

St. Paul calls this comparison an allegory. In it Paul, the Christian, sees a far deeper spiritual significance than that found by Paul, the young rabbinical student. In the Sarah-Hagar allegory St. Paul gives us a new view of the history of mankind, the insight that all of man's history is a choice between freedom and slavery.

There were sons and slaves in the world of Abraham's day and there were sons and slaves in the world of St. Paul. There are still sons and slaves in our world. We may choose to remain slaves, but it is God's intention for us to be free men in Christ.

The Rev. Alan McFarlane will be guest preacher. Fr. McFarlane, while a recent graduate student at Columbia, co-authored an extensive research project on the Protestant Campus Ministry. He is a native of Montreal, graduate of McGill, and has recently been assistant rector of a large parish in metropolitan New York.

Members of the Episcopal Committee at the University have been invited to join us and to confer with Fr. McFarlane about his work. He and two other priests have thus far been interviewed regarding filling the vacancy caused by Father Chapman's departure. However, the Diocese may not give a yes or no to whether there even will be a replacement until sometime in May.

HOLY WEEK AND EASTER

We shall once again keep the Maundy Thursday Watch before the Blessed Sacrament in Commemoration of Gethsemane. A list will be posted with sign-up hours next Sunday. Be ready to take a place.

NOTES ON LITURGICAL CHANGES

1. POSTURE

Kneeling, like fasting, expresses penitence. Once confession has been made, the Christian stands erect, renewed by Christ's absolution, ready to Celebrate the Eucharist. Standing implies life and readiness to serve God. God is not dead, but often the Church appears to be. Let's rise up! At the words of consecration, one may certainly bow in adoration, but let us kneel only in penitence and in receiving the favor of a blessing.

2. WORD AND SACRAMENT

The Eucharistic action of offering, consecration, breaking, and distributing begins with the presentation of bread, wine, and alms. At that point the clergy and assistants will enter the sanctuary for the first time. Litanies (including the Kyrie), Psalms, Lessons and Preaching are the Ministry of the Word, and are the proper preparation for participation in the Eucharist.

3. PARTICIPATION IN THE LITURGY

The Liturgy is led and presided over by the priest, but it is participated in fully by the people

Therefore: a) Upon entering church please take a wafer from the bread box and place it in the ciborium as your offering of bread that will be presented.

b) Layreaders will read the Lessons

c) The Prayer of Humble Access and the Prayer of Thanksgiving will be said by the priest and the congregation in unison.

d) Join in singing the "propers" - the gradual, offertory and communion verses, noting the lines that are sung by the cantor alone. Our singing should express vitality and celebration, and, although hesitant at times, should improve with practice.

4. OTHER CHANGES

The following changes will either or both speed up the slow spots in the service and heighten the seasonal observances (in the way color changes do now)

a) The Venite (and Antiphon, if any) will be used normally as the procession into the choir. Exceptions will be the use of the Litany during Lent which will also replace the Psalm or Psalms, and the use of a Festival Procession with hymns and incense on the greater festivals.

b) The Gloria in Excelsis will be sung (standing) immediately following the Kyrie (except that it will be omitted during Lent) instead of after the Communion. This is its original place, completing the pleading of the Kyrie with a song of praise. Also Communion is the climax of the Liturgy, and the congregation should then move speedily to fellowship and the carrying of grace into the world.

c) The Fracture is restored to its proper sequence in the four action shape of the Liturgy. The Prayer of Consecration is the blessing of the bread and wine, concluding with the Lord's Prayer, after which the Bread is broken. The placing of a fraction of the Bread in the Chalice symbolizes redemption and reunion which is the purpose of the Eucharistic action. Please join in the response to the Celebrant's salutation.

CONCLUDING COMMENTS

1. These changes are the result of study and discussion; the point is to help our understanding of the Christian worshipping community and its vocation in today's world. The changes are experimental; we may want to review them, and at our parish dinner after the festival Eucharist on Ascension (May 19th) we shall have had two months' experience to discuss.

2. The changes are suggested for the principal Sunday service when the whole congregation is gathered together. It is suggested that our practice at the ordinary weekday services continue as they are.

Confirmation

The laying on of hands by the Bishop in confirmation is God's method of commissioning men and women for their ministry as laymen in the Church.

When adults come into the Church, confirmation may follow baptism immediately as it did in the early Church. When young children are baptized, confirmation is delayed for a number of years until the faith of their sponsors, in which they were baptized, becomes their own.

Entrance into the Church is through baptism and confirmation. In baptism we are born into the family of God. In confirmation we are strengthened by God the Holy Spirit for adult responsibilities in that family. Although the two sacraments are often administered separately they can best be understood as being parts of the two-fold initiatory rite of the Christian community.

In baptism, we renounce self-sufficiency, realizing that sin is our attempt to live without God. We are willing by faith to have our "old self" die and be buried with Christ in the waters of baptism. God raises us to new life in Christ, makes us members of the Church (that body of people who look to God for their security), and gives us the opportunity of living with Him through eternity.

In confirmation, we renew our vows of loyalty to Christ, we realize that the life to which we are called as Churchmen requires super-human power and in faith we kneel before the Bishop for the gift of the Holy Spirit. God enables us by His indwelling to continue His forever and daily increase in His Holy Spirit more and more until we come into His everlasting kingdom.

The chief privilege and responsibility of those confirmed is to take part in the offering of the Eucharist, our sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving.

Alive in Christ

Our Lord's death was the crowning moment of His life of union and obedience to the Father. It was the precondition for the Resurrection, essential for all that would follow.

Our mental picture of Jesus' dead body being removed from the Cross and laid in the grave of Joseph of Arimathea, terrible as it is, does not have about it the note of hopeless tragedy that would be appropriate to those grim events. To us who know the Risen Christ the scene is one of hushed expectation of that which was to follow.

We who are members of Christ's Church have a new kind of life that shares in the glories of the Resurrection, but we are also very much a part of what our Lord did on Calvary.

In Holy Baptism we pray that the newly baptized person "being dead unto sin may live unto righteousness," and "being buried with Christ in His death may also be (a) partaker of His resurrection."

This prayer is the key to our understanding of what it means to be alive in Christ. In the life of every Christian the twin themes of death and resurrection recur continually. In order that each of us be alive in Christ we must first undergo an experience which St. Paul likens to the physical death of our Lord. We must die to ourselves, renouncing the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil. We must die to sin in order to rise to newness of life in Christ.

In losing our former life we gain His life and appropriate, by faith, the grace to live a new kind of life, radiant with hope and power.

For those who have been buried with Christ death has no ultimate power. Our bodies may die and decay, but our life, because it partakes of the Resurrected Life of Christ, is safe with God forever.

The Christian and the Law

Ever since earliest times Christians have had to guard against the attraction of opposite and false attitudes towards law: too strict adherence or complete disregard.

The first attitude, legalism, exalts law to the status of absolute authority in human society. Socrates is said to have been willing to suffer grievous injustice and even death in order to uphold the law's claim to total obedience. Within Judaism a strain of thought developed which made the Law an end in itself, neglecting the righteous Lord who was the source of Law.

A deep sense of respect for the statutes and ordinances of the Old Covenant passed into Christianity and gave the Church a profound regard for the careful regulation of society, both civil and ecclesiastical.

But forces within and without the Church were soon attacking all law as "legalism", seeing in it a rigid, sterile and discredited approach to life. Christian freedom, they insisted, must express itself spontaneously, without regard to the narrow inhibitions of law. This total rejection of law within the Christian community, came to be called "antinomianism."

Both of these distorted viewpoints continue to make themselves heard today. Rather than make law a substitute for individual conscience (the fundamental error of the legalist), or disregard the moral experience of past ages (the besetting arrogance of the antinomian), the Church teaches us to respect law for what it is, to admit its necessity in human society, but never to make it an end in itself.

The law is given to us not to be the pathway of salvation but rather to provide essential guideposts on the way. It cannot become a substitute for God, nor even an infallible oracle of His will. And yet we disregard its wisdom at our peril.

The Gospel of Jesus Christ fulfills all the aspirations of human law, but it does not render the concept of law and order obsolete. Until God's will is done "on earth as it is in heaven", law will be an inevitable part of the structure of human society.

A Mighty Act of God

In the Book of Genesis creation is revealed as the first mighty act of God of which we have knowledge. As the story of creation unfolds, whether it be in Genesis or in the latest scientific theories, we see that all of life in its manifold forms depends upon the continuing renewal of nature. By this constant renewal, all worldly life is sustained.

To be more specific: our very life and being upon this earth depend upon the fertility of the land and upon the cycles of the seasons, all working according to the laws of God's universe. That which God brought in to being, He enlivens by the force of fertility, He governs by His laws.

The fertility of the land is an extension into the here and now of God's prime creative, life-giving act. Man's cooperation with God's plan—through the right use of the earth—conserves God's treasure. Our good stewardship of the earth and all its bounty provides us with the opportunity to involve ourselves in the extension of God's creative power.

When we pray at Rogationtide: "Let Thy breath go forth that it may renew the face of the earth", we affirm our faith in God's right-ordering of His creation. We pray also that we may be good stewards of that which God has entrusted to our good use: His earth and its bounty. We pray also for His pardon for our ravaging of the good earth, for our spoiling of His soil, for our waste of His bounty.

What God did once at the beginning of the universe, He renews each year in the harvests of the world, in the ever-changing cycles of life and growth; and we pray that we may know and do God's will with His creation.

This ensemble of forty voices will perform works of Victoria, Palestrina, Vecchi, Purcell, Michael Haydn, Franz Joseph Haydn, Brahms, Bruckner, and others. A premier of a new choral work is anticipated. All are welcome. The concert is without charge. The choir is under the direction of David H. Rinald.

FLOWERS: The flowers on the altar this Sunday are given in loving memory of J. Edwin Pancoast. Rest eternal grant unto him, O Lord, and may light perpetual shine upon him.

The Great Supper

When Jesus told the parable of the Great Supper He knew that the Scribes and Pharisees who frequently berated Him for keeping company with "sinners" would get the point. The story of the rich man who gave a great supper, only to have his gracious invitation scorned by those he had invited, should have made them uncomfortable.

They knew that God had summoned Israel to a position of honor and responsibility before all nations. Within that holy people there were none more zealous or more sincere in their piety than they. There were none who seemed more likely to hail the Messiah than these devout men who searched the Scriptures daily for hints about the Coming One.

Yet, tragically, these good men did not recognize the Savior when He stood in their midst. They did not understand that His summons to "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden" was the gracious invitation to eat bread in the Kingdom of God, the invitation they had awaited so long. And their opportunity to participate in the Great Supper of the Messiah was lost.

But God's purpose cannot be so easily thwarted. When those for whom His Kingdom has been prepared refuse it, His relentness love turns to others and compels them to come in, that His household may be filled with all sorts and conditions of men.

We can thank God that His wondrous love reaches us in our time and place, welcoming us to His heavenly table. The temptation to scorn His invitation, by thought, word, or deed, remains an ever-present danger. Only as we give thanks daily for the priceless opportunity to share in the feast of His love can we keep ourselves from the sins of the Scribes and the Pharisees, the complacency and pride which deafen the ears of those who do not heed the call of God in their day.

The Doctrine of the Trinity

The doctrine of the Trinity is not the result of serene and detached philosophic meditation. It is the Judeo-Christian experience of God in history put in terms that are meant to express the ultimate significance of that experience. To try to understand its meaning apart from the Church's life is like trying to find out what an olive tastes like without actually biting into one.

The foundations of the doctrine of the Trinity are laid in the revelation of God that was expressed daily by the Jews in their recital of the creed of Israel: "Hear O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord . . ." It was this confession of trust in the oneness and sovereignty of Almighty God that underlay the preaching and teaching of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Our Lord, without compromising the truth of God's oneness, linked Himself to the Godhead by saying: "I and my Father are one." To the Jews, this claim was blasphemy for it seemed to them to destroy the truth of God's oneness. For this our Lord was put to death.

God vindicated our Lord's claim to being a part of the Godhead by raising Him from the dead. Thereafter the disciples worshipped our Lord and spoke of Him in terms that would apply only to God.

After the Resurrection and their experience on the day of Pentecost, the disciples recognized a new life-giving power working in the life of their community and strengthening them as members of the Church. This power they identified as the Holy Spirit whom our Lord had promised them.

How was the Church to affirm all this—that God is one and that they had known Him in the flesh and had received His power in their lives? The Church's answer, and the one we continue to confess, is that God is Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, who are one in the eternal Godhead.

Cover: "Symbols of the Trinity." The equilateral triangle is symbolic of the three persons in the Godhead, the circle of the unity. The eye, fish and dove represent respectively the Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

Humility

"I am but a very 'umble man," said Uriah Heep, one of Charles Dickens' less attractive characters.

Uriah Heep's cringing and false servility is the very opposite, of course, of Christian humility, but for many of us the word "humility" tends to bring to mind just such a groveling attitude. Others may think of the humble person as being piously resigned and weak, "perpetually waiting to be kicked."

True humility is not self-abasement. For the Christian, being humble involves a true estimate of oneself and of one's relationship to God. The Christian does not deny his talents, abilities or achievements. Rather, he acknowledges them, as well as his sins, his inadequacies and his failures, all of which he has learned to examine in the light of the Gospel.

The Christian should be developing the ability to admit his mistakes and his faults. He can only do this in his knowledge of the greatness of his Redeemer and through an overwhelming sense of thankfulness at the greatness of the love and forgiveness that is poured upon him.

Finally, the Christian recognizes that humility lies not in what he says of himself, or what others say of him. His worth is not the value that the world assigns him or that which he assigns to himself.

The dignity of our manhood is given us by God, who has shown the perfect humility through His Son, "Who, though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men. And being found in human form he humbled himself and became obedient unto death, even death on the cross." (Philippians, 2:6)

Cheating God

In the fifth chapter of Acts, St. Luke tells the story of Ananias and Sapphira, the married couple who sold some possessions and brought their contribution to the common fund of the Jerusalem Church but held back a part of that contribution for their own use. When their selfishness was discovered, Scripture records, they suddenly died in remorse and shame.

Their deceit, their holding out on God, which Peter called "a lie to the Holy Spirit", is not unknown in the Church today.

Through sermons, stewardship programs and Bible study we Christians have been told about the true nature of our stewardship of our possessions. Like Ananias and Sapphira we know that what we own is merely entrusted to us by God and that His share is to be returned to Him through our pledges and regular contributions.

All too often, however, we decide that our good intentions to give to the Church will make up for the practice of real stewardship.

We consider our token contributions sufficient support for the work of our Lord. We let our pennies and dimes, casually offered, take the place of ungrudging sacrifice.

While our miserliness may not result in a sudden catastrophic end, St. Peter's words accuse us, too, of lying to the Holy Spirit.

By not giving to God of our means, by holding out on Him, we are cheating. And ours is a most profound deception; we are cheating God, our Creator, our Saviour, our Sanctifier.

HELP! WHAT'S GOING ON?

Make it known to the clergy if you are interested in singing in the choir, serving or layreading, assisting the altar guild, or teaching Sunday School.

Make it known to Scarlett Emerson if you are interested in the numerous community projects in which St. Mary's shares - assisting The Young Great Society with youth programs, being a den mother, being a host for the year for an international student or family, babysitting on an occasional Tuesday afternoon or morning so that wives of foreign students may learn English.

Consult the tract rack for registration in the Secular Faith Seminars which are in depth examinations of our foundations in the world of 1966.

The Fellowship of St. Dismas is a program of relationship between in-mates and out-mates, for the rehabilitation of prisoners. Out-mates are needed. If you are interested in further information, please see Dr. John L. Cornog of our parish, who is the President of the Fellowship in the Diocese.

Grief

The story of the raising of the widow's son at Nain tells us that our Lord was intensely aware of the spiritual suffering we call grief.

Nowhere in the gospel narratives does Jesus ignore sorrow and pain in this life. He seems, instead, to be drawn instinctively to the side of those in need, that He may offer divine strength and genuine compassion. He can both weep at the grave of a dear friend, Lazarus, and feel profound sympathy for a bereft stranger from a remote village.

The experience of grief is universal. Each of us should be prepared to meet the cold agony of bereavement. We should not be ashamed of grief nor try to hide our tears. Jesus did not hide His sorrow.

Nor should we expect a miracle—such as the raising of the widow's son—to spare us from sorrow. Such a sign of God's special grace is rare. In times of anguish we should try to appropriate that strength which will make it possible for us to bear our grief.

The loss of a loved one is a reality. But in accepting this reality we have the opportunity to be constructive agents of God's purposes. When the reality of death is not accepted, the bereaved person can become embittered and self-centered. On the other hand, when the sorrow is experienced as a part of our life in the risen Christ, growth in sanctity and faith results.

In the seeming finality of death much of the mystery of life can be revealed to us. In our loss we are given a glimpse of the brief nature of this life, a life which is merely a foretaste of the life which God has promised will be ours eternally.

For the faithful, death is a parting, and, like all partings, whether long or short, is accompanied by sorrow.

In a mysterious way, our grief, like all suffering, can be a sharing in the pain of the loving God who spared not His own Son from the cross and grave.

When we are grief-stricken we are never alone, although we may think so. The compassionate though unseen Christ, crucified and risen, is at our side, gently urging us to weep not in hopelessness but to rejoice always in hope.

Lancelot Andrewes

Saints are often found in unexpected places, but in early 17th century England the existence of a saint in the corrupt and frivolous court of King James I was accounted something of a marvel. Lancelot Andrewes was called upon to spend his life in the unenviable role of court bishop to that capricious monarch known as "the wisest fool in Christendom." Yet an age violently critical of "proud prelates" recognized in this bishop a man who walked humbly with his God and kept himself unspotted from the world.

Bishop Andrewes is an illustration of the truth that sanctity consists not so much in doing as in being. His life was not an eventful or exciting one—it is the story of a quiet Cambridge scholar whose literary gifts and learning captured the favor of the King, and who knew how to accept the responsibilities of a favorite's position without yielding to its dangerous temptations. High honors came to him; he was made successively Bishop of Chichester, Ely, and Winchester, a Privy Councillor of England, and Dean of the Chapel Royal. James demanded his constant attendance at court; he was the King's favorite preacher, and indeed was acknowledged the greatest preacher of his day. Chosen to make the official defense of the Church of England against Roman Catholic attacks, he performed his task with such masterly competence that England proudly celebrated his fame in the verse:

"If any ever merited to be
The Universal Bishop, this was he,
Great Andrewes, who the whole vast sea did drain
Of learning, and distilled it in his brain."

But it is for other achievements that Bishop Andrewes is remembered today. With his love of beauty and dignity in worship, his devotion to the Fathers of the early Church, and his insistence on the primary importance of the Christian Sacraments, he stands at the head of those great divines of the 17th century who taught the English Church anew the glories of her Catholic heritage.

His way with the rebellious Puritans was typical of his character—"our guiding must be mild and gentle, else it is not leading but driving; rather by an inward and sweet influence to lead than by an outward extreme violence to force them forward." Perhaps the best example of such influence was in the publication of his Preces Privatae, (Private Prayer), in which Scriptural and ancient devotional sources are interwoven in a rich pattern of prayer and praise that has made the book one of the familiar classics of the Christian world. Add further Andrewes' important part in producing the Authorized Version of the Bible, and we have a memorable legacy of Christian devotion.

Nicolas Ferrar

In our day much is said about the relationship of the Christian Faith to our daily life, both in respect to our families and to our jobs. We know that our commitment to Christ, if it is to mean anything, must bear fruit in our daily lives. The practical question is: how is this to be done?

In the 17th century an English family named Ferrar found one answer. The solution is not one that could be transplanted readily to 20th century America, but at least their life at Little Gidding shows that a solution is possible.

A layman named Nicholas Ferrar, after a successful business life, took his father's inheritance and bought a decrepit estate in Huntingdonshire called Little Gidding. There he gathered his kinsfolk and established a community whose sole aim was to serve God.

Prayer played an important part in the life at Little Gidding. At five o'clock each morning the members of the community started the day by coming together to memorize portions of the Bible. This was followed by a regular round of services, including Morning and Evening Prayer and the Litany. At night a watch was kept in the little church the family had restored.

Work was not neglected. The children went to school and the adults engaged in such activities as bookbinding, embroidery, the compilation of a harmony of the Gospels and practical service to the poor and needy.

Regular periods for recreation were included. Games and music and reading were seen as means of serving God as surely as were work and prayer. Ferrar believed that churchgoing should be an occasion of joy and beauty (a notion which did not meet with approval from his Puritan neighbors) and an hour's time was allotted for dressing for church on Sundays!

Nicholas Ferrar, who had been ordained deacon by Bishop Laud, died in 1637. Eight years later the community was dispersed and the church was desecrated by the Puritans. Nothing remained, but to this day the life of Little Gidding has remained an example of Christian family life. It was a form of that life which is not possible for most of us, but the joy of learning and service which were characteristic of the Ferrar household are possible for all.

"Thy service is perfect freedom," wrote Ferrar; "how happy are we that thou dost constantly retain us in the daily exercises thereof!"

John Coleridge Patteson

God makes saints of unlikely people. A shy and scholarly country parson is not an obvious candidate for dramatic martyrdom, and yet it was just such a parson whose blood became the seed of the Church in the Islands of the South Pacific.

John Coleridge Patteson was brought to Melanasia in 1855 by Bishop Selwyn of New Zealand, who had once been his teacher at Eton. Bishop Selwyn saw in Patteson two qualities which were needed in the Islands: a great natural talent for languages and a complete devotion to our Lord and His Church. These two qualities and a small sailing ship were all that Patteson had as he began his mission.

The work progressed rapidly. Patteson learned the languages of the Islands as quickly as possible so that he might teach the natives in their own tongues. He founded a training school for native boys on Norfolk Island so that the islanders might hear of the mercies of God from one of their own people.

The need for more missionaries was obvious, but Patteson saw the dangers in an influx of second-rate English clergy. "Men sent out as clergymen to the Mission field who would not have been thought fit to receive Holy Orders at home are not at all the men we want. It is not at all probable that such men would understand the natives, love them, and live with them . . . The pride of race which prompts a white man to regard coloured people as inferior to himself . . . must be wholly eradicated before they will ever win hearts and thus the souls of the heathen."

In 1861, Patteson was consecrated the first Bishop of Melanasia. His work continued, but it was greatly hampered by his fellow white men who were slave-traders, and whose raids on the islands did little to commend Europeans or Christianity to the natives. Knowing the affection for the bishop, the raiders used his name to lure men aboard their ships.

In 1871, the slave-traders raided the island of Nukapu in the Solomons and killed five men. A few months later, Bishop Patteson went ashore on Nukapu for the last time. On the afternoon of September 20th, the crew of the sailing ship "Southern Cross" waited outside the reef surrounding the island. A canoe drifted toward them, its contents covered by a mat. When the mat was removed, they found the body of John Patteson. He had been wounded five times. On the body a palm branch was laid, with five knots tied in the leaves.

Bishop Patteson's body lies today in the cathedral on Guadalcanal. His greatest memorial, however, is to be found in the hearts and lives of the Christians of Melanasia. The effectiveness of his work can be seen in the words of a native who talked with him just before his death.

"I don't know how to pray properly," the man said, "but I and my wife say: 'God, make our hearts light. Take away the darkness. We believe that You love us because You sent Jesus to become a man and die for us; but we can't understand it all. Make us fit to be baptized.'"

Apostle to China

High on the list of those whose souls have been aflame with the love of Christ is the name of Samuel Schereschewsky, the Lithuanian Jew who became an Anglican Bishop in China.

Schereschewsky was a 15-year-old rabbinical student when he first saw a copy of the New Testament and became convinced that in Jesus the Messianic prophecies of the Old Testament had been fulfilled. Giving up his rabbinical studies he came to America, was baptized and ultimately entered the General Theological Seminary where his talents as a linguist were soon recognized. When the Bishop of Shanghai asked for men to work in China, he volunteered and began his unique vocation, about which he wrote:

"The Gospel of Christ is to be made honorable in every respect. To preach in an incomprehensible gibberish to such a people as the Chinese, who, perhaps more than any other people, are fastidious about language, is anything but making it honorable."

Of the 60,000 characters in written Chinese the average Chinese knows six to seven hundred. Schereschewsky mastered 10,000. Within eight years of his arrival in China he had translated the Prayer Book and the Old Testament into Mandarin, the official written language of three fourths of the Empire, and had assisted with the translation of the New Testament.

When he was elected Bishop of Shanghai in 1875, he refused in order to continue his work of translation. When reelected in 1877, he accepted on condition that the bishops help raise money for a Christian college in China—St. John's College—of which he was the first president.

The last 24 years of his life he was completely paralyzed, but, by poking at typewriter keys with a stick held in his two useable fingers and working nine hours a day, he revised the Mandarin Old Testament and translated the entire Bible into 2,500 pages of Wenli, the language of the educated Chinese. He was working on the Apocrypha when he died in 1906 at the age of 75.

It appears unlikely that a Lithuanian Jew should end up as an Anglican bishop in China. Yet God chose this unlikely means to bring the Good News of Christ to millions of His beloved children.

INTERCESSIONS

The prayer of the congregation at The Sunday Liturgy is a mighty act of faith and witness. If you have intentions that you would like offered during The Prayer for the Church, please make them known to the clergy or ushers before the service begins.

FLOWERS

The flowers on the Altar are given in loving memory of Annie H. Pancoast. May light perpetual shine upon her.

SEMINARS

Through the Free University Fr. Wilson is leading a seminar "The Poet as Loving Doubter & Doubting Lover"-Tuesday evenings, and Fr. Scott is leading one on Contemporary attitudes on Love, Sex, & Marriage beginning Monday at 8:00 P.M. at the C.A.

Are others interested in a seminar on The Bible in the light of new & current thought (i.e. not Biblical criticism)? A number of persons have requested such a study. Please let Fr. Scott know your intentions. A likely first meeting will be next Sunday, early evening.

Christian Agitators

A long tradition of outspoken dissent is an important part of our Christian heritage. The prophet Elijah, nine hundred years before the birth of Christ, was addressed by King Ahab as "he that troubleth Israel." And Amos the prophet warned the people of his time, "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion."

John the Baptist accused all righteous Pharisees and respectable Sadducees who came within earshot of being "a generation of vipers." The record of our Lord's public ministry shows Him as being in repeated conflict with the religious authorities of His time and relentless in exposing their spiritual blindness.

Such judgments on human society, whether sacred or secular, are the responsibility of Christian men and women in every age. By virtue of our incorporation into the Body of Christ the Church, we are called to declare the will of God prophetically to the time in which we live, even to the Church itself. Because God has called His Church to share in the prophetic ministry of His Son we are obliged to "speak the truth in love" about everything in human culture.

Often this means that Christians may be saying unpopular or even shocking things about ordinary life or the Church's role in it. Whenever we attempt to hold up contemporary happenings to the judgment of God we may well be accused of "rocking the boat" or of "upsetting the status quo," but we have little choice if we are to be true to our vocation in Christ.

We may be mistaken in our judgment, but when we speak the truth as we see it in love, God will use that love even if our appraisal is wrong. There are also times when the prophetic voice must uphold the truth as it is, even though a call to change may be more acceptable to our fellows.

Much as the Church loves peace the Prayer Book also bids us pray God to "stir up" the wills of His faithful people, to arouse us to creative participation in His Kingdom. To be at ease in Zion, content in silent apathy and unconcern, can never be our calling as Christians.

Now, as perhaps never before, God is summoning us to awake out of sleep and to begin to bring forth the fruit of good works, that we may be revolutionary agents of His love in our time and place.

The Ember Days

Four times each year, the Church's calendar reminds us to pray for the ordained ministry, especially that God the Holy Spirit may "put it into the hearts of many to offer themselves for this ministry."

The word "ember" is itself a corruption of quatemper, a German word which derives from the Latin quattuor tempora, or the "four seasons."

The four Ember Seasons, each observed for three days, are fixed as the Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday following the First Sunday in Lent, the Feast of Pentecost, September 14th, and December 13th. Their occurrence at these times coincides with the seasonal changes, a fact which suggests that somewhere in the remote past they were meant to be Christian correctives to pagan rites of seedtime, harvest, and vintage.

Whatever their exact origin, the Ember Days remain significant because they remind us that the ordained ministry must be supported by the prayers of the whole Church.

Those who share the ministry of Christ as bishops, priests, or deacons have been set apart by the Church to be "messengers, watchmen, and stewards of the Lord." Their office is one of abiding joy, but it is also a great responsibility. They urgently need the prayers of the faithful to accomplish the task committed to their charge.

Moreover, the need for others to share this ministry never ceases. The harvest of souls to be won to Christ always remains plenteous and the laborers few. The prayers of every Christian are needed now as never before to commend the work of the ordained ministry to God.

That is why the Church bid us pray for our clergy with seasonal regularity and faithfulness at the Ember Days.

Rejoice in the Lord

Once there lived a man. He was a proud man, but he had sinned and he had erred. He had persecuted innocent people, had taken them to jail and had cheered their death. He had stood by while a mob killed a man by stoning.

Yet, because of his encounter with Jesus Christ this man found himself to be a new creation, a different person. In spite of his past, the new life he found in Christ was one of joy and anticipation; joy in serving his Lord, and anticipation of the heavenly meeting which awaited him. And to the Church at Philippi he wrote, "Rejoice in the Lord always."

This man was St. Paul.

Many modern Christians appear to be unaware of this note of joy in their faith. They seem to think that their past sins are always to be remembered, that their guilt is to continue to press in upon them in order that they may be reminded of the enormity of their transgressions. The grim solemnity of the popular caricature of the Puritan is thought of as being typical of the Christian mind. Paul's attitude, however, is quite different.

Our faith should be a cause for joy and gladness. Because we are new creatures, baptized into Christ's life, our lives can take on new hope and a new dimension. Our Lord accepts us, sins and sinners, for what we are. Our past only makes possible a new future.

When we fail, we recognize our failure for what it is and renew our intention to be guided by His purposes. When we succeed, we find joy that He has used us in those purposes.

The life in Christ is a new kind of life, a life that finds joy in His forgiveness, a life that rejoices in the knowledge that He attends every failure and success.

To rejoice in the Lord is to welcome Him gladly to every aspect of our life.

Mystery

A mystery is something that is unknown or unknowable; an event or circumstance that cannot be explained.

The Christian religion, although rooted in actual events of history, is a religion based on a mystery and nourished by mystery.

Because of this element of mystery many people of the 20th century dismiss as superstitious, ignorant, or gullible, those who believe in the Christian God. They find those people incredibly naive who try to direct their lives by the teaching and example of a Man proclaimed to be the Son of God and the supernatural Saviour.

These skeptics find the world of the physical sciences, with its dependence upon verifiable and demonstrable truth, a more acceptable basis for their lives than an uncomfortable accommodation to a mystery.

It would be comforting, indeed, if the total of human experience could be understood and verified in the same way that men understand algebra or the periodic table in chemistry. But human experience does not altogether lend itself to such understanding.

Man's origin, existence and destiny are embedded in the mystery of Creation. Christianity is based upon the mystery of God assuming the nature of man. Christian redemption is based on the mystery of the crucified Christ who died and was buried and who was raised from the dead.

In one sense, the Apostles' Creed is an enumeration of a series of mysteries on which the Christian takes his stand in evaluating his own life and the world around him.

Epiphany is the season when Christians celebrate the Messiah's showing-forth to the world. The Christ Child, sleeping in the arms of the Virgin Mary and adored by the Wise Men, is the revelation of the sublime mystery of God's nature and of the unsearchable riches of God's love for all mankind.

But to the Christian the mystery of the Being of God has been revealed in the Epiphany of Jesus Christ.

Mission

During the Epiphany season Christians commemorate the showing-forth of the Infant Saviour Jesus to the Gentile world. Everyone knows the story of the three kingly wise men and their long journey following the star which led them at last to the stable and the Holy Family. Their wondering adoration and their offering of gifts are familiar to all.

Tender and appealing as this story is, it is just another story if we consider it all by itself. Its power does not rest in its literary value. It is of significance to our lives because of the identity of the Baby, seen by the Wise Men, in the arms of the Virgin Mary.

This Baby was the Son of God, born of a human mother, a Baby who came into the turbulent stream of history to effect a mighty salvation for all humanity. This revelation of Christ to the Gentile kings was a prototype and prophecy of what was to follow in time, when hundreds of millions of Gentiles would also come to seek and worship the Saviour.

God did not perform His mighty work of salvation through Jesus Christ in secrecy. He meant it to be known and understood by all who had ears to hear and eyes to see. In the Epiphany events we see the pattern which God has established for the spread of the Gospel to all men: the Gospel forever must be carried by men to other men.

Seen in this light, the Epiphany is not just an excuse for a Church School pageant. Rather, it tells us of God's demand that Christians participate in His ongoing revelation of Christ to the world.

In the beautiful story of the Epiphany is the unmistakable demand imposed upon us, whatever our time and wherever we live: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

The Christian understanding of Mission can be no less than this.

ALL NATIONS

Week of Prayer

Recognizing the scandal of our divisions and the need for common witness, Christians around the world are coming to see the reunion of Christendom as a necessity if the mission of the Church is to be carried out.

There are those who are dubious about reunion. Some are concerned lest all Christians be swallowed up in Rome; others fear that compromises and accommodations may bring us to a lowest common denominator which will be nothing less than a betrayal of the Faith. Many are distressed at the tendency of American Christians to subscribe to a naive doctrine of inevitable progress through committees and conferences.

From the human outlook, these are all legitimate reservations, and we are less than honest if we fail to admit that the road to reunion is a rocky one.

In spite of the difficulties, however, Christians of all persuasions are determined to press for the healing of the divisions in Christ's Body. There are ways in which we can work together. It is possible now, as it was not possible twenty-five years ago, for Christians to talk together in charity and with candor. We are beginning to take the first steps together.

The Week of Prayer for Christian Unity is typical of our common ventures. In the United States, the National Council of Churches and the Roman Catholic Church have together issued a booklet of prayers and Bible readings to be used during the week preceding the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, January 25th. First published in 1966, the booklet allows Christians of many persuasions to join in bringing the problems of our divisions before God.

God can do in us what we cannot hope to do for ourselves. The wisdom and power of God can show us the next steps which we should take and can give us the courage to take those steps. There is always the danger that the reluctant among us may try to substitute prayer for action, and that the activists may attempt to justify hasty schemes on the grounds that they are the fruit of prayer.

The Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, if it is observed wisely and widely by Christians of diverse backgrounds and convictions, can be a means by which our reluctance may be overcome and our haste restrained, that together we may move toward Christ, and thus toward each other.

Bishop Temple

Few churchmen have made a greater impression on their age than William Temple. The son of a learned and illustrious father, Frederick Temple, who was Archbishop of Canterbury from 1897 to 1902, William Temple went on to occupy that most prominent chair himself in 1942.

At his death in 1944 Archbishop Temple was mourned by all sorts and conditions of men, Anglican and non-Anglican alike, because he had demonstrated his own zeal and concern for the spiritual and material welfare of all of God's children.

Temple began his career as a teacher, serving first as a Fellow of Queen's College, Oxford and then as Headmaster at Repton. Following in the academic tradition of English clergymen, he soon became recognized for his intellectual brilliance and scholarship. He was never content, however, to divorce learning from the problems of everyday life. He was always acutely aware of the need to relate faith and life and was active from his youth in the social ministry of the Church.

Keenly interested in social and economic reform he was the friend of labor and was the first president (1908-1924) of the Workers' Educational Association. His book, Christianity and Social Order remains today an influential and forthright statement of his sincere desire to bring religion and modern society into a creative dialogue.

Devoted as he was to the improvement of the material conditions of human life, Temple never forgot the prior need for spiritual unity, especially among fellow Christians. He gave his wholehearted support to the Faith and Order and the Life and Work Movements, the forerunners of the World Council of Churches.

He also worked with Roman Catholic and Protestant churchmen during World War II in issuing a statement of Christian principles to guide the post-war settlement.

Anglicanism can well be thankful for this "peoples' Archbishop," a man whose words and deeds did so much in the recent past to make Christian people more deeply conscious of their mission to bring the light of Christ into a dark world.

Redeemed Man

We all like to stand on our own two feet and owe no man. Difficult as this objective may be, it is within the reach of many, and for all men it is a worthy goal in their relationship with other men.

Unfortunately, many of us who achieve this goal think that our relationship with God can be put on the same basis. Here we err. Everything we have and are we owe to God, but by our very nature we can never pay this debt, even in part. The key to our dilemma is found in the word "redemption," and for this reason the Church talks not of "debt-free" man, but of redeemed man.

If something is to be redeemed we know a price must be paid. This price may be great or small, depending on the value of that which is to be redeemed. To redeem a diamond costs more than to redeem a suitcase. To redeem a man's soul is beyond anyone's capacity to pay. But it was precisely such a price that had to be paid for our redemption.

Jesus Christ, by His sacrificial life and His death on the cross, paid the price of sin. This is the wonderful good news of our redemption, the announcement that God Himself has offered His only-begotten Son to be our ransom.

We call Jesus our Redeemer because He it was who gave Himself for the life of the world. No one else could have taken this divine role upon himself for, as the psalmist said centuries before our Lord's time, "... no man may deliver his brother, nor give a ransom unto God for him." (Ps. 49:7)

As we contemplate our infinite debt of gratitude to God for our redemption and salvation, we may be helped to meditate upon this sublime fact by the final stanza of Johann Heermann's beautiful hymn, "Ah, holy Jesus":

"Therefore, kind Jesus, since I cannot pay thee,
I do adore thee, and will ever pray thee,
Think on thy pity and thy love unswerving,
Not my deserving."

If Christ Be Not Risen

Without the Resurrection of Jesus Christ there is no truth in the Christian Gospel. If Easter is a fraud, so is Christianity.

The plain truth about the necessity of believing in the Resurrection of Jesus Christ was put succinctly by St. Paul many centuries ago in his first Epistle to the Corinthian Church:

" . . . and if Christ be not risen then is our preaching vain and your faith is also vain . . . and if Christ be not raised your faith is vain and ye are yet in your sins."

Since the very beginning of the Christian Church, there have always been those who find the way the Bible describes the Resurrection of Jesus Christ too hard to believe. Not all of these doubters were outside the Church. Nor are they today.

No one can comprehend the way in which God in Christ conquered death, and no one can claim that life in the Church dispels all doubts and questions. There are those who ask God to do it their way, to accommodate His will to the latest scientific fashion. And there are those who seek to force all men into their own mold, leaving no room for questioning on matters which are difficult for all.

The basic error in both cases is the same: mortal and finite men judging the method of salvation chosen by the omnipotent and invisible God.

It is tempting for men of every age to be "intellectually respectable." But the human intellect did not make the world. We must deal with facts, and for Christians there is a primary fact which ultimately matters: the triumph of Christ over sin and death.

It is this fact of God's action in the Resurrection of Christ that holds the promise of redemption. It is this fact of the Resurrection that has been the way to life for Christians of every age.

Christian College Day

For many years the Episcopal Church has virtually ignored its church-related colleges. We have given them almost no financial support. We have sent them almost no students. We have even forgotten them in our prayers. For the most part, these colleges have survived in spite of us, not because of us.

Perhaps some of our apathy has been due to a legitimate lack of interest in perpetuating the kind of training that is offered by some church-related schools. Too many denominational schools, including a few sponsored by the Episcopal Church, have tried to substitute ecclesiasticism for learning. The result, in the minds of many people, has been a bad name for all church-related institutions of learning.

It is important, however, that education not be deprived of the Christian witness. In these days of increasingly exclusive specialization there is a need for the church-related college which can provide the unifying influence of a broad world-view which sees all knowledge as a gift from God. There is need for communities of Christian scholars who can work gladly and courageously and, it is hoped, redemptively, with their non-Christian colleagues in the pursuit of truth.

There is a need for small colleges that can avoid becoming enslaved by government and other benefactors, in order that society may profit from free and imaginative criticism. There is need for intellectual communities in which the Christian disciplines are free to contend for the mind of modern men and women. Church-related colleges are necessary if these needs are to be met.

The colleges presently related to the Episcopal Church are trying to work out a decent and honest relationship between the Church and the academy. It must be admitted that in these colleges the Church sometimes seems to get submerged. It must also be acknowledged that the Church has not been generous in demonstrating its concern for and support of its colleges.

The Episcopal Church has a great opportunity to bear an important witness in the present day. It is up to Episcopalians to see that this opportunity is not ignored and abandoned.

Every Christian's Calling

The manner in which God the Holy Spirit came to the early Church assembled in Jerusalem in those exciting days following our Lord's resurrection and ascension was unique.

The Apostles and other members of the Church who experienced the first Pentecost were indeed "filled with the Holy Ghost." The evidence that something utterly remarkable had happened to them is recorded for us by St. Luke in the second chapter of his Acts of the Apostles:

"When the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them."

The Scripture goes on to tell how, by the indwelling power of the Holy Spirit, these early Christians were enabled to proclaim "the wonderful works of God" to the multi-lingual throng gathered from "every nation under heaven."

That this experience was unique does not mean we cannot share in the great gift that was given that first Pentecost. The Holy Spirit Himself is given to us as we enter the Body of Christ in baptism and confirmation. The Spirit of truth, said our Lord, "dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." God the Holy Ghost is ever with His Church, strengthening and moving each of us to witness to the wonder of the divine love.

It is every Christian's calling, therefore, to be a faithful witness to the Creator, Redeemer and Sustainer of all things. We must learn to heed the Spirit's promptings, yielding ourselves more and more to the fire of His charity and the vigor of His indwelling power.

Since Pentecost, the gift of God's Spirit is no longer the exclusive property of a few spiritually-gifted souls such as were the prophets and seers of Old Testament times. Our Lord the Spirit is each Christian's Counsellor. He never ceases to remind us that our mission is to proclaim that the Church, "the fellowship of the Holy Ghost," is truly the household of faith for every man and every nation seeking to worship Almighty God "in spirit and in truth."

Do It Yourself Religion

About the beginning of the fifth century, there appeared in Rome a traveler from Britain, a very holy and learned monk named Pelagius. He was scandalized by the worldliness of the Christians and in his preaching exhorted men to adopt a more virtuous and ascetic life. When people reminded him that "the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak", he uncompromisingly replied, "Where there's a will there's a way."

Pelagius' ministry was short, but he left enthusiastic disciples who became centers of stormy controversy. Their smug optimism as to man's ability to lift himself to God by his own spiritual bootstraps was rightly condemned by the Church at the third general Council of Ephesus in 431. And in reaction to Pelagianism there developed the pessimistic doctrine of irresistible grace and predestination.

It was a hundred years before the Church finally resolved the quarrel between these two extreme points of view. The resolution of the struggle was a definition by the Council of Orange that man's will is free but that God's action alone begins and sustains man's growth in the life to which God calls him.

This true Christian teaching is that God proffers his grace to sinners, who may respond or refuse. If they respond, God gives additional grace to enable them to perform the good intentions He has given them. This teaching avoids the shallow optimism which places too much confidence in man's ability to achieve righteousness by his own inherent powers, and the fatalism which ascribed both good and evil to God or some other power or force outside of man.

Both of these opposite errors lead ultimately to despair. Humanism, the first error, raises our hopes for peace and prosperity and happiness by means of science and democracy and education. The frustration of these hopes by the hard facts of life, by war and depression and exploitation, leads many to determinism, the other error. This error in turn opens the way for the dictator who promises to do for man what man thinks he cannot do for himself.

Only the Christian reliance on God offers a way out of the dilemma.

Original Sin

Most of us enjoy talking about sins, particularly the more spectacular sins of other people. Serious discussion, however, about sin—original sin, that deep and universal defect of character we all share—is something else again. To say that a small child is in the grip of Sin sounds so pessimistic and so theoretical that we dismiss the entire concept of sin as being an ancient doctrinal absurdity. We content ourselves with the titillating aspects of sinning.

For the Christian, this superficial talk is not enough. The New Testament is concerned primarily with Sin, rather than sins. St. Paul sees unredeemed man as caught in the trap of his "deceitful lusts": the lust for power, the lust for security and acceptance, and the profound deceit of self-justifying rationalization.

All of these are characteristic of that defiant creature which the Epistle to the Ephesians calls "the old man." It is not that man has committed a few or even a great many sins; what matters ultimately is that he is a sinner.

The useful aspect of the phrase "the old man," our unredeemed self, is that it helps us to see that the solution does not lie in moral improvement but in new birth, a new creation in Christ. We are to put on Christ, the "new man" who has come to set us free from the sinfulness of the old man. A new existence is offered to us, not merely a good example.

On this basic level, therefore, we can talk about the rebirth of the apparently innocent child quite as realistically as we can speak of the rebirth of the sin-encrusted octogenarian. In each case, "righteousness and true holiness" are gifts which are conveyed in Christ. The sinner is clothed in holiness by God and thus is enabled to be free to grow in fellowship with God.

This growth, which we call "sanctification," is often a long process, but it is a process which is rooted in God's love. It is the only way out of original sin for any of us.

The Episcopal Church

When the Revolutionary War ended, the political independence it brought the nation meant that the Church had to make changes also. The Church of England had been the source of government and guidance for the Church in the Colonies. Now Anglican clergy and laymen in the new United States found themselves leaderless and disorganized.

The immediate needs of the orphaned Church in America were an episcopate to ordain and confirm, a revised Prayer Book suitable for use in the new republic, and a form of self-government.

Through the vision and labor of two priests, Samuel Seabury of Connecticut and William White of Pennsylvania, the initial steps to solve these problems were taken. Seabury received consecration in 1784 at the hands of three Scottish bishops, and the following year in Philadelphia White presided over the first General Convention.

By 1789 White and Samuel Provoost of New York had been consecrated in England and there were now enough bishops in America to carry on the succession. In this same year the second session of the Convention approved a new Prayer Book and established the Church's present two-house system of government, the House of Bishops and the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies. This Prayer Book and this system of government are substantially the same today.

The General Convention, which meets every three years, has the power to amend the Constitution and Canons of the Church and to authorize changes in the Book of Common Prayer. As the legislative body of the Church, it establishes policy and adopts a budget to carry out the Church's program. Since 1919 the Executive Council (formerly called the National Council) has acted as the Convention's interim agency to carry on the missionary, educational, and social program established by the General Convention.

All Saints' Day

The Feast of All Saints is the day the Church remembers men and women whose names the world has largely forgotten. Some of them were smart, but they were not quite brilliant enough to prevent our forgetting them. Some of them were courageous, but they were not quite brave enough for us to remember them as heroes. Some of them were stupid, but they were not quite stupid enough for us to think of them as quaint.

These are the "holy common people of God." They are common not because they are drab, but because they are a cross-section of humanity. Kings and bishops, slaves and acolytes, every walk of life is represented. From the first century to the twentieth, hundreds of thousands of them have fought under Christ's banner against sin, the world, and the devil, and have now come to share in Christ's triumph.

It is in this battle of Christian love against evil that we see another sort of commonness in the saints. There are only ten Commandments to be broken, and there are only seven gifts of the Holy Spirit to receive. Thus their failings are the same as our failings, and the power which was available to them is available to us.

Their ambitions, joys, frustrations, and fears were all the same as ours. They got just as hungry and just as tired. Their minds wandered in church, and they lost their tempers with their children. Their loved ones died and they missed them, and their husbands or wives often failed to understand them.

But it is from these things which we have in common with them that their uncommonness begins to emerge. The saints lived ordinary lives, but they lived them with extraordinary conviction that Jesus Christ had a claim to make upon those lives. Their lives were saintly in that they were offered to God, consecrated, set apart, made uncommon. Their lives were sacramental, common things given to God in order that God might use them as symbols and as instruments of His love.

The great saints, the wonderful heroes of Christian history, ought not to be forgotten. But an army consisting solely of generals would be in trouble. Those whom we remember on the feast of All Saints are the common folk of the Christian army, those who, unrecognized, carried Christ's love into the seemingly insignificant places where all battles are really won. These are the holy common people of God, those who have "come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." (Eph. 4:13)

SON OF GOD

Who is Jesus Christ? Men have answered this question in many ways, some devoutly and some blasphemously.

Because no single answer can sum up the wonder of God Incarnate, the Church, in seeking to express its faith, has also given many responses. The best answer, however, is that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.

From the beginning, Christians have felt compelled to witness to the unique relationship between Jesus and God the Father. St. Luke tells us that our Lord began in childhood to understand His special relationship with God. When he was only 12 years old He went to the temple to be "about His Father's business."

All the evangelists bear witness to Jesus' calling at His baptism, when the divine voice declared, "Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

Again, at His transfiguration, the voice spoke out of the cloud to Peter, James and John, saying, "This is my beloved Son . . . hear ye him."

The ultimate mystery of our Lord's knowledge of His relationship to the Father is hidden from us. We cannot know how He came to His knowledge that He was the Son of God, aside from these occasional moments of revelation.

And yet we have a clue to their tenderness and intimacy in our Lord's use of the Aramaic word Abba, a child's way of addressing his father. Only Jesus could call God "Abba" because He alone knew the perfect love and trust toward God that a youngster has for a beloved parent.

By His obedience to the will of His heavenly Father, our Lord showed Himself a worthy Son. His profound intuition of Sonship was embodied in all that He said and did in His mission and ministry. And the Father did not forsake His Son in His time of suffering and death. He raised Him up in power and authority to His right hand to share the divine rule that all who seek His Kingdom may become obedient to the Father, "sons of God . . . that believe on his name."

The Twelve Days of Christmas

One of the most delightful and popular of all the non-religious Christmas songs is "The Twelve Days of Christmas." With its medieval imagery of gifts brought by a lover to his beloved, the song conjures up a picture of the festive old-world celebration of the Christmas season of centuries ago.

The song is secular but it does serve to remind the world of a fact many of us have forgotten—that the Feast of the Nativity of our Lord is not just a one-day affair but lasts from December 25 until the Epiphany, January 6.

In an earlier time, when life was less complex and varied, men looked forward to their holidays as times of welcome relief from the monotony of their daily existence. And the greatest feast of all was Christmas—the mid-winter festival which lasted for 12 days. Today, when commercial preparations for Christmas begin before Thanksgiving Day, almost all of us breathe an exhausted sigh when the hectic celebration finally ends December 25.

Somehow we have to find a way to right the balance. One way is to return to the ancient custom of celebrating Christmas for 12 days. After four weeks of Advent it is a mistake in our understanding to keep the feast of the Incarnation for only one day. For this reason the Church calendar extends Christmas until the Epiphany. Keeping a good Advent prepares us for the tremendous impact of the Incarnation. And then it is well to keep the season of joy and gaiety for the old measure of twelve days. Medieval men and women were not slow to mark the entire season with feasting, dancing and merrymaking.

The Prayer Book provides that these 12 days be a time for relaxing our regular Friday fast. All Fridays of the year are days of abstinence "except Christmas Day, and the Epiphany, or any Friday which may intervene between these Feasts."

The Church in her calendar has provided a sane scheme for our times of fast and feast. If we lived by the calendar we would discover the riches and peace that come from this balance.

The In Group

Few experiences are more gratifying than the sudden awareness that one really "belongs," that one has "arrived." To stand on the inside with a group of compatible and like-minded people and look at those on the outside is a source of great satisfaction.

Our desire to be loved, to be wanted, to be accepted by our peers, is part of our nature. But when we exclude others in order to bolster our own sense of belonging and worthiness, this kind of exclusiveness is sinful.

Exclusiveness is sinful because it leads to the dehumanization both of those who are "out" and those who are "in." The outs are regarded by those on the inside as being less bright, less knowing, less acceptable in some way or other.

Those on the inside are saying, "We are the ones who count. We are the ones who are worth while." What they mean is, "We are the ones who determine who is worth while and who is not," and no man has this right.

Feelings of exclusiveness are especially dangerous in the Church because they encourage our tendency to exalt ourselves. They are also particularly inappropriate because they encourage us to set ourselves up as the judges of who is acceptable in the eyes of the Lord—a privilege that is His alone.

St. Paul warns us not to think more highly of ourselves than we ought but to remember that faith is a gift from God and is therefore not of our doing. He also reminds us that if we are members of Christ, we are members one of another. We are Christians together or not at all, and every man living is eligible for inclusion in this least exclusive and most wonderful of groups.

During the Epiphany season we celebrate this openness and inclusiveness. Jew and Gentile, the ancient Magi and the newest citizen of the most recently emerging nation are all invited to membership in Christ. Our common faith transcends political and ideological boundaries. Our common service calls on all to participate. Our common goal gives meaning to every life.

Diversities of Gifts

The Greek story of the bed of Procrustes is a terrifying one. House guests too short for the bed were stretched on a rack until they fit; those too tall had their feet lopped off. Conformity, for guests in that strange household, was made a physical necessity, not merely a social virtue.

Unhappily, there is a bit of Procrustes in each of us. We tend to assume that we are normal, that we are right, that we are the standard. We look with suspicion on those who seem to be taller—more intelligent, more pious, more affluent—and we often seek to trim them down to size. We are impatient with those who are less endowed, with those who are satisfied with lesser goals, with those who appear to be shorter than we, and we demand that they stretch to fit our standards.

St. Paul deals with this difficulty in the Epistle to the Romans. The early Christians, just like their modern offspring, tended to be unhappy with those of their brethren who had received a different tradition or who valued different gifts. Parties sprang up; sides were chosen; the unity of Christ's Body was threatened.

St. Paul does not deny the reality of these differences. He does not suggest that all should be made to conform to a single standard. Rather, he suggests that there is a reason for diversity. The richness of God's grace is too great for any one man or any one group to encompass it. The Holy Spirit chooses to give us a variety of gifts, for only a variety of gifts will enable us to show forth the fulness of Christ to the world; only a diversity of graces will enable us to do God's work in the world.

For those who persist in playing Procrustes, the road leads only to spiritual sterility, poverty, and isolation. For those who are willing to try to discern the will of the Holy Spirit in the almost infinite variety of human gifts, the way is one of wonder and of delight. Surely heaven is full of splendid and improbable riches. Perhaps our gratitude for the diversity of gifts which God gives us is one of the ways in which we prepare for life with Him.

What Is Church Unity?

Jesus prayed to the Father that His disciples "... all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us ..."

Although our Lord's prayer for unity is both beautiful and appropriate on His lips, one of the most obvious characteristics of the Christian movement since the time of Christ has been schism, or separation and disunity. Human sin and ignorance of God's will have repeatedly prevented the followers of Christ from being at one with their brothers.

Today, when we have been brought to some measure of repentance for past failures, there remains a further question to face: "What is the nature of the unity which Christ wills for His Church?"

Unity has been represented by some as obedience in faith and morals to an authoritative Church or an infallible ecclesiastical leader. Others believe that unity means only a common loyalty to Christ or to Holy Scripture, with a minimum of organizational unification.

Anglicans feel that their regional variations within a framework of loyalty to a world-wide communion is a significant expression of unity.

Whatever confusion exists about the meaning of unity, our ultimate goal is clear. E. L. Mascall, the English theologian, has written, "The unity with which the Church is one is nothing other than the unity with which the Persons of the Holy Trinity are one."

This statement of unity is truly awesome: we Christians are called to be one just as the Three Persons of the Blessed Trinity are one God. Only God the Holy Spirit "who proceedeth from the Father and the Son" will be able to accomplish such a miracle of grace in our midst.

COVER: An equilateral triangle and a circle, symbol of the Trinity, is superimposed on silhouettes of churches of varying architecture representing different Christian traditions.

Theological Education

At the time of his conversion St. Paul asked: "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

Today men in many places are prayerfully asking this same question. Among those who find that God is asking them to serve Him in the Christian ministry, many will seek to prepare themselves in our theological seminaries.

The Episcopal Church demands much from the men who enter her priesthood. Seven years of study, four in college and three in seminary, are usually required. The bachelor's degree in divinity may be granted after three years of seminary.

Even then a man may not be ordained until he has passed the required examination for the diaconate and priesthood conducted by a diocesan board of examining chaplains. Thus the candidate for holy orders is under constant scrutiny by the seminary faculty, the standing committee of the diocese, and his bishop.

The seminaries realize that the quality of the future leadership of the Church rests largely in their hands. They are training the future bishops, priests and deacons of the Church. They seek to give the candidates the best teachers and the best courses, both traditional and modern. The measure of their success in this task depends in large part on the measure of our support as laymen.

The eleven seminaries of the Episcopal Church are: Berkeley Divinity School, New Haven, Conn.; Bexley Hall, Gambier, Ohio; Church Divinity School of the Pacific, Berkeley, Calif.; Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, Pa.; Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.; Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest, Austin, Texas; General Theological Seminary, New York City; Nashotah House, Nashotah, Wis.; School of Theology of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.; Seabury-Western Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill. and Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, Va. Also, a number of diocesan schools of theology are preparing men for local ministries in the Church.

Youth and the Church

Parents today are frightened—frightened by the headlines in newspapers and magazines which link our young people with rioting, sex and drugs. The consensus of the “over-30” generation is that “something should be done.”

It is not surprising, therefore, that many people think that the Church’s ministry to young people should be concerned chiefly with containing the restless energies of the adolescent. The Church is seen by many as some sort of parental substitute whose functions are to keep children off the street and to serve as a brake on juvenile rebelliousness.

This negative approach sells short both young people and the Church. Our young people represent not so much a worrisome threat to the social order as a challenge to adult society to live up to its stated ideals. By rebelling against the older generation and its failures, young people are often testing the accepted standards. They are searching for their own place in a society which bewilders and repels them. Their many questions and doubts resolve themselves into the fundamental query: “To what, or to whom, should I commit myself?”

Young people, we are reminded repeatedly, are tomorrow’s Church. But to regard them merely as future assets is to forget that they have a present existence as churchmen here and now. Indeed, the sins and strengths of the Church of tomorrow will be the result, in large measure, of how the Church of today regards its ministry to youth. Unless we realize that youngsters are an integral part of the Church of the present, we will not be able to consider their future relationship with the Church at all, for there will be no relationship. We will have failed to help them grow to maturity in Christ.

Young people can learn from committed and understanding adults what it means to be a Christian, to be alive to God’s present summons to discipleship. The Church of tomorrow will be faithful only as the Church of today recognizes and supports all of its members, young and old, as they strive to love and serve God.

MOBILIZATION OF CLERGY AND LAYMEN CONCERNED ABOUT VIETNAM

One year ago 2,000 persons assembled in Washington visiting senators and congressmen. Unfortunately, we must go again, tomorrow, Monday, February 5th and Tuesday, February 6th. The Rector is planning to drive down at 8:00 A.M., Monday, returning Tuesday afternoon. There is room in the car for others who wish to go. Monday afternoon will be given over to state caucuses and congressional visiting, and Tuesday will be given to several important addresses by national figures and a Procession of Agony from the White House to the Capitol.

"It Isn't Fair"

Our Lord's story of the laborers in the vineyard who received identical pay for their work no matter how long they had labored strikes many of us as being unfair. The men who worked all day and received no more than did those who showed up at the last hour were justified in complaining, we are inclined to think.

From the world's viewpoint, we are quite right, of course. If wages are to be paid in return for and only on the basis of service rendered, then the wages should bear some relationship to the amount of work done.

This parable, however, is not a precise statement of Christian economics, and to interpret it as such is to miss the point. Our Lord gives us a clue to the right interpretation when He says: "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder . . ."

Jesus is talking about love, not about money. The Father does not pay us wages for good behavior. He invites us to share in His love and joy and holiness, and He gives these to all who are willing to accept them from Him.

We do the same thing as we deal with those we love. Our children's Christmas presents are not determined by the hours of work they have put in. We give gifts as we are able, and we give them in love, not in payment.

It is the generosity and open-handedness of the owner of the vineyard to which the parable points, not the notion that one might as well wait until five o'clock to begin work.

St. Paul has something to say about wages: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Only sin deals in rigorous measurement; love gives gifts.

Those who worked all day were given what they needed, what they could use, what constituted at that time a full day's wages. That those who worked only an hour were given what they needed is a testimony of God's love. It may not be "fair" according to our modern worldly manner of reckoning, but it is generous, loving and godly. As Christians, nothing else should matter to us.

You Think You Have Troubles?

Look at poor Job. Once rich, he was now poor. His sheep and camels were gone. Seven sons and three daughters were dead. Job himself was stricken with boils, yet he remained steadfast in his faith in God.

However, as the darkness went deeper and his friends turned from him, Job finally cried out in bitterness: "When I waited for the light, there came darkness."

He could go no further. There was no strength in him, and his anguish had run its course. It was then that the Lord God spoke to him through the whirlwind, commanding him to stand as a man and observe the wonderful work of God in the heavens and in the earth:

"Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? Whereupon are the foundations thereof fastened? or who laid the cornerstone thereof; When the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy?"

Such questions certainly do not solve the mystery of suffering, nor is it likely they healed Job's boils. What they do is to force us to examine life from a radically different perspective. They remind us of the simple fact that God does not owe us anything. His creation is wonderfully complex, and we are privileged to be a small part of it for a few years.

Our Lord Jesus Christ warned us, "In this world ye shall have tribulation," but, He adds, ". . . be of good cheer; I have overcome the world."

Our conviction that Christ has triumphed provides a clue for our living with suffering. The pain is not diminished. No easy answers are provided. But we know from our Lord that God's sun shines on both the just and the unjust; similarly, pain comes to both the good and the wicked, and God's grace touches us all.

There is no answer to the question, "Why?" There is only the confident statement of Job: "I know that my Redeemer liveth and . . . though worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God."

What Is Love?

The master of ceremonies on the television quiz show, addressing a little white-haired lady, repeated his question:

"After 50 years of marriage, what would you say love is?"

She hesitated a moment, then answered thoughtfully:

"I think love is just suffering through things together."

This woman understood through experience what many fail to realize. Love is not just the warm emotional "glow" glorified in fiction. While it is true that love can and does fill us with real joy and satisfaction, and can give us a warm feeling of enthusiasm for everything in life, Christian love involves the will, whether or not the emotions are involved.

Christian love is centered not on ourselves but on the one we love. It is the giving of ourselves, our concern, our abilities and our time to another without thought of self. Christian love is going the extra mile without thought of credit. Christian love is loving the unlovable.

In Jesus Christ we see perfect love, the perfect gift of self. On the wood of the Cross, Christ gave Himself for us. There was nothing easy about this act of love. Our Lord saw the cost of love with dreadful clarity when, on the eve of His crucifixion, He prayed in the Garden of Gethsemane that the cup of suffering might be removed. Yet He went on and said: "... not my will, but thine be done."

There are times when each of us experiences a small Gethsemane, times when we wish we could avoid doing something we know we have to do. And frequently, the loving thing is the very thing we do not feel like doing. We find it difficult to love our children when they are having tantrums, or a neighbor when he is being unneighborly. We all have ample evidence of how difficult it is to love someone of another race when his actions nourish our prejudice. After a late Saturday night party, it is difficult to love God enough to get up and worship Him on Sunday morning.

As the woman on the quiz show pointed out, love is tested severely during days of prolonged illness or poverty, or even in the boring monotony of an unchanging routine.

As Christians we believe love is essential to this life and the life of the world to come. Only by loving can we begin to understand the God who gives us love, His greatest gift, that we may come to fulness of life in Him.

DISCIPLINE

A devout Israelite believed that when every jot and tittle of the more than 600 points of the Law of Moses were followed faithfully, he was living a perfectly disciplined life.

The Christian Church does not entirely repudiate this observation, but it is skeptical about the spirit behind this kind of discipline.

There are various kinds of discipline. There is the discipline that grows out of a parent's care and concern for his child. There is the discipline an adult knows through his experiences in an interdependent society. A soldier is constantly subject to military regulations and the orders of his superiors.

All these are examples of discipline imposed from without.

There are also self-imposed disciplines, such as the long hours of practice a ballet dancer, singer or athlete willingly accepts. Students, composers and writers all utilize self-imposed discipline in order to improve their skills.

Such firmness of purpose is most admirable, but it seeks merely a limited and self-centered goal. The highest discipline is Christian discipline. Christian discipline is not self-serving. Christian discipline involves putting aside lesser pleasure for the pleasure of serving the Lord Jesus Christ. This may mean, in some cases, giving up a leisurely way of life. For some, this may mean discarding material gain for a spiritual one. It may mean, as it did with St. Paul, bearing insults and physical punishment in order that we may follow the example of Christ.

Christian discipline is the most difficult kind. It demands that a person cease living for himself alone. It means that one must make service to Christ more important than one's personal comfort and the welfare of one's neighbor more important than personal ambition.

Christian discipline is truly discipline under love.

Fasting and Abstinence

On the subject of fasting and abstinence the Book of Common Prayer is very definite. As a bishop of the Episcopal Church has written, "We should make it clear at once that the Church does not permit her children to decide whether they would like to fast or no. Fasting and abstinence are required of all members of the Church." The basis for the bishop's statement is the Book of Common Prayer.

The only questions to be answered, therefore, are: what is fasting, and what is abstinence, and when are they required?

To fast is to refrain from eating. How rigidly one fasts depends upon the individual. Our faith does not ask us to torture our bodies, nor are we to impair our health. We are asked to observe the rule of fasting with the true purpose of the fast in mind. Fasting and abstinence are not meant to be punishment, nor are they opportunities for display of piety. Their importance lies in our awareness of the reason for such discipline. Fasting and abstinence are the conscientious and private practice of physical disciplines which promote spiritual health. Their purpose is to help us to share in the life of Christ.

The Prayer Book singles out Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the Church's penitential season, and Good Friday, the commemoration of the death of our Lord, as days of fasting. Both occasions are solemn memorials of the great sacrifice made for us by Christ.

Abstinence, a lesser degree of fasting, refers to the kinds of food we abstain from eating. By long tradition, this abstinence has meant flesh meat. The Prayer Book names the forty days of Lent, the Ember Days, and the Fridays of the year (except those which fall between Christmas and the Epiphany) as days of abstinence.

St. Paul has warned us against the lusts of the flesh, drunkenness and revelings. The Church has found no better way to combat these lusts than by utilizing the strengtheners of the spirit, fasting and abstinence.

LIVING ROOM DIALOGUES

In addition to the Thursday Parish Study Program an opportunity for laymen, especially Roman Catholics with Episcopalians and others, exists to use the study series entitled "Living Room Dialogues". Janet and Harry Taplin are co-ordinating this program for St. Mary's and the University City Ecumenical Community. If you are interested please put your name on the sign-up sheet on the tract table.

St. Patrick

If St. Patrick were still alive, he might raise an eyebrow at some of the popular customs associated with his feast, most of which have more to do with Ireland than with the great bishop himself.

Neither an Irishman nor a Roman Catholic, Patrick, the son of Christian parents, was born late in the 4th century on the southwestern coast of Britain. He was still very young when plundering invaders killed his mother and father and took him to Ireland as a slave.

Six years of exile and adversity helped to deepen his faith in God, and it is not surprising that when he finally was able to escape from Ireland he fled to a monastery in France.

The young Briton, who gradually became convinced that God wanted him to return as a missionary to Ireland, did not remain long in the monastic community. After spending 14 years in the little town of Auxerre, France, he was consecrated bishop in 432 and was sent to Ireland.

The legends that surround this period are numerous. What we do know with certainty about Patrick is that his zeal and charm not only inspired the fertile imagination of the Irish but also converted thousands to our Lord and His Church in a relatively short period of time. When St. Patrick died in 461 the Church in Ireland was vigorous and filled with the missionary zeal of its courageous and holy bishop.

In the century that followed Patrick's death the Church of the Irish Celts inspired missionaries to revitalize the British Church and to convert peoples and establish monastic communities from Scotland to the continent. Ireland became a haven for scholars who had fled from the confusion of the crumbling Roman Empire. From the sixth to the eighth centuries the Celtic Church was the chief center of learning in the Western world.

What greater testimony is needed to the profound influence of this great apostle, who even today is the cause of so much warm goodwill between men of various nationalities and religious traditions!

Patrick, born in Britain, nurtured in France and missionary to Ireland, is a saint of the whole Church.

COVER: The shamrock is a popular symbol for St. Patrick's Day. The staff and mitre are symbols for a bishop, St. Patrick's office in the Church.

NEVER ALONE

Prayer is not an abstract matter. It is an intensely personal spiritual experience.

Although the Book of Common Prayer tells us that to pray is "our bounden duty," most of us find that, of all our duties, this is the most difficult. The result is that much of the time our prayer takes on one of two characteristics: an impersonal and detached formality or an emotional purgation. Too often we either rely on the Prayer Book to say our prayers for us, or we pour out our anguish, despair and remorse in a flood of incoherence.

True prayer cannot be easily defined. It takes many forms. It may be formal or informal, long or short, ordered or free in its organization. We may be sure, however, that if a person is truly praying, he has faith that God is faithful to the Creation He designed and that He has a personal concern for each of us as part of that Creation.

The Prayer Book is a guide to personal prayer, not a substitute for it. To avoid the vague or haphazard focus which may characterize much of our prayer, we are able to find every category of prayer within its covers. It guides us in our praise of God, it directs our thanksgivings, it organizes the petitions and intercessions we make, and it suggests the frailties which we should confess.

It is significant that every prayer and collect in the Prayer Book uses the first person plural pronoun. No Christian ever prays in total isolation. It does not matter whether we are in the congregation on a Sunday morning or are praying alone in the privacy of our home. When we pray we become a part of the total praying Body of Christ. As one priest of the Church has said, "We join a chorus of prayer already in progress."

COVER: The rising smoke of incense is an ancient symbol of prayer. Text is from Psalm 141 and used as an opening sentence at Evening Prayer.

ALMSGIVING

The Church emphasizes prayer, fasting and almsgiving during Lent. However, a careful reading of the Second Office of Instruction in the Book of Common Prayer reveals that at least two of these fundamental activities of a Christian, prayer and almsgiving, are not seasonal but are our continuing and life-long bounden duty.

Most of us tend to be rather casual about our almsgiving. Too often we consider that our bounden duty has been completely discharged when we write a check made out to the parish church or to the community fund. Christian almsgiving is something quite different.

Long before the death of Christ the vicarious sacrifice of animals was considered sufficient to atone for man's sinfulness. A devout Jew merely had to buy a dove or a goat and present it to the temple priests as a live offering, and his duty was considered completed.

Christ's sacrifice was a far different matter. He personally became the offering. He gave not merely of His means. He gave His life.

As Christ's followers, our almsgiving is to be patterned on His giving of Himself. Our almsgiving is to be more than a distribution of our surplus. It is to involve our selves, our souls and bodies, the totality of our lives.

Christian almsgiving is not a "paying of dues" to a religious club. It is an offering of that which is available to us—our businesses, our homes, our schools, our lives—under the form of money. It is not enough to assign some of our spare time to the Church, or to use some of our talents in doing "church work."

When we present our alms we should be giving a portion of our own selves, a significant representation of our labor and our love, ". . . for with such sacrifices God is well pleased."

He gave his only Son

ADDRESS _____

Slow of Heart

The post-resurrection story of the journey to Emmaus, made by Cleopas and his companion, is an account of faith restored. According to St. Luke's narrative, the two disheartened disciples meet but do not recognize the Risen Lord. Cleopas tells this "stranger" that many unusual things have occurred which have saddened them. Jesus of Nazareth, he explains, who was to have delivered Israel, has been turned over to the authorities, has been killed and now has disappeared from the tomb.

"... o slow of heart to believe . . ." admonishes Christ. He recounts all the signs and prophecies which should be their assurance that God has fulfilled His promises. He reminds them of the many ways in which their Lord's life accomplished the scriptural pledges.

The hearts of the two disciples are lightened, their hope is restored and they are able to recognize Him, a short time later, in the breaking of bread.

We have the same opportunity today. We can see our Lord's role in the history of redemption. We can hear anew the story of His resurrection. We can identify Him, as did the two disciples, in the breaking of bread.

The story of the meeting on the road to Emmaus tells us that the basis of faith is more than a matter of the ears and the eyes. It is more than a mere intellectual assent to the facts which surround an event. It is also a matter of the heart.

It is not sufficient for us merely to know and experience wonder. We must commit our entire selves to the life and teachings of the Christ.

This takes courage, boldness and often audacity.

This kind of life is not for "the slow of heart."

EPISCOPAL COLLEGES

Since 1692, when William and Mary became the second college (after Harvard) to be established in the Thirteen Colonies, there have been nearly 70 colleges affiliated with or supported by the Episcopal Church.

Today, there are less than a dozen. Of these, six, Hobart, Trinity, Kenyon, Shimer, Sewanee and Bard, were founded before the Civil War. Three others, St. Augustine's, St. Paul's and Voorhees, have a predominantly Negro student enrollment, and two, Cuttington, in Liberia, and Trinity, in Manila, are missionary colleges.

Together, these 11 colleges enroll a total of about 7,000 students and all are filled to capacity. Scholastically, they rank high. Half of their 600 faculty members have Ph.D. degrees. Of the Rhodes' scholars entering Oxford in 1967 there were proportionately more from Episcopal than from Ivy League colleges.

These colleges are 100 times more productive of Episcopal clergy than are colleges generally. Nearly one fourth of the 620 bishops since Samuel Seabury have been alumni of Episcopal colleges, including the two most recent presiding Bishops, Bishop Lichtenberger (Kenyon) and Bishop Hines (Sewanee). Four-fifths of the dioceses have had one or more bishops who were their graduates, and of living clergy today, one in eight is an alumnus.

Throughout their history Episcopal colleges have amply repaid the faith and confidence placed in them by the Church. They have more than repaid the support the Church and her members have given them. Only the three predominantly Negro colleges and the two missionary colleges receive support from the General Convention. The others must shift for themselves, and only Sewanee receives as much as two per cent of its support from the Church.

We can be proud of these colleges. They bear witness to the fact that religion is an essential part of life. They help to build spiritual as well as intellectual and moral maturity. They offer "education plus." They need and deserve our generous support.

The Fellowship of Christ's Religion

In the Collect for the Third Sunday after Easter we speak of "the fellowship of Christ's Religion." In this one phrase the Church proclaims its corporate nature to be that of a fellowship. The Church is concerned with religion, with morality and worship and belief alike. It claims that this religion comes from Christ Himself.

Twentieth century Christians in America, however, are heirs of another tradition, a tradition of which we are scarcely aware. This tradition is strongly individualistic and basically anti-intellectual. It is a heritage which has profoundly influenced our religious life and practice.

For many newcomers to America, oppression by ecclesiastics was quite as galling as oppression by princes, and the men who came here to seek freedom would not settle for half a loaf. As Americans sought a new life in the wilderness, frontier attitudes and values worked profound changes in American Christianity.

On the frontier individualism replaced the rigid conformity of the established churches. A strong anti-intellectualism grew up which placed a high value on emotional experience and tended to reject dogma out of hand. Morality, particularly if it could be said to stem from an experience of personal conversion, was held to render both creeds and cult obsolete. Hundreds of sects arose in support of men's convictions, and hundreds of sects died as their adherents lost interest.

Today the frontier has been left behind. We would never willingly lose our freedom from state-imposed religion nor our sense of individual responsibility for our Christian commitment. But today we are coming to see that, while feelings are important, they are not an adequate index of truth. We value our religious freedom, but we know it need not lead to anarchy. We seek to be moral in order that faith and worship may be fulfilled, not replaced.

The modern Church has recovered a sense of its corporate nature in which each individual is free to be himself in Christ. We acknowledge our debt to biblical tradition and to the historic Church, but we see that our faith is to be placed in Christ Himself and not just in propositions about Him. We have a renewed appreciation of the Eucharist and of ordered worship, but we recognize that such worship does not displace individual piety but rather provides a context for personal devotion.

"The fellowship of Christ's Religion," these words offer a necessary corrective to our immediate past as well as a promise for the years to come.

PARISH PICNIC

Sunday, May 12, has been set as the date for a Parish picnic at Valley Forge. Bob Burnett has agreed to chair the arrangements but will welcome some help in shopping and cooking. Please give him some indication of your intention to go, so planning can proceed - also if you can provide - or will need - transportation.

UNITED THANK OFFERING

The Women are asked to turn in the contents of their blue boxes this Sunday or next, in time for the Spring Ingathering on May 15 at Valley Forge. Alice Pancoast is the custodian. At the May 15 meeting, the Presiding Bishop will be guest speaker. Further details on the Bulletin Board.

IMPORTANT DIALOGUE

You are invited to take part in a four session living room dialogue with members of First African Presbyterian, Mt. Olivet Baptist and Tabernacle Churches. The subject will be The Kerner report - the Presidential Commission report on the riots.

The West Philadelphia Christian Education Project is sponsoring this effort for our membership to encounter one another and common issues to which Christians must address themselves.

If you are interested, please sign the list on the Tract table. Dorie Holmes will co-ordinate the participation from St. Mary's, and can give further information. The dates and places of meetings will be arranged after the sign-up is complete.

The Certainty of Change

Life on this earth involves change. Every living creature is in the process of becoming something new and different. The process may be one of growth or it may be one of decay, but change is certain and nothing can stop it.

Such change may seem to us beneficial or harmful. We all know people to whom any process of change is simply a threat. Change removes the old landmarks and destroys the old foundations, forcing us to make decisions in situations in which we do not know the rules. There are others to whom change is simply a stimulant, the promise of progress, freedom and new pleasures.

For the Christian, change is simply a fact. To those who believe that God started the process, change is, by and large, a friendly fact. To those who can identify the work of the Holy Spirit as He fashions new vessels for eternal treasures, it is a bearable fact. To those who believe that in Christ all things are being made new, it is an exciting fact.

For the Christian, change always demands response on three levels. First, God, not conservation or progress, is our hope. Our hearts are to be fixed on Him so that we may be free to be whatever He wants us to be. Next, we are to use our heads to judge the change that confronts us. Is it good? Does it make sense? Can it be a means of love or forgiveness or beauty or healing? Does it reflect true joy, or does it involve only the excitement of novelty?

Finally, we are to act on the basis of our judgment, seeking to be the agents of our Father, both for change and for stability, as the occasion demands.

The sundry and manifold changes of the world demand our attention and our energy, but only God can claim our trust. Where that trust is given wholeheartedly, the changes which confront us can be seen in their proper perspective, and we are enabled to use them constructively and to the glory of God.

COVER: "Op art" design is used as a symbol of change. The Alpha and Omega is a symbol of the eternal Christ.

Doers of the Word

The Epistle of St. James is full of sound, practical advice about how a devout man ought to behave. It contains that famous phrase, "... faith, if it hath not works, is dead . . ." James amplified his suspicion about those who failed to show forth the fruit of good living by going on to say, "Show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works."

These are plain words from a no-nonsense type person, someone who instinctively realized that genuine faith always shows itself in kind and loving deeds. Indeed St. James has much to teach each of us who seek to give God His reasonable service.

Unfortunately, however, it is just this blunt practicality of St. James that has sometimes caused him to be misunderstood, or at least down-graded, by too many Christians. In the early centuries of the Church's existence, some people mistakenly thought James was arguing against the great insight emphasized by St. Paul that, "... the just shall live by faith."

They thought that St. James meant that man could earn his own salvation by good works, an idea which suggested a discredited kind of Pharisaic religion. Other critics have presumed that because faith was absolutely necessary to salvation, works of mercy and goodness are merely optional extras for the believing Christian.

Repeatedly, though, St. James' realistic warning of the need for doing the truth as well as believing, has awakened churchmen to their Christian responsibilities.

Whenever we are tempted in our own religious life to lapse into a vaguely euphoric mood of self-congratulation and moral lethargy, James' blunt advice brings us back to reality: "Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only . . ."

To do less is to deceive ourselves, to live a spiritually lethal lie, and to court judgment.

When we who are Christians refuse to face our discipleship with searching honesty, we are warned that our religion has become vain. On the other hand, when we show ourselves able to live responsibly, making faith manifest in works, this practical saint's reassuring promise is that we will in truth be blessed in our deed.

The Inevitable Christ

After His Ascension, our Lord is always "here" to His followers, and never "there." This simple fact has profound implications for each one of us.

The Ascended Christ is the present Christ. When we speak in the Creed of our Lord's being seated "at the right hand of the Father," we are concerned with the reign of Christ, not with His location. He is Lord, and His lordship is operative throughout all creation.

It may be inspiring to go on a trip to Jerusalem, but it is certainly not necessary for an encounter with the Ascended Christ. Our Lord is present in a loving action in an American suburb or in a simple Eucharist in a city church. He is present as a father forgives his child in Tahiti and as the Bishop of Rome blesses the crowd in St. Peter's Square.

The Ascended Christ is the available Christ. There is no human action with which He is not concerned. There is no corner of the world which is beneath His notice. There is no situation in which His judgment and love cannot operate. There is no sin beyond the reach of His forgiveness.

The Ascended Christ is also the inevitable Christ. We cannot escape Him, we cannot isolate Him. From the sinner's viewpoint, no secret is safe from Him, no refuge is secure from His pursuit. We can never say, "Politics (or economics or sex or anything) is none of your business, Lord." We are confronted with Him in such a variety of ways that the distinction between the sacred and the secular is virtually lacking in meaning.

Our Lord is always "here," never "there." The doctrine of the Ascension proclaims this fact, a fact which is not just of interest to theologians but to every Christian man and woman in the world. Christ is here. Now.

Whitsunday

It is popular these days to condemn the "institutional Church" as a corrupt and corrupting enemy of Christian love and freedom. Little is to be gained by denying that such corruption can and does take place.

The machinery of Church government can claim so much of our energy that none is left for the mission of the Church. Canon law can become an end in itself. The dignity of the bishop can frustrate the function of the bishop. Parochial power struggles can effectively deny the claim of the parish church to be an agent of reconciliation in its community. The Church, as an institution, can be a fearfully inadequate instrument of God's love and forgiveness and judgment.

All this, of course, is nothing new. Through the centuries, man's sin has been apparent in the Church as well as in the world, and generations of reformers have called the Church to repentance and renewal. Whenever institutional machinery has become an end in itself, prophetic voices have echoed the words of Amos, "... thus says the Lord, the God of hosts, the Lord: ... 'I hate, I despise your feasts, and I take no delight in your solemn assemblies.' "

Pentecost, however, is a continuing reminder of the fact that the Spirit is the Lord, that He constantly renews the Church and sends it into the world on its mission. We are reminded, too, that ultimately God will not allow institutionalism to thwart His will for the Church.

Most important of all, we need to remember that Christianity is corporate, that the whole system of ministry and sacraments and teaching serves to provide a community which is the normal channel of God's grace to His people. We are not simply a collection of individuals, but rather are a Body, a living organism which includes our Lord and all baptized persons, living and dead.

Such a Body requires, by definition, some kind of organization, some kind of structure. If the organization becomes an end in itself, corruption always results. If the organization is seen as a sacramental sign of the Mystical Body, to be cherished and used and renewed in the service of Christ, it will serve as a means whereby love and freedom are brought to men and women everywhere.

Christ and Nicodemus

There is a bit of Nicodemus in all of us. We come to Christ in a mood which is a mixture of doubt, truth-seeking, and honest confusion. Like Nicodemus, we often seek the Christ by night, in the darkness of our timidity and perplexity.

Yet we come in faith as well, for, like this ancient ruler of the Jews, we know that Jesus is, indeed, "a teacher come from God," one who always brings us into the presence of God Himself. But we also are baffled as we meet the Christ, for human logic cannot explain the mystery of His presence or the paradoxical truths He utters.

"Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God . . . Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God." How difficult it is to believe such things! Yet how perfectly simple and self-evident these truths become when we share our Lord's trust in the power of the Holy Spirit.

Quite humanly, we ask with Nicodemus, "How can these things be?" Quite directly, Jesus summons us to contemplate a mystery found in ordinary human experience, for ". . . the wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou . . . canst not tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth." Just as we learn to accept mystery in ordinary affairs, so we must accept it as we encounter God Himself and ponder His ways.

Who is God and what is He like? Theologians, scholars, and ordinary people have struggled for centuries to answer this question. The Christian doctrine of the Holy Trinity, that He is Three Persons in One God, is the Church's best answer to this query, and it is based on God's own self-disclosure in Holy Scripture and the life of the sacred community. Yet to recite correctly the Church's official statement about the complexity and simplicity of the God-head is not enough. We must seek to know God—Father, Son, and Holy Spirit—as He touches our everyday life, in prayer, in wonder, and in perplexity.

Only as we show ourselves willing to live in the mystery of God are we, too, able to receive Christ's promise to Nicodemus, "that whosoever believeth . . . should not perish but have eternal life."

The wind bloweth where it listeth

For years we have been exhorted by slogans and posters, radio announcements and feature stories, to "practice brotherhood." Well-intentioned though these efforts may be, such superficial application of a noble principle has not penetrated very deeply into the ingrained ways of the world because it does not get to the heart of the problem: How can all men be brothers?

To answer this question we need only to turn to what our Faith teaches. We are to regard all men as brothers because we have a common Father, Almighty God. As Christians we also know that we are sinners who have chosen to live by and for our own desires instead of obeying the sovereign will of our Creator. We have turned against our common Father, and, as a consequence, the unity of mankind is shattered. Dissension and hatred rather than brotherly love characterize humanity's tragic effort to live together in a peaceful society.

Because so few realize who their common Father is and what He expects of them, brotherhood is rarely manifested in the affairs of men.

Surely it is insufficient to counsel brotherhood to a world weary of its hollow and formal invocation. What we need first is a radical, new start in life. To become our brother's brother we must be born again in Jesus Christ.

Only when we have found this new birth in our Savior are we able to live and work together as brothers. By means of the sacrament of Holy Baptism, God has given us the gift of new life in Him, a gift which enables us to recognize our fellowmen as brothers because we have seen the Father in His Son.

As we grow stronger and more mature in this new life, we are able to show to others the same kind of love that God has shown to us. Then, as this flame of charity burns brightly within our life, we can be certain that it will illuminate the pathway to brotherhood for all mankind.

EXPLORE PHILADELPHIA WITH FOREIGN STUDENTS

This is the last of four scheduled events which have taken Foreign students to places of interest in our city. On Tuesday June 18 Bill Wegener of the C. A. will be in charge of a group who will attend the Robin Hood Dell concert. Mr. Wegener will have tickets at his office in advance of the concert.

CONFERENCE IN THEOLOGY

Father Scott and Rheta Weidenbacker from the parish are attending the Conference at Trinity College at which Dr. Norris of the Philadelphia Divinity School will be one of the lecturers.

POOR PEOPLES CAMPAIGN

Robert Gallagher is working with an ad hoc group of faculty and students in support of the Campaign. St. Mary's Parish House will continue to be a collecting station for pillows, blankets and sheets as well as non-perishable foods.

Wednesday, June 19th, March in Washington. See Bulletin Board for Bus tickets. Also see detailed announcement on Bulletin Board.

FLOWERS

The flowers this morning are given in loving memory of Sara C. White.

LOOKING AHEAD

On June 30, the guest Preacher of the Parish will be The Rev. John F. Hardwick, of the Program and Planning staff of Church House. Fr. Hardwick was formerly Rector of St. Peter's, Glenside.

Beginning June 23 and continuing through July 28, Dorie Holmes will be organist while Dr. Evans is vacationing.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Anyone interested in tutoring a small group of High School students in Math or English, please see Scarlett Emerson or call her at her office, 594-7154.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE

The Property Committee, whose Chairman is Kirby Smith, has organized in the following manner:

- 1 - Blanche Summers will assume responsibility for housekeeping concerns and be liason with Nathan Hinton, our Sexton.
- 2 - Ralph Thorn and Dan Wood will receive any suggestions or complaints regarding church property and will work with the Chairman in overseeing repairs and improvements.
- 3 - Henry Way will begin developing a method of forecasting property needs and expenses for the next decade.

PARISH HOUSE ACTIVITY

On June 18th, 25th and 27th Bob Gallagher has arranged for People for Human Rights to hold training sessions for teachers in Liberation Schools for which suburban High School students and parents have enrolled to deal with problems of white racism. Beginning at 7 with movies, classes at 8. All welcome at these sessions.

Through the Ages

To make a will is not only prudent and wise: it is also a religious obligation.

The rubric on page 320 of the Prayer Book says: "The Minister is ordered, from time to time, to advise the People, whilst they are in health, to make Wills arranging for the disposal of their temporal goods, and, when of ability, to leave Bequests for religious and charitable uses."

It is interesting that this is the only use in the Prayer Book of the word "ordered!"

A will does three things. It conveys our possessions and it simplifies the problems of administering our estate in the courts. Its most significant function, however, especially for those of us who have few possessions and meager estates, lies in the fact that it is a written testimonial of our love and our concern for those we leave behind.

During our lifetime our money is truly part of our lives. Because it takes our energy and our time, every dollar we earn is part of ourselves. Whatever money we may inherit is also a living thing for it is hallmarked with the life of our forebears.

During our lifetime we give our money to the Church as the measure of our devotion to God and our desire to carry on in our time and world the work of our Lord Jesus Christ. After our lifetime, a bequest in our will to the Church can make our money part of our witness. As the writer of the Hebrew says of Abel's gift: "By it he, being dead, yet speaketh."

Bequests, small as well as large, made before any of us was born, still speak the devotion to our Lord of countless men and women long dead. It may be through a little mission chapel, or a scholarship for a seminary student or a jewel from a much-loved ring that now adds its beauty to an altar cross; but in every case it is the devotion of the giver that still speaks and lives on.

Few of us realize the boundless opportunities to minister to the spiritual, intellectual, and material needs of men and women that are ours through our bequests to the Church. Whether the beneficiary is our diocese, our parish, the national Church, or some particularly designated work of one of these, we can know that our money will advance the Kingdom of God and will continue down through the ages as a living voice of our devotion to our Lord.

COVER: A design used by our National Church to encourage remembering the Church in our will.

JOY

The joy we experienced in childhood when we opened a gift that was meant especially for us was not only a delight in itself but was almost certain to outweigh any other emotion, whether of pain, sorrow or fear. It is little wonder that as adults we yearn to recapture such moments of elation and to experience again their power to erase the troubles and anxieties crowding in on our lives.

But with age, toys and trinkets no longer excite us and do little to dissipate our troubles and anxieties. The only answer, many of us feel, is escape.

Some seek escape through alcohol; others through drugs or the pursuit of sensual pleasure, constant "busyness", or even overwork. But whatever the means, the goal is the same: to reach a point of ecstasy, to be what this word means literally, "outside of oneself."

Even if our means of escape proves successful, however, the solution is only temporary. Ecstatic joy, whether it comes from a tissue-wrapped toy of childhood or a more sophisticated adult pleasure, can never be truly satisfying for we can never lose ourselves either totally or permanently.

The essence of Christian joy, in contrast, is that it is neither transitory nor perishable, nor is it dependent upon our worldly fortunes or physical condition. Christian joy abides in us always, if, as St. John says, "our fellowship is with the Father, and with His Son, Jesus Christ." Nor does Christian joy come from within ourselves. Although each of us experiences it as an individual, the joy about which the New Testament speaks cannot be generated or cultivated by anyone living apart from God. It is exclusively the gift of God to His faithful people. To the extent we center our life in God, we grow in our experience of Christian joy.

The joy which we know at this moment on earth, even as Christians, is only a foretaste of that fulness of joy we shall know at the final consummation of God's kingdom. Because we now live as citizens of His kingdom only imperfectly and occasionally, so our joy will remain imperfect and occasional until the Lord of all creation makes perfect His power and presence throughout His universe of heaven and earth.

COVER: Music has been used traditionally to represent Christian joy.

WEEKDAY EUCHARIST

Monday and Friday	5:30 P.M.
Tuesday	12:10 P.M.
Wednesday	10:00 P.M.
Thursday	9:00 A.M.
Saturday	8:30 A.M.

POOR PEOPLES CAMPAIGN

Robert Gallagher is working with an ad hoc group of faculty and students in support of the Campaign. St. Mary's Parish House will continue to be a collecting station for pillows, blankets and sheets as well as non-perishable foods.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Anyone interested in tutoring a small group of High School students in Math or English please see Scarlett Emerson or call her at her office, 594-7154.

OPEN MEETING ON PROPOSAL FOR A NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL

Monday July 1, a second meeting (following the May 27 meeting) will be held at the Parish House. An open letter calling the meeting is posted on the bulletin board, and additional copies are on the tract table.

VACATION

The Wilsons depart for California as of July 2nd, and will return around the 8th of August.

THIS MORNING'S PREACHER

Our guest this morning is a Philadelphian, graduate of Trinity College and General Theological Seminary. He has served parishes in the Diocese and at one time was on the Divinity School Faculty. He now is a member of the Diocesan Staff concerned with Program and Planning.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE

The Property Committee, whose Chairman is Kirby Smith, has organized in the following manner:

1. Blanche Summers will assume responsibility for housekeeping concerns and be liason with Nathan Hinton.
2. Ralph Thorn and Dan Wood will receive any suggestions or complaints regarding church property and will work with the Chairman in overseeing repairs and improvements.
3. Henry Way will begin developing a method for forecasting property needs and expenses for the next decade.

WHITSUNDAY OFFERING

The special offering on Whitsunday through the Diocese totals $95,000 so far. The Bishop reports that the Diocesan giving to the National Church is thus assured, but that more toward the $155,000 goal will enable important ministries in Philadelphia this summer.

THE TAIZE CONFESSION

Priest: I confess to God almighty, in the presence of all the saints, and to you my brethren, that I have sinned exceedingly in thought, word and deed: through my fault, my own fault, my own most grievous fault, wherefore I beseech you, my brethren, to pray to the Lord our God for me.

Community: May God almighty have mercy upon you, forgive you your sins, and bring you to everlasting life.

Priest: Amen.

Community: We confess to God almighty, in the presence of all the saints, and to you, Father, that we have sinned exceedingly in thought, word and deed: through our fault, our own fault, our own most grievous fault; wherefore we beseech you, Father, to pray to the Lord our God for us.

Priest: May God almighty have mercy upon you, forgive you your sins, and bring you to everlasting life.

Community: Amen.

Christian Conscience and the State

The majority of the signers of the Declaration of Independence were Christian men. Involved in their decision to break with the English Crown were many political and economic factors, but behind these factors lay the matter of Christian conscience which could not be quiet in the face of oppression.

These American patriots were within a stream of Christian tradition which has existed from the earliest days. The New Testament clearly teaches that civil authorities are to be respected and obeyed as the agents of God in the maintenance of justice and order. Our Lord certainly suggests that Caesar makes legitimate claims on men which should be accepted. Titus is urged to remind his fellow-Christians "... to be submissive to the government and to the authorities, to obey them ..." The early Church prayed for the pagan Roman emperor and for his deputies, for it saw the righteous will of God reflected, however imperfectly, in the imperial law.

On the other hand, Christians have always resisted the tendency on the part of governments to claim absolute allegiance from their people. States as well as individuals are under the judgment of God. When the state fails to maintain justice, when it seeks for itself an authority which belongs only to God, the Christian may be driven to resistance.

The Declaration of Independence recognizes both of these imperatives. It specifically refers to the failure of the English crown to maintain justice, while speaking, too, of the willingness of the American states to preserve their historic friendship with the English people. Revolution was distasteful to the signers of the Declaration, a step to be taken only when all other means of settling their problems had failed.

Modern Christians, at least those living in a democratic society, are not likely to be driven to such lengths. Yet we must remember that the state is still capable of allowing injustice to arise and to continue, while claiming at the same time, an unquestioning loyalty which is not proper to any human institution.

The Christian conscience must resist the state in such situations, today as always, even while we continue to pray for those in authority and to work for a society which is responsive to the will of God.

The Anglican Communion

All churches throughout the world which owe their foundation to English Christianity and are in communion with the See of Canterbury are part of the Anglican Communion.

Among the member bodies of this Communion, besides the Episcopal Church in America, are the Church of England, the Church of Ireland, the Church of Wales, the Episcopal Church of Scotland, the Church of India, Pakistan, Burma, and Ceylon, the Church of Canada, the Church of the West Indies, the Church of Australia, the Church of New Zealand, the Church of the Province of South Africa, and the Nippon Sei Ko Kai (the Holy Catholic Church of Japan).

Wherever British explorers and colonizers went, missionaries brought the familiar faith and life of Anglicanism to the new lands. Not until the organization of the American Church following the Revolutionary War, however, did ecclesiastical bodies evolve independent of control by the Church of England.

With the organization of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America in 1787, Anglicanism entered a new era. Soon there were many other independent national or regional churches in communion with Canterbury, free to govern themselves without recourse to English authority but having strong ties of religious tradition with the mother Church.

To the present day these firm bonds of common faith and worship have held together in a unique federation of Churches of great ethnic and cultural diversity. Well over 40,000,000 people of a multitude of races, tongues and nationalities are presently baptized members of the Anglican Communion.

We cannot know what Almighty God may intend for this world-wide fellowship in future years, but we can rejoice that He has so enriched its life in past ages that many have been blessed by its existence.

The Lambeth Conference

Lambeth Palace has been the London residence of the Archbishops of Canterbury for more than 600 years. Because the ancient See of Canterbury is a symbol of unity throughout the Anglican Communion, it is appropriate, therefore, that Lambeth has been the site of Anglicanism's assembly of bishops, known as the Lambeth Conference. Ever since 1867 the chief pastors of the Anglican Communion, have assembled about once every ten years, under the presidency of the Archbishop of Canterbury, to take counsel together, to debate current theological issues, and to instruct the Church at large.

The bishops assemble at the personal invitation of the Archbishop of Canterbury. The resolutions and reports which have been issued by the Lambeth Conference during the past century represent the mind of the episcopal leaders of our Communion and, therefore, are significant statements.

Anglicanism has never claimed to possess within itself an infallible voice of ecclesiastical authority in the tradition of the Roman papacy. As a result, Episcopalians are quite free to differ with the opinions and judgments expressed by their bishops at Lambeth.

The judgments of these conferences, however, have exercised an increasingly great influence over the Church during the past century. Both Anglicans and other Christians have looked more and more to the statements of Lambeth as being authoritative expressions of the leadership of Anglicanism.

Over the years the fellowship of the Lambeth Conference has helped to make the Anglican Communion a more worthy instrument of God's purpose. Until the unity of the whole Church is realized, these Conferences will still have their essential part to play.

The Lambeth Conference, scheduled to begin July 25, needs the prayerful concern and thoughtful consideration of every churchman, for its decisions and judgments will become the basis for further discussion and analysis by the whole Church for years to come.

The Role of the Episcopate

Every organization of men needs leaders, those who are its spokesmen, representatives and authority figures.

Our Lord knew that the Church, made up as it was of human beings, could not be an effective instrument of His will without leaders. Thus, the New Testament tells us, Jesus chose twelve men to be His witnesses, to exercise oversight in the Church and to provide a visible and personal center of unity around which the Christian household might gather.

The original Twelve were succeeded by new men who arose to carry on this ministry, having received the mantle of leadership in an orderly way from their predecessors in the Faith.

The successors to the Apostles are those whom we call bishops. They are men who are consecrated to be the chief pastors of the flock of Christ. Their duty is to provide the dedicated and selfless guidance so necessary to the well-being of the Body of Christ. They alone are commissioned to exercise the full scope of the Church's sacramental ministry, ordaining others to share in the work of the People of God, as laymen, deacons, and priests.

The bishop's role, then, is ultimately one of responsibility, rather than of arbitrariness or privilege. It is, as expressed in the Chicago-Lambeth Quadrilateral, to seek to unify, by varying methods of ecclesiastical administration, "the nations and peoples called of God into the unity of His Church."

Therefore, the role of the episcopate is to be above all a source of unity in the Church. With this understanding in mind, a well-known scholar of ecclesiastical history has summed up the way in which churchmen can best understand their relationship to a member of the episcopate: "Our loyalty is not to [the bishop] as an individual, but as a bearer in his sacramental office of the Church's visible unity and continuity. He is the focus of our commitment to that historic reality that we call the Church."

The Church and Suburbia

Suburbia is here to stay. Suburbia is not merely the temporary creation of an irresponsible middle class seeking to flee into comfortable self-indulgence. Suburbia is part of modern metropolis. As one expert observer noted recently, "... the physical shape of urban America is, irreversibly, the Spread City." No matter what may happen to make the central city more attractive or small town life more appealing, suburbia will not disappear.

People who live in suburbia are not basically different from the rest of America, or even the rest of the world. They are no more able to rise above their own prejudices and anxieties than is mankind in general. They need to be reminded therefore, as do all men, that "no man is an island, entire of itself: every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main. . . ."

Surely, everyone of us now living in contemporary society must see ourselves increasingly as part of the greater whole. The events of our times have made unmistakably urgent the need to rededicate ourselves to the ideal of a mutually responsible metropolitan society, a society where people do not have to seek shelter from their neighbors' problems but may learn instead to help bear them.

Here is where our Faith speaks with power to metropolis. God, who makes it possible for us to break down the walls of division which exist between us, helps us to delight in our common humanity, to love and not ignore our neighbor, and to bring our best to the solution of our common problems.

The Church's task and duty is to stand with suburbanites, as with city-dwellers and with town and country residents, witnessing to the Gospel's summons to create a truly humane and responsible society. This vision of a "City of God" is a remarkable ideal, beyond the capacity of any board of urban planners to achieve.

When we who are the Church have seen more clearly this vision of a renewed society, we will be given the power to minister more effectively to the whole metropolis, both city and suburbia.

Senior Citizen or Child of God?

We may doubt that Noah, Abraham and Moses lived as long as the Old Testament writers claimed, but we must realize that in those days it was thought that men of wisdom and courage and righteousness were certain to be blessed by God with a long and fruitful life.

In those days each age group was seen to have a special contribution to make. The aging patriarch was greatly respected as an integral member of the community and the wisdom of the elderly was often sought by the Kings of Israel. "The glory of young men is their strength: and the beauty of old men is the gray head." (Proverbs 20:29)

While the New Testament, with its good news of the Kingdom of God, does not dwell on the merits of longevity, at our Lord's presentation in the temple it was the aged Simeon and Anna, the prophetess, who recognized Jesus as the Messiah. Simeon knew his life was fulfilled: "for mine eyes have seen thy salvation . . ." Anna "spoke of him to all that looked for redemption . . ."

Our society is also conscious of age but our emphasis is on the glories not of age but of youth. Those who "get to the top", we are inclined to believe, must "think young" and "look young" even though they may be far from young.

It is not surprising, therefore, that most of us dread growing old. We fear no one will need or want us anymore. We will not be respected in a youth-centered and "youthful" society. Our advice will not be sought.

Such fears arise when we forget that as Christians we believe we are children of God, no matter how old we are. Each of us develops certain talents and personality traits which distinguish us as individuals. Age cannot wipe out these differences. Calling older people "senior citizens" does not make them all the same. Each continues to be, in his own unique way, a child of God. Each has a contribution to make in the particular circumstances to which God calls him. Each has a God-given dignity as an individual which old age cannot diminish.

Whether we travel or remain at home, live alone, with our families, or with others in a retirement community, whether we continue in some line of business or enjoy a hard-earned leisure, each of us is called to grow in Christ regardless of our age.

"MAKE A JOYFUL NOISE"

Ever since the first beat of the drum and rattle of the gourd, man has worshipped God with rhythm and melody, with instrument and with the human voice. From the chant of the young shepherd David to the more complicated settings of a Ralph Vaughan Williams hymn tune, the line of descent is long and varied. The purpose, however, has remained the same: to praise God and to inspire or edify man.

Each generation has tried to do this in its own way. For the Israelite and the early Christian there was the psalter. For the Church of the Middle Ages there were the haunting melodies of plainsong and of some of the carols we still hear during the Christmas and Easter seasons.

The 16th century produced the great chorales, usually associated with Martin Luther, and the formal settings of the metrical psalms. The past few centuries have seen the influence of the Negro spiritual, especially in American church music, and the development of the flowing melodies and rich harmonies of the majority of the hymns we know. More recent experiments in the jazz and folk idiom point ahead to further additions to this heritage.

Our present Hymnal is representative of almost all these periods. This was not always so. The Hymnal, originally bound with the Book of Common Prayer of 1789, consisted of the whole metrical psalter and the words of 27 hymns. Not until the General Convention of 1871 did the Hymnal become separate from the Prayer Book. In this edition there were more than 500 hymns, and the psalter, as such, was dropped.

The most recent revision of our Hymnal was in 1940. Much was retained from earlier books, but many new hymns were selected from the almost 5,000 manuscripts which were submitted to the Joint Commission on Church Music.

Someone once said there are really only two kinds of music: good and bad. Most of us would agree but would differ in our choice of hymns for each category. Our judgment would not be based only on musical merit. Some hymns have too great a range, some are too complicated for the musically-inhibited. Some of the texts are of poor literary quality. Often the sentiments expressed are embarrassing or meaningless to anyone who listens to what he is singing.

Nevertheless, the Hymnal does offer a wide choice of the best music the Church has sung throughout the ages. Church music is an ecumenical and a universal language. Perhaps the day is near when the People of God can unite in the use of a common hymn book, and can in one voice "make a joyful noise unto the Lord."

COVER: Trumpets are a symbol for joy. The musical score is from the original manuscript for "The Messiah."

God and Committees

"God so loved the world that He did not send a committee!"

Such a sentiment is understandably popular today when the proliferation of committees threatens to overwhelm our society. The United States Congress seems sometimes to breed committees by the hundreds, and in our own Church, a Committee on Committees and Commissions of the House of Deputies is required to keep track of the many groups and sub-divisions of groups which do much of the work of the General Convention.

It is undoubtedly true that committees often serve as an excuse for inaction and delay, and it is equally true that many a good idea has been lost in the committee shuffle. But it is also true that committees can serve as agents of grace and of redemption.

The Church is a community, a society in which men and women are called to work together for common ends. It is not possible for everyone to be involved in every decision, for all of us do not have either the time or the knowledge to participate usefully in all the work of the Church.

The first century Church, faced with the necessity of deciding whether or not converts to Christianity should first become Jews, received a committee report from Paul and Barnabas on their experiences among the Gentiles. They "related what signs and wonders God had done through them among the Gentiles," and on the basis of this report, the group made its decision, using one of the most outrageous and wonderful phrases in the history of the Church, "It has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us . . ."

This decision, not to require circumcision of Gentile converts, was important and far-reaching. The men who made it based it upon their conviction that the Holy Spirit was working through their gathering and through what today we might call their sub-committee.

The Holy Spirit can work through committees if we will allow Him to do so. A group of men and women meeting together in the conviction that they share common problems and seek common goals, attempting within their own life as a committee to deal with each other honestly and lovingly and openly, can be a witness to the Church of the presence of the Holy Spirit among us.

God did send His Son, not a committee, for our redemption. But committees are included within the scope of redemption, and can be instruments of the love of God.

Special Ways of Speaking

Although the Kingdom of God is not of this world, it is not entirely otherworldly either. Whenever the Kingdom impinges upon earthly life, that life is changed. Sometimes such change is so quiet as to be almost unrecognized by most of us. The forgiveness of sin is hardly a public matter and, in most cases, the gift of God's love is secret and unobserved.

Occasionally, however, the signs of the Kingdom are quite noticeable. Isaiah said that the coming of Messiah would be recognized by the healing of men's bodies: the deaf would hear and the dumb would speak, the lame would leap for joy and the blind would see.

Our Lord's public ministry included such signs of healing, and the signs continue to this day in the life of the Church.

Physical healing is dramatic and wonderful, but there are other signs of the Kingdom which, although not as spectacular, are quite as authentic. These signs are shown as the Church expresses her concern for the blind, the deaf, and all the other people who are physically or mentally or emotionally disabled.

The Episcopal Church has a number of specialized ministries through which God's love is shown to His world. We have a widespread ministry to the deaf, a ministry which includes both special services and the "signing" of those services which were designed, originally, for the hearing. The Executive Council has prepared a number of films to help hearing people learn the signs to enable them to communicate with the deaf.

The Church has also attempted to provide the Bible and Prayer Book, as well as works of contemporary theology and devotion, to the blind, both in the form of Braille and through "talking books."

Other ministries of the Church serve the mentally ill, the disturbed, the chronically ill. In each case the Church seeks to show forth the signs of the Kingdom. We attempt to demonstrate God's love and compassion and forgiveness to all men, including those whose circumstances call for special ways of speaking.

Those who teach and those who learn...

Some leaders in the field of religion tell us that the day of the church school is past. They cite figures showing at least a ten per cent decline across the board in the number of pupils enrolled. They point to uninformed adult churchmen as evidence of the church school's failure in the past.

It is true that many church schools are poorly attended. Many others are short-staffed, and many are staffed with well-meaning teachers who are little more than baby-sitters.

On the other hand, even well-run church schools do not guarantee a good Christian education. Many students with perfect attendance records have lost all interest in their Faith as they have grown older. Others have used the Church and church activities either as an escape from life or as a social prop for their own advancement.

In dealing with this situation, one of our problems is that we think of Christian education solely in terms of church school on Sunday morning. Christian education requires far more than a weekly one-hour session for ten or twelve years. In Christian education the most important area where experience and reflection take place is within the family.

Educators and psychologists remind us that as parents we are always teaching our children, either positively or negatively. Indeed, we mutually affect each other in every relationship. "Those who teach and those who learn" are not only faculty and students or parents and children. Each of us, in different situations, as a member of the family of God, is both teaching and learning.

We can never sit back and say, "Let the Church teach the Faith." Whether at a vestry meeting, the coffee hour, or while driving home from a family vacation, we are engaged in the process of Christian education. No matter what form the teaching may take, as Christian education it must lead to a different style of life, challenged by the world, based on our faith in Jesus Christ Himself, and nurtured by His Church.

A mighty God, our heavenly Father, who has committed to thy holy Church the care and nurture of thy children; Enlighten with thy wisdom those who teach and those who learn, that, rejoicing in the knowledge of thy truth, they may worship thee and serve thee from generation to generation; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen. (Prayer Book, page 43)

A committee of support is being organized for Biafrans here at the Parish. If you are willing to assist in this endeavor please see Bob Gallagher.

Also, starvation is still a real threat in Biafra, therefore we are making a special appeal for funds which will be sent by way of the National Council of Churches. Give your contribution to Bob Gallagher or Father Scott. We have $25 thus far.

STUDENTS

1. Concerned with democracy on campus? You may be interested in attending the Students for a Democratic Society meeting on Monday Sept. 9, 8 P.M. in the Franklin Room in Houston Hall. See Bob Gallagher.
2. If you are concerned with the urban crisis you may be interested in joining the Community Involvement Council. Recruitment meeting in College Hall, Room 200 on Sept. 9 at 8 P.M.

INTERCESSIONS:

It is our practice to maintain on the tract table where you may jot down the names of persons you would like included in the Prayer of Intercession at the Liturgy, but you are also encouraged to participate spontaneously in the Prayer of Intercession by inserting names and concerns at the times when the Litaniist pauses during the several petitions of the Prayer.

The Cost of Discipleship

In his letter to the Church in Galatia, St. Paul speaks of "the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world."

Most of us are inclined to think that to be crucified with Christ, while an interesting devotional metaphor, is hardly a plan of action we need to follow to be a Christian.

The Christian, we tend to think, is a person who "follows" Christ and who, if he tries to be decent and moral, will be rewarded accordingly.

For St. Paul, the reality of the gift of life in Christ is no mere reward. It is a gift which is wonderful beyond any describing, but it is a gift that is costly, both to God and to the Christian who receives it.

The Cross is the measure of God's giving. The death of Christ is the cost of His obedience to the Father. The Cross is also the symbol of our discipleship. Our obedience to Christ, in response to His gift of life, always leads us to His Cross.

True discipleship is always costly. It costs us something in our relationship to God. We can no longer regard Him as a problem solver who will banish all our cares, but must acknowledge Him as one who sends us into the world to do His work.

Discipleship costs us something as we deal with God's creation. We cannot simply use it for our pleasure, but are asked to offer it back to Him in penitence and in celebration.

Discipleship demands a great deal of us as we live with our fellow men. The disciple of Christ is not free to exploit or to ignore his brethren, but is called to serve them in love and in truth. This costs us a great deal if we take it seriously.

St. Paul knew the reality of this cost. His life after his conversion was a testimonial to the nature of discipleship. St. Paul knew, too, the reality of the love and joy which are part of our sharing in Christ's victory. It is this victory which makes the cost worthwhile.

God is our hope and strength, a very present help in trouble.

War in Heaven

The very phrase "war in heaven" seems a contradiction. Heaven, we believe, is the realm of peace and joy and goodness, where no strife can be found.

Yet, in the 12th chapter of the Revelation of St. John the Divine, we read, "There was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon . . ."

Indeed, the Seer goes on to say ". . . and the dragon fought and his angels, and prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven."

And so the inspired author of the Apocalypse takes us back in imagination to a time before human history to help us understand how evil entered into human affairs.

After the Devil was expelled from heaven, St. John records, ". . . he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him." Thus Satanic power was loosed, creating chaos among mankind.

St. John, a man steeped in the imagery of apocalyptic visions of the primeval past and the remote future, saw the earthly conflict between good and evil against the background of the heavenly conflict between Michael and his angels of light and Satan and his angels of darkness.

The Revelation depicts the Devil as a fallen angel, a spiritual being of great potential whose evil consists in his perverted will. Although later ages portray Satan as a grossly physical creature, the story told by St. John the Divine reminds us that the Evil One is wholly spiritual in nature.

To call Satan the spirit of evil is not to dismiss him as an unreal figment of warped human imagination. It is rather to acknowledge the fearful fact that the worst sins are not those of the flesh but those of the spirit. Pride, vainglory and hypocrisy, envy, hatred and malice, are the most truly demonic ills to which the human spirit may succumb.

Although it is often easier to blame "the beast in man" for our temptations and troubles, it is wiser to recall that St. John the Divine saw the struggle against wickedness as beginning long ago in heaven.

Forbearance in Love

Today's world seems to know how to measure relationships between individuals and between nations only in terms of power. Political power provides the uneasy framework within which man tries to regulate his society. Economic power lures man to selfish achievement, and to attempt to better his insecure way of life.

This continual struggle for power results in a dizzying melee of strife and disagreement. Within this world of conflict lives the Christian community. And to this community come St. Paul's words, "... forbearing one another in love," words which keynote the Christian way of life.

Despite this upheaval of the world in its mad dash for power, the Christian community, according to Paul, is to live in peace and love. And this harmony is to be found in forbearance, a forgiving concern, for one another. For it is the particular insight of Christians that a word of pardon to the wayward and a bit of food to the hungry, on even the least significant occasion, are the elements which redeem the hostility and frustration in human relationships.

Implicit in Paul's statement is the admission that friction and strife are always present in the relationship between man and man. This is true in the Christian community as well as outside of it. But the harmony of the Christian community depends upon the willingness of the individual and community to transcend personal conflict and enmity.

It is forbearance in love that can preserve the community which was created in love.

The Christian community may be an imperfect community, but it is the one community which can demonstrate that universal harmony is not a vain hope.

A Contradiction

"But whom say ye that I am?" our Lord asks Peter. This is a question that calls for individual and complete commitment by that faithful disciple.

The question our Lord asks of the Pharisees, however, is quite different: "What think ye of Christ?" This time it is not a statement of commitment that He seeks but a demand that the Pharisees evaluate their expectations.

The Pharisees had long awaited the Messiah, the Christ. They looked for one who would break their Roman captivity and turn Israel into a sovereign and prosperous country. They looked for the divinely appointed king who would, like David, rout the forces of oppression and restore the ancient kingdom.

The Christ who came was not the Christ they expected. Humble and meek, He identified Himself not with the powerful and the learned but with the poor and despised. He came to serve, not to be served. He came with power, but He used it not to crush armies but to conquer men's hearts. He came as Redeemer, but to redeem souls, not to save pocketbooks.

The Christ who came to the world was a contradiction of all the conventional expectations of the men of His day. Although the signs were clear and the promises were fulfilled, the Messiah whom they saw did not fit into the usual categories of their thinking. So they were blind to His presence.

The lesson for us is clear. God does not fashion Himself to fit the pattern we would wish Him to follow. If we read the signs, we can be certain He abides with us. But He will not be our pawn. He will accomplish His will, in His own time, in His own way.

The Holy Spirit

The Collect for the 19th Sunday after Trinity invokes the power of the Holy Spirit that He "may in all things direct and rule our hearts." Every Sunday we proclaim our belief in His existence, we speak His name to close our prayers, and we ask for His presence to strengthen our lives. Yet an analysis of the nature of the Holy Spirit defies our complete understanding.

Part of our difficulty is found in Holy Scripture itself. Nowhere there is the Holy Spirit clearly defined. Our Lord tells the Apostles that only when He leaves their company will the Holy Spirit come to them (John 16:7).

St. Luke describes how the Holy Spirit invaded the life of the Christian community at Pentecost (Act 2:11), and St. Paul tells us that the Spirit is the heartbeat and regulator in the lives of all true Christians.

But beyond these references, Holy Scripture does not go. In the ensuing centuries, many theologians have speculated about the person and nature of the Holy Spirit, but the mystery remains.

More important, however, than theological descriptions of the Spirit is the awareness of His activity. The Holy Spirit is the power of God at work in the world. By this power Christians become new creatures, reconciled to the Creator of the universe.

The Holy Spirit establishes our faith. With the help and guidance of the Spirit, charity, the ethic of Christianity, makes its presence known in the affairs of man. The Holy Spirit is God expressing Himself in the relationship of people throughout the world.

The Holy Spirit is not an intellectual riddle to be solved. He is God, present, with whom we are to cooperate. It is more important to recognize His actions than to comprehend His nature.

"Come Holy Ghost, our souls inspire, and lighten with celestial fire . . . Teach us to know the Father, Son, and thee, of both to be but One. . . ."

Hymn 217

The Measure of Devotion

For too many Christians there is a wide gulf separating the program of the Church and the money which supports this program. The first they consider "spiritual", whereas the second is "worldly", or at best a necessary evil.

This is in great contrast with the attitude of our Lord toward money. He was very interested in how people gave to the Temple, and he honored the poor widow who gave all that she had:

"He looked up and saw the rich people dropping their gifts into the chest of the temple treasury; and he noticed a poor widow putting in two tiny coins.

" 'I tell you this,' he said: 'this poor widow has given more than any of them; for those others who have given had more than enough, but she, with less than enough, has given all she had to live on.' " (New English Bible, Luke 21).

Our Lord was interested in the contributions of the people, because He knew that giving reveals a great deal about the state of the giver's soul. After our personal services, money is the most tangible gift we can offer to God. Money represents our time, our efforts and our talents. When we give of our money or withhold it, we are giving or withholding ourselves, our lives and labors.

Our giving reveals the measure of our faith and gratitude to God. If our giving is token giving, then our faith is most likely a token faith. If we give God what is left over after we have acquired all the luxuries we want, then our faith, no doubt, is an after-thought and our gratitude perfunctory.

When our faith and gratitude make a difference in our lives, we give sacrificially, we give so that it costs us something.

Money given to the work of God, far from being worldly and a necessary evil, is of the greatest worth and symbolic of sacrifice. Our Lord is interested in what we give, for the sacrifice in our giving is the measure of our devotion to Him.

FLOWERS

The flowers this morning are given in loving memory of Annie H. Pancoast. May light perpetual shine upon her.

RICHARD HOOKER

Richard Hooker, a priest of the Church of England in the 16th Century, was a moderate who lived in an age of extremists. He was born about 1554 near Exeter and grew up to attend Corpus Christi College of Oxford University, becoming a Fellow and deputy professor of Hebrew there in later years.

During his lifetime the characteristic style of Anglicanism took shape. Few men did more than he to define the doctrinal approach of the Church of England during the vexing and bitter controversies of the era.

Papist elements, on the one hand, were repeatedly calling for a return to Roman authority and medieval religious practices. On the other side of the debate, a strong and rigid Puritan party insisted that every belief and practice of the Church must be expressly commanded in Holy Scriptures.

Between these two extremes, Hooker brilliantly and successfully outlined a via media in his authoritative work, Treatise on the Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity. With great skill and learning he made his appeal to Scripture, Tradition, and Reason as the three-fold source of religious truth for Anglicanism.

Thus he introduced a tone of devout common sense into the violent arguments of his day and was aptly called "the judicious Hooker."

Although he lived four centuries ago, Richard Hooker remains a singularly important figure in Anglicanism. As a tribute to his place in the Church's tradition, the standing Liturgical Commission has included the following Collect in its supplemental book, Lesser Feasts and Fasts:

"O God, who hast enlightened thy Church by the teaching of thy servant Richard Hooker: Enrich us evermore, we beseech thee, with thy heavenly grace, and raise up faithful witnesses who by their life and doctrine will set forth the truth of thy salvation; through Jesus Christ our Lord."

COVER: Scripture, tradition and reason are represented by the text, the gothic arch and the lamp.

10 "And come and stand before me in this house, which is called by my name, and say, We are delivered to do all these abominations?

11 Is this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? Behold, even I have seen it, saith the LORD.

12 But go ye now unto my place which was in Shiloh, where I set my name at the first, and see what I did to it for the wickedness of my people Israel.

13 And now, because ye have done all these works, saith the LORD, and I spake unto you, rising up early and speaking, but ye heard not; and I called you, but ye answered not;

14 Therefore will I do unto this house, which is called by my name, where ye trust, and unto the place where ye have done to your fathers, as ye have done to Shiloh.

15 And I will cast you out of my sight, as I have cast out your brethren, even the whole seed of Ephraim.

16 Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up cry nor prayer for them, neither make intercession to me: for I will not hear thee.

17 ¶ Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah, and the streets of Jerusalem?

18 The children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough, to make cakes to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink offerings unto other gods, that they may provoke me to anger, saith the LORD: do they not provoke themselves to the confusion of their own faces?

21 ¶ Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Put your burthenings unto your sacrifices, and eat flesh.

22 For I spake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burthenings or sacrifices:

23 But this thing I commanded them, saying, Obey my voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people: and walk in the ways that I have commanded you, that it may be well unto you.

24 But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear, but wasted the counsels, in the imagination of their heart, and we

25 Since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt unto this day I have even sent unto you all my servants the prophets, daily rising early and sending them:

26 Yet they hearkened not unto their voice, nor hearkened to their ear, but they were as a neck: they did worse than their fathers.

27 Therefore thou shalt speak these words unto them; but they will not hearken to thee: thou shalt also call unto them, but they will not answer thee.

28 But thou shalt say unto them, This is a nation that obeyeth not the voice of the LORD their God, nor receiveth correction: truth is perished, and is cut off from the earth.

¶ Cry, O Jerusalem, and lift up a lamentation on high place for the LORD hath rejected and forsaken the generation of his wrath.

Apostle to the New World

"We have a Bishop in town named Seabury. At times he appears in a black satin gown; white satin sleeves, and something resembling a pyramid on his head."

This description, written in a letter in 1786, may seem quaint today, but a bishop was a new figure in the American colonies. For more than 150 years colonial churchmen had looked to the Bishop of London for episcopal guidance. After the Revolution they realized that if the Church were to survive, American bishops in apostolic succession were necessary, and the clergy of Connecticut chose Samuel Seabury to sail to England and seek consecration.

Seabury, born November 30, 1729, in Ledyard, Conn., and baptized in the First Congregational Church of Groton, grew to be a rugged and scholarly young man who studied medicine as well as theology. After graduation from Yale he sailed to England to be ordained and to further his medical studies in Scotland.

When the Revolution began, Seabury was rector of a parish on Long Island, married and the father of five children. He was also headmaster of his own school, a farmer, physician, and author of several tracts which supported the King and the Church of England.

By the war's end in 1783, Seabury had suffered imprisonment, the loss of his wife, his school and his parish. The Anglican Church in America was at low ebb and the changed political scene made reform difficult on either side of the Atlantic. Parliament could hardly send an English bishop to the Church in England's former colonies. American ordinands were reluctant to sail to England where the oath of allegiance to the King was required at ordination.

In England, Seabury waited in vain for a year and a half to be consecrated without having to swear allegiance to the King. Finally, the bishops of the Episcopal Church in Scotland (where the Church was independent of the government) offered "to convey the blessing of a free, valid and purely ecclesiastical Episcopacy to the Western World . . ." and on Sunday morning, November 14, 1784, in the chapel of an upper floor in a house in Aberdeen, Scotland, Samuel Seabury was consecrated Bishop in the Church of God.

He returned to America to be the first Bishop of Connecticut as well as rector of St. James' Church, New London, and when he died in 1796 the following was inscribed on the tablet over his grave:

"Ingenious without pride, learned without pedantry, good without severity, he was duly qualified to discharge the duties of the Christian and the Bishop."

UNITED THANK OFFERING

Tuesday November 19, 1968, the United Thank Offering will be presented at Christ Church, 2nd above Market. The Rev. Donald F. Winslow will be the speaker. Dinner at 6:30 P.M. in the Neighborhood House, $2.00. Envelopes will be in the pews Nov. 10 and 17. I hope every woman will use an envelope as a "Thank Offering" for some blessing since last Spring.

Alice M. Pancoast, Custodian.

NOTES

Fr. Wilson will be attending the Southeastern Pennsylvania Clergy Economic Conference the early part of the week and participating in the Diocesan Student Conference next weekend. Bob Gallagher will be attending a Province III student meeting at the Diocese of Maryland conference center addressing them on the white racism question over next weekend.

The November issues of both Panorama and the American Church News are now available on the tract table.

Posters advertising the Wednesday night activities have been prepared. Please take a few and see that they are posted.

The last edition of the Parish Letter was posted OCTOBER 25. On NOVEMBER 5 we discovered no copies had yet left the main post office!

ST. HUGH OF LINCOLN

St. Hugh of Lincoln, known as "the Hammerer of Kings", had frequent encounters with two of England's most headstrong monarchs—Henry II and Richard the Lion-Heart.

Hugh, the son of Burgundian nobility, went from France to England as a young Carthusian monk in 1180 to be prior of the monastery Henry II was establishing at Witham in penance for the murder of St. Thomas Becket.

When Hugh arrived, he found no provision had been made to house the people who were being evicted from their homes to make room for the monastery. He immediately refused to take office until the king had compensated the people "down to the last penny."

Six years later he became Bishop of Lincoln, and he used all the authority of his office to restore ecclesiastical discipline among his clergy. He was especially strict about the evil practice, by some of the clergy, of extracting improper fees.

During the epidemic of Jew-baiting which broke out in England at the time of the Third Crusade, Hugh single-handedly faced an armed and angry mob on three occasions and persuaded them to spare their victims. It is not surprising that when he died in 1200, Jews wept in the streets of Lincoln, crying out, "This was a true servant of the great God."

In those days England was still wracked by antagonism between Saxon and Norman, an aftermath of the Norman Conquest of 1060. Hugh, by his personal charm, his devotion to Christ, his pastoral concern for the poor and oppressed, and his courage in speaking the truth in love to King Henry and King Richard—both known for their murderous opposition to the Church—became the first mutual hero to a hitherto divided society.

To many historians, Hugh, despite his inability to speak the language, was the first true Englishman and "the best bishop of the middle ages."

His symbols are a swan, for monastic tranquility, a Star of David in the crook of a crozier for his defense of the Jews, and a chalice with the Christ-child and the host, as the pledge and seal of his priestly vocation.

COVER: Two symbols associated with St. Hugh: a swan, representing monastic tranquility, and the Star of David, representing his defense of the Jews.

"I AM THE BREAD OF LIFE"

"Man", said the philosopher Feuerbach, "is what he eats". Although he certainly never intended it, Feuerbach expressed an idea which is quite in keeping with the Biblical tradition.

From the beginning the Bible sees food as a basic expression of God's concern for man. The meal, therefore, is not simply a matter of taking on fuel, but rather is seen as a symbol of communion between God and man, between man and his neighbor. Thus, the dietary regulations of the Law, in the Old Testament were far more than legalistic concerns for either religion or public health. They are a recognition that man's priestly role in creation involves our taking God's bounty and using it for His service.

In later Judaism, the Messianic Kingdom is described as a great banquet, at which men will rejoice to eat the food and to drink the wine which God will provide.

Against this background, our Lord's feeding of the five thousand can take on renewed significance. Reflecting the Father's provision for the wants of man, Jesus fed the hungry crowd because they were hungry. Beyond that physical need, however, He promises men that He is able to feed them with the Bread of Life, the food of the Kingdom.

"I am the bread of Life", Jesus tells those who have followed Him looking for the miracle to be repeated. Man is what he eats, and those who feed upon the food provided by the Messiah come to be citizens of His Kingdom, filled with His life.

Communion, therefore, is the key word. To enter into a "common-union" by eating the Bread of Life is to come to a new relationship with God and with each other. Every meal becomes a foretaste of the Messianic Banquet, a reminder of the Holy Eucharist.

We are fed by His body, and we become what we eat. We put on Christ, the true Bread; we grow in Him; we become His agents in this world.

COVER: The wheat and grapes, chalice and host are symbols of the Eucharist.

Works of Darkness

Witchcraft is not thought to be a threat to our twentieth century western civilization, even though in less advanced societies, primitive witchcraft can be a virulent force.

There are, to be sure, even in our "enlightened" era of science and technology, still a few pathetic souls who attempt to recreate that sad, sub-Christian faith in demons, ghosts and the spirits of nature which most of us thought had disappeared hundreds of years ago. While we can regret such a pathological attachment to these "works of darkness," most modern-day witches seem to be more pitiable than frightening.

We forget, however, that the works of darkness can take other forms that are formidable indeed. We no longer speak of "witchcraft", but the fact remains that the forces of evil are still served in our day. We are able to exercise control over other people in ways and with an effectiveness that exceed the wildest dreams of the medieval wizard.

We can manipulate the minds and emotions of whole populations, and the result may be gas-chambers and totalitarian purges. We can use drugs to change individuals and thus use them for our own ends. Envy and covetousness can be used to sell everything from books to houses. And the mass appeal to lust in America has robbed sex of all wonder and beauty.

The spirit of evil is not banished by progress in science alone. Instead, man is given the option of working out his own damnation, as well as his own salvation, by his increasing ability to manipulate the creation. In our day we must choose between the works of darkness and the will of God, just as surely as other ages were forced to choose. If anything, the choice is much more crucial for us than it was for past generations, because our potential for doing evil is so much greater today.

What will our choice be? Before we give an easy answer, we must surely pray, "Almighty God, give us grace that we may cast away the works of darkness, and put upon us the armour of light, now in the time of this mortal life. . . ." Prayer Book, page 90)

GUEST ORGANIST

Dr. Allen is part of the St. Mary's family and today it is our pleasure to welcome him as organist in Dr. Evans' absence. Dr. Allen holds a Ph.D. from Oxford where he was a student at Lincoln College and was sub-organist at Manchester College. He is Assistant Professor of Arabic at Penn and spent 1966-67 as Organist and Director of Music at the Anglican Cathedral of All Saints in Cairo.

The Annunciation

Nine months ago the Church celebrated a Prayer Book holy day called "The Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary" (page 235).

The story of this divine event which took place in Nazareth is described in the opening chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke: "... the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary."

The young girl was frightened by the angel, but he assured her, "Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favor with God. And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest . . ."

We can imagine Mary's bewilderment at this moment. On the one hand, she was honored to be chosen by God to bear his Son. As a Jew, she no doubt had heard speculation about a coming Messiah who, in some miraculous way, would save her people. She may even have learned the verses from Isaiah: "... the Lord himself shall give you a sign: Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."

But Mary, like most of us, would have no reason to see herself uniquely involved in the history of her country. She was planning to marry a carpenter and be a faithful wife and mother. Would this now be possible? What would Joseph say?

None of us will ever have to make as dramatic a decision as did Mary, but some of us may see our lives changed by God's call. And to all of us, God calls repeatedly to be His instruments of redemption.

Like Mary, we are free to say yes, or no. We can hold back to protect our self-interest, or we can respond as Mary did: "... be it unto me according to thy word."

ANNOUNCEMENT OF AN EXCITING ADVENTURE!

The West Philadelphia Adult Basic Education Academy, which is sponsored by the West Philadelphia Interchurch Community Ministry, is looking for volunteer teachers to staff its class units.

Needed are several Master Teachers who must have had teaching experience (or certification), be flexible on technique, and willing to spend up to 10 hours a week leading and training a group of unit teachers.

Also needed are those Unit Teachers. They do not have to have experience but should have at least a High School education and be willing to spend at least 5 hours a week teaching ~~and~~ learning

Please contact your church office or call Sven Borei, Academy Director, at BA 2-7606 (day) or EV 2-2283 (evening) or CE 6-9429 (night);

CHILDRENS' CHOIR

Our Childrens' Choir at the Christmas Eve service last year was something of a success, and we want to have one again this year. Parents of children who would like to participate should see Dr. Evans at the Coffee Hour or call him (Home EV 6-3971; office 594-5822). All children from first grade through junior high school are welcome.

The Works of Christ

"Art thou he who should come, or do we look for another?"

John the Baptist, who was in prison, sent his disciples to ask this question of Jesus. The answer to it was important. If, indeed, the Messiah had come, prison was hardly the place for John to be. On the other hand, Jesus did not appear to be bringing in the Kingdom of God, and John was beginning to wonder if Jesus was the Messiah after all.

Our Lord's reply was: "Go and shew John again those things which ye do hear and see; the blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them."

This was not the direct answer for which John had hoped. In it, however, were the small but tangible evidences that the Kingdom of God was dawning.

In all periods of history man has looked for deliverance from his predicament. In our time the need for salvation is as great as it has ever been. Even as John the Baptist longed for deliverance from the evil of his day, so we yearn, in ours, for solution to our problems of poverty, discord and disease.

The Church, taking our Lord as its pattern, proclaims the Gospel. And in so doing, it attempts to meet the needs and fears of men as they search for spiritual and physical health.

Since the days of the Apostles, the Church has ministered to the sick, the widowed and the helpless, feeding the hungry and encouraging the weak. The modern Church's highly structured and intricately coordinated social agencies may not resemble the loosely organized efforts of the primitive Church to cope with the problems of its needy, but the objectives are the same now as then.

The Church's mission is to herald the Lord of mankind. But in filling men's hearts and healing their souls, it must also ease their hunger and heal their bodies.

Flowers on the Altar today are given in loving memory of Marguerite MacLennan. May light perpetual shine upon her.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF AN EXCITING ADVENTURE

Please consult the details on the Bulletin Board concerning volunteer teaching needs for adult functional illiterates. This is one of the areas of ministry sponsored by the West Philadelphia Interchurch Community Ministry.

CHILDRENS' CHOIR

Our childrens' choir at the Christmas Eve service last year was something of a success, and we want to have one again this year. Parents of children who would like to participate should see Dr. Evans at the Coffee Hour or call him (Home BW 6-3971; office 594-5822). All children from first grade through junior high are welcome.

CHRISTMAS

(A) For donations in the church at Christmas, memorials or thank offerings will be received by Miss Alice Pancoast. Names for memorials should also be given her.

(B) Some persons have asked about toy collecting, repairing and wrapping. For the past two years the Parish House basement has been used by Y.G.S. for this purpose. If you want to come to church next Sunday armed with scissors and tape, your help might be needed again!

(C) Christmas services will be: Christmas Eve at 11PM Procession and Festival Eucharist, and Christmas Day at 10:00 A.M., the Eucharist and hymns.

"With Great Might"

Many of us seem to pray with our fingers crossed.

All Christian prayer, in the final analysis, is a prayer that Christ will come again in the fulness of His Kingdom. When we ask for forgiveness, we are asking that we may be brought to that state of holiness which is characteristic of the Kingdom.

When we pray that God may heal the sick, comfort the bereaved, or bring peace to the world, we are praying that we and our brothers may be brought within the scope of the Kingdom. Whenever we gather for the Eucharist, we are sharing in a foretaste of the Messianic banquet, the great meal of the Kingdom.

Against this background, much of our prayer seems timid and inadequate. If the Kingdom is to come in power and great glory, there is nothing too complex or too difficult for that power to renew or for that glory to enlighten.

The peace of the world, for example, is a matter of frequent prayer on the part of nearly all Christians, yet most of us appear to pray without any conviction that God either will or can give us peace. We apparently do not believe that God can deal with or influence the complexities of our modern world. We find it hard to accept the fact that God might answer our prayers by giving us sufficient grace to change the political structures of our day.

If, however, we believe that Christ can come "with great might" to succor us, we can pray large prayers and expect large answers. We can look for the Kingdom to come with power, enfolding within its boundaries the peace of the nations in our time.

We can expect that renewal of the Church will be accomplished by God's grace. We can hope that God will send His Christ with great might into our hearts, that we may be willing to change, that we may be given the strength and the vision to open our lives to Him.

COVER: The hands lifted in prayer are shown with the ancient symbol for faith.

WEEKDAY EUCHARIST

the LIFE was the LGHT of men

The Fulness of Time

It was not only the gun in the hand of a madman at Sarajevo that caused World War I. Nor was it merely that a Negro woman sat in the front seat of a bus in Montgomery, Alabama, which started the Civil Rights movement in the United States. Neither was the assassination of Martin Luther King the only reason for the rioting and burning which followed in the wake of his death. In each case, a long and involved series of forces and events, social, political, economic, cultural, and spiritual, coalesced to produce a dynamic result.

The God of history takes the results of man's free choices, good and evil results alike, to serve as the basis for the accomplishment of His will. St. Paul, writing to the Christians in Galatia, showed that he understood this way in which God works in history. He wrote: ". . . When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son . . ."

Many forces and events had made their contribution to this "fulness of time." The Law of Moses had been given as a guide for man's conduct, but over the years many Jews had become so concerned with the structures and ceremonies of the Law that they were no longer able to respond to the God of their Fathers or to the demands of the changes of their day.

Among the Gentiles, many were in bondage to the gods of materialism, but others sought answers in sophisticated terms to profound religious questions. In addition, Rome had imposed its universal rule over the Mediterranean world, a rule which, while galling to the proud spirit of such peoples as the Jews, did provide peace and order and a common language in a divided world.

Into this situation of idolatry and paganism and religious yearning, at precisely the right time, God sent Jesus the Christ to fulfill the promises He had made to the nation of Israel. God works in His own time. The incarnation was the fruition of the purposes of God for which man had been in preparation for centuries. When the time was right, God acted and the Son of God came to redeem all men and to fill their lives with the riches of the Kingdom. And today men of every age and race and country can live in this time of God's fulfillment.

The New Light

Again and again the writers in the Old Testament compare God to light. The Psalmist called Him "my light and my salvation." Moses and the wandering tribe saw God as a flaming pillar of light. Isaiah called Him "the everlasting light."

But now, as the Collect for the Second Sunday after Christmas reminds us, there is a "new light" in the world: "Almighty God, who hast poured upon us the new light of thine incarnate Word; Grant that the same light enkindled in our hearts may shine forth in our lives; through Jesus Christ our Lord."

It is this light of which St. John spoke, and it is this light which we proclaim in our creed. The new light is Jesus Christ, the incarnate Word.

One of the essential properties of light is that it radiates in all directions. Unless its rays are blocked, its beam reaches every corner. Christ, as the Light of the world is the abundant and expansive life which is given for all mankind. Just as light reaches every corner of the room if it is not obscured, so the life of Christ can reach into every heart and soul.

This is the significance of the New Light. For centuries men lived in the semi-dark of their confusion and sin. No matter how hard they tried, they could not find their way. But the light of Christ pierced their dark and marked the way to God.

The New Light changes things, illuminating the dread and secret corners of life, exposing sin and its corruption. At the same time, it provides the warmth and fire which define and outline truth and love.

The New Light is for every man. It must radiate from the hearts of those who know the Word Incarnate, the Light of Christ. When it shines from Christian lives, life around them can be changed as the dark is dispelled and the truth is revealed by that Life which was "the light of men."

The Unsearchable Riches of Christ

Ever since Rousseau wrote about "the noble savage," Western man has tended to have romantic notions about the simple, happy, unspoiled primitive who has never been corrupted by the evils of civilization.

"Why change these delightful people into Christians and teach them to feel guilty?" the Church is asked again and again.

This question seems logical, but it isn't true. It reveals not only a naive misconception of the conditions under which the typical primitive has to live, but also a complete ignorance of the meaning of the Gospel and the purpose of the Church's missionary endeavor.

In most cases, the "happy" native lives in a world he believes to be filled with spirits who are touchy at best and actively malevolent at worst. He must be continually on guard lest he offend or transgress, and if he makes a mistake, no forgiveness is available. If he is rich he may be able to placate an angry god by sacrifice. If he is poor, he knows of no way out.

Charles Williams, the English writer, described a world without forgiveness: "Every grudge and every resentment would have lasted . . . The possibility of love would have depended upon the lack of offense, and no mortal lover but knows how easy offense is."

Such a world is grim, indeed, and to the man living in it the Christian faith comes as Good News. It provides him with a freedom and a hope which entirely change his whole life.

Even in sophisticated parts of the world where men do not live in constant dread of evil spirits, to know a God of love and compassion, to be assured that victory over sin has already been won, is a gift of great richness to all men.

The purpose of the Church's missionary work is not to increase guilt but to free men from it by bringing them to the love of God in Christ. We Christians are not always the best examples of freedom in Christ, but the Christian faith does offer the possibility of forgiveness and of renewal. If we can but recognize "the unsearchable riches of Christ" as being rich beyond imagining, we need never fear that we deprive men when we invite them to become Christians and to share with us these riches—the freedom, love and joy which are available no where else.

The Baptism of Jesus

When John the Baptist's call went out in the wilderness, we are told in the Gospel according to St. Mark, "... there went out unto him all the land of Judea, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins."

In this strangely mixed crowd were men and women from all stations of life: some rich, many poor, some learned but many ignorant of the elaborate religious traditions of Judaism. All, however, had one thing in common: an awareness of their sin. John had warned them that God was about to purge Israel, and they drew near to be cleansed.

Yet there was one among them who did not share the sense of guilt and fear of judgment which motivated most of those others who sought John's baptism. Jesus of Nazareth had come from Galilee to be baptized by John, but not because He had sins to confess or guilt to be purged. He came not out of fear of His Heavenly Father but in obedience to His divine call.

The Gospel according to St. Matthew records the dismay of John the Baptist when Jesus presented Himself along with the sinners and reprobates: "John would have prevented him, saying, 'I need to be baptized by you, and do you come to me?' But Jesus answered him, 'Let it be so now, for thus it is fitting for us to fulfill all righteousness.'"

And thus our Lord identified Himself totally with mankind's sin and need for repentance. As He made this profound act of obedience, the Gospels record that He received divine assurance of who He was: "Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

It was this act of humility which foreshadowed all that Jesus was to suffer and do in fulfillment of His vocation to be God's Messiah. At the time few perceived the meaning of Jesus' baptism by John. But the divine glory has shone forth repeatedly in the Son's baptism every time men have contemplated anew the wonder of this deed, a revelation of the forgiving love of God in Christ, and an epiphany of His mercy.

"Sent Abroad into the World"

"What is a priest?" This question, asked of his students by a seminary professor, might seem to be simple and the answer to be obvious. Behind its apparent simplicity, however, lies the fact that many people, both in the Church and in society, are trying to understand the role of the priest today.

Some of them maintain that too many clergy are private chaplains to their own congregations, making little impact on the world and substituting parish house activities for the Church's real mission.

Others say that the new breed of clergy is too obsessed with 'causes' and should spend more time comforting parishioners and knocking on doors to seek new members.

The answer, also, is more complicated than might appear at first. In the Ordination Service on page 545 of the Book of Common Prayer, the bishop refers in prayer to the fact that our Lord, after "he had made perfect our redemption by his death, and was ascended into heaven, sent abroad into the world his Apostles, Prophets, Evangelists, Doctors and Pastors; by whose labour and ministry he gathered together a great flock in all the parts of the world . . ."

Here we are reminded that there are many vocations within the vocation to the sacred ministry of the Church. As each one of us is unique in our relationship to God, so does every priest bring different talents to the task given him. Some feel they are called to be hospital or prison chaplains, and others to serve in the armed forces or in academic situations. Even those in the parish ministry will see their roles in different ways, and each will bring to his ministry his own unique emphasis.

There is no pat answer to the professor's question. A priest is a man chosen and empowered by God through His Church to go from the altar to the world and back again. For some the altar may be a kitchen table or the hood of a jeep, their world the ghetto or the battlefield.

For others the altar is the more traditional setting where people bring their children to Sunday School, plan the annual bazaar, or run a senior citizens' center.

Whether prophet, evangelist, doctor or pastor, each priest is sent abroad into the world with the same commission: to help men to love God as revealed in Jesus Christ and through Him be reconciled to God and to one another.

LONELINESS

Much contemporary literature revolves around the loneliness in the lives of modern men. With varying degrees of discernment, modern novels and plays portray the plight of us all as we seek to know and understand others and find always that our efforts are incomplete.

There are many kinds of loneliness. There is the misery of childhood, and those times when we felt misunderstood, perhaps unwanted; those moments when we feared the dark and felt that beyond the confines of familiar things there was danger.

There is the tumult of adolescence with its painful self-consciousness, its fear of not conforming, not belonging. As we take our place in the business world, fall in love, and make our homes, it appears for a while that we have settled down in safety with friends and family. But even in adulthood, we discover there is anxiety, competition and separation.

As we get older there comes sickness, the difficulty of understanding our children and being understood by them. Parents and older friends leave us in death. Of old age and its loneliness, it is not necessary to speak.

What does all this mean? We miss a dog, a teacher, a bank account, a mother, a child, places, things and people, the living and the dead. Is it for these that we are lonely, or are these but the figures through which our basic loneliness is expressed?

When we see our human loneliness as a whole, present in every man and woman, in every age, we discern that we are beings whom this world can never satisfy. We are lonely for another world. We are lonely for God.

The way to deal with loneliness is to go home. The way home is the way of faith. The path is well-trodden. It is a path of prayer and sacrament, of self-giving service. The guide is the Scripture and the living witness of the Christian Church.

The way home is through the Church.

ANGER

More than 2,000 years ago Plato called anger "a violent impulse without reason."

Today we do not have to search very far to see evidence of this impulse in our world. We have only to observe the destruction men visit upon each other in warfare, the violence and ruin that mar our cities, the antagonism and hatred that so often disrupt family life. All are the result of anger, the inclination to lash out without rational control over frustration or insult. Anger, the impulse without reason, bursts forth as evil.

St. Paul, in his second letter to the Christians in Corinth, lists the many rebuffs and hardships which could well have caused him despair, resentment, or blind anger. His account of his suffering, however, deals not with his anger but suggests rather how we might "Be angry . . . and sin not." (Eph. 4:26)

St. Paul first relates the treatment he received. He does not direct his attention to the persons who beat him or imprisoned him or scorned him. Whatever anger he felt is directed against the act, not the individual. We, too often, tend to single out our offender and direct our wrath against him. What is even worse, we are likely to vent our anger against the next person we happen to meet. We become outraged by personalities. We confuse the doer with the deed.

Then, in spite of all that St. Paul suffers, he understands that it is weakness that causes men to give in to evil and to revile and hurt him. He identifies himself with the weak, the despised, the emotionally handicapped who are hurting him. His potential for anger is resolved as indignation, which leads him to become the champion of the downtrodden, of the man who gives in to the temptation of unreason.

When we become angry, all too often we permit our anger to direct our fury against the person who most desperately needs our understanding and Christian concern.

Anger of itself can be quite neutral. It can produce evil, or it can, as it did with St. Paul, produce good. St. Paul channeled the energy and the impulses of his anger into deeds of love.

FEAR

Fear is an emotion we all have known. Fear, in varying degrees, can haunt us through our lives. There is the fear that paralyzes us physically. There is the fear of growing old, of losing our youthful vigor and appearance, our friends and our security. There is the fear of the unknown. Finally, there is the fear of death.

Of itself, fear is not necessarily bad. It can be our sudden response to alarm when we are threatened. It can often drive us to make decisions and to act when our preference would be to procrastinate. In these cases, fear is a positive mechanism which can save us from danger or help us to function appropriately.

On the other hand, fear can also be hurtful, such as the fear which causes us to stand frozen in the street as a truck bears down upon us, or the fear which ties our tongue when we should cry out.

The fear which concerns us as Christians, however, is not the natural response to imminent danger but a far more debilitating emotion. This deep and often sub-conscious foreboding may have any one of a number of immediate causes. Basically, however, it develops when we rely too much on our own resources and fail to place enough trust in God.

When we cannot accept the fact that God loves us with all our shortcomings, we have two alternatives. We can either pretend those shortcomings do not exist, or we can try to overcome them through our own unaided human efforts. The more we rely on our own efforts, the more likely we are to fail, and this failure makes us afraid.

We become discouraged. We are unable to love ourselves, and therefore we cannot love others. Through fear we seek to avoid life and its many challenges.

St. Paul in his first letter to the Christians in Corinth, assures us, however, that love "beareth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things." God's love frees us to face whatever life brings us because we know we never face it alone. Our Lord Himself goes before us. In His power and love we can face even fear and come to understand what lies behind it.

The words of the familiar hymn become our petition: "O love that casts out fear, O love that casts out sin, Tarry no more without, But come and dwell within." (Hymnal, page 457.)

Tempting God

The periodic perversity of the tribe of Israel is well documented in the Old Testament. The Israelites murmured against God repeatedly. They rebelled against His leadership. They heeded false prophets. They created and paid homage to their own idols.

Their most subtle transgression, however, was none of these but that which they committed at Rephidim. There, the thirsty tribe railed at Moses and chided God for leading them into the parched wilderness. When they demanded that Moses prove God's power by providing water, Moses struck the rock, and water poured out in abundance.

The thirst of the Israelites was quenched, but they had tested the sovereignty of God—an act of faithlessness. "They tempted the Lord, saying, Is the Lord among us, or not?" (Exodus 17:7)

It is not unusual to hear someone who is facing radical surgery say that if he is delivered safely, he will return to the Church. And have not pledge increases been promised if only a loved one's health is restored or some other blessing conferred? If God will save our jobs, we vow, we will pray to Him every night.

For the favors we want God to grant, we offer to trade our prayers, our church attendance, our faithfulness. We establish the false criterion that God's omnipotence is to be measured by the blessings He bestows upon us. We attempt to make God prove Himself through spectacular deeds. We imply that if God's favors are not forthcoming, we will cease to worship Him, to serve Him, to put our faith in Him.

True faith is quite different. True faith is the certain trust that in adversity or in success, God's ultimate and lasting purpose is for the well-being of His people. True faith is to believe and rely upon the promises God has made and to follow His leadership in spite of fear or discouragement.

When the devil insisted that Jesus test His Sonship by casting Himself from the pinnacle of the temple, the Christ replied, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." We are to place total trust in God. We are not to try to tempt God, tempting as that may be.

Hating God

Few of us would ever admit to hating God, or even to disliking Him a little. Yet every day we seem to relish the opportunity to be petulant or even resentful about our misfortunes and predicaments.

God has given us so little to look forward to, we say. He has given cause for our neighbor to be angry with us. He has not given us the right talent or intelligence to cope with our problems. He has deserted us in that hour of need. "Why does God treat me this way?" is the intent—whether or not we realize it—of our daily complaining about our lot in life.

And as we bemoan our fate, we are echoing the cry of the great patriarch Joshua who railed against God, complaining at length about His shameful treatment of the tribe of Israel at the hands of the Amorites. (Joshua 7:7) Even the writer of the 22nd Psalm anticipated our despair: "My God, my God, look upon me; why hast Thou forsaken me?"

If there had been anyone who had reason to resent and to hate God, it might have been the woman of Caanan who begged Jesus to heal her daughter. Jesus refused, but the woman would not be put off. Nor did she retire in despair or anger. She persisted, saying, "...the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their master's table." Even a crumb of mercy would suffice, she was certain.

And Jesus' reply to her has been heartening and strengthening Christians down through the centuries: "O woman, great is thy faith: be it unto thee even as thou wilt." And the woman's daughter was healed.

Too often we permit the burdens and demands of the day to undermine our faith. Both heartache and headache can sap our courage. We find ourselves resenting God's will, on the brink of hating Him for surrounding us with such ill fortune.

God is never pleased with whimpering or tantrums. Nor is He to be browbeaten by an angry spirit. Each man has his own misfortune to cope with and his own problem to face. A persistent and worshipping faith in God can change our anger into love, a love by which God's will becomes our will and by which we are made whole.

Denying God

Throughout history there have been many who have denied the existence of God in favor of the pleasant gods of the secular life. Some of these people have been brilliant men and women, philosophers, scientists, successful in their chosen fields. But in matters spiritual, they have been, as the Psalms point out, fools.

Not merely once, but twice, the Psalms of the Old Testament say: "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God."

The remainder of both Psalms 14 and 53 are commentaries on the desperate condition of the atheist who finds that his way of life is filled with fear and futility.

Both Psalms were written during a period of Israel's history when the faith of the community had become corrupted and weakened by the pleasures and vices which wealth and security could offer.

In St. Paul's day, also, this sort of atheism was a problem to the infant Christian Church. The Church of the first century was scattered throughout an empire of wealth and luxury. The temptations to deny the eternal God in favor of the gods of secular comfort were most attractive. To these early Christians, as well as to the Christians of today, St. Paul wrote:

"Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience. Be not ye therefore partakers with them." (Ephesians 5:6,7)

When a man denies God, he is refusing to acknowledge Him as Creator of all; and, therefore, he is disclaiming his own creatureliness and responsibility to God. Once man no longer sees himself as a creature, he thinks of himself as a god, as the creator and the deserving recipient of all of life's pleasures and comforts.

In accepting this unrealistic picture of himself as the truth, man becomes the unredeemable victim of his own errors, vices and imperfections. His extravagant comfort, which he thought would bring him untold happiness, becomes hollow and meaningless. He becomes an intellectual animal, sans grace, sans soul, sans everything.

To deny God, the Creator of the universe and sustainer of all life, is a fatal and dehumanizing decision. The man who does is, at best, a fool and certainly has become St. Paul's "child of disobedience."

Using God

The shameful ways in which men attempt to "use" God are so numerous they defy cataloging. There are those who solicit His aid in prayer in order to satisfy their own desires and aims. There are those who use their membership in His Church to cloak their real nature with respectability. There are those who offer their money, pretending that they are giving for God's purposes instead of for their own greater glory.

But God is not to be used. During the life of our Lord there were occasions, it is true, when He did call upon a power and mystery which were beyond human capacity. The Gospel tells us that He healed, He changed water into wine, He multiplied a few loaves and fishes in order to feed a vast multitude.

But we also note that in each of these instances in which Jesus demonstrated God's indwelling power, He did not use it as a means of enhancing His own popularity. When the Christ used God's power, He always did so with the divine intent of showing forth the compassion of God. And this power was always used within the context of our Lord's message to mankind, the coming of God's Kingdom. It was not Jesus who used God, but God who used Jesus.

Most of us would be surprised to discover how often we attempt to use God. We usually are not conscious of the many subtle ways in which we try to bend God's will to serve our personal purposes. These futile efforts, usually, are the result of an erroneous concept of our relationship to God.

We were not created and placed on this earth to use God's power carelessly and capriciously. Rather, we are here to be used by God, to be His agents, to be the instruments through which His saving message of promise and salvation is proclaimed.

If we will but permit Him, God can use us to make this life a more certain way to prepare for the life He is preparing for us.

Take my life, and let it be consecrated, Lord, to thee;

Take my moments and my days, let them flow in ceaseless praise.

Take my hands, and let them move at the impulse of thy love;

Take my feet, and let them be swift and beautiful for thee.

Doubting God

The history of Israel is as much a chronicle of doubt as it is a story of deliverance. At every juncture we read of rebellious murmurs occasioned by fear and anxiety.

At the first, the Jews were afraid God's leadership would fail them. Then they feared that they had been delivered from Egypt, only to die in the desert. They doubted they would be permitted to settle the promised land because of the enemies who sought to destroy them. They were certain God had led them close to their goal of a permanent home, only to let them be carried into exile and extinction. Their continuing doubt perverted their understanding and appreciation of the ways of God.

During His lifetime our Lord was also surrounded by doubt. The Scribes doubted His authority; the Pharisees doubted His claims; the crowds doubted His power. Even His own disciple, Thomas, doubted Him.

There are two kinds of doubt to be noted in these examples from the Bible. The first, that of the Scribes and the Pharisees, is a total rejection of the revelation of God. For such doubt there is little hope. The second, the doubt of the crowds and that of Thomas, is of another kind. It represents, as the late Archbishop Temple pointed out, the strong urge to believe, repressed by "common sense" and a dread of disillusionment.

Modern man, in many respects, is a pragmatic person. He believes what he senses or what he can prove by logic. Yet reason alone cannot explain the mystery of life nor the basis of the laws of nature. Reason merely proposes a theory of their existence. At some point, man takes the unanswered questions and fills in the unknown gaps on faith.

To doubt is natural. To allow doubt to cast us into despair is to be faithless. The constructive use of doubt involves our recognition that we are not infallible, that we do not have all the answers.

But faith remembers that there was a deliverance, that there was an entrance into the promised land, that there was a return from exile. And we must remember that in Jesus, God's promises were fulfilled.

Reason has its limits; but the promises of God, once made, are kept. When we keep this ever before us, our doubt, our "common sense", our dread of disillusionment recedes.

DIRECT ACTION

No doubt some have seen symbols or buttons reading "Resistance and Renewal - April 4-6". To choose the religious holidays as a time for action in terms of new national directions and priorities is to endorse the moral tenets of our faith in the face of war, injustice and hatred. Consult the "April Action" calendar. For any persons interested in direct action to convey our mourning for the present age, as well as our future hope, please consult the rector.

ANNUAL PARISH MEETING

Notice is hereby given of the Annual Meeting of the Congregation Easter Monday, April 7, 8-9 P.M. for the purpose of hearing reports and electing Vestrymen.

A special guest will be our new neighbor, The Rev. John J. Lynch, pastor of St. James Roman Catholic Church at 38th and Chestnut who will give a brief address on "Ecumenism".

Carryover Vestrymen are Clyde deL. Ryals and Dan Wood (1970) and Ralph Thorn, Scarlett Emerson and Stewart Dalzell (1971). Otherwise all terms expire. Ineligible for re-election is Kirby Smith who has served a full three year term. Richard Weiss will be moving away and Dorie Holmes does not wish to run.

Eligible for re-election are Claude Gilkyson, Parish Treasurer, Harold Bright, Blanche Summers and Cathie Russell who have been nominated.

In addition the Vestry has nominated John Morgan William Riley and Carol Moore.

A description is in a Parish Letter now in the mails.

FLOWERS

Easter thanksgivings and memorials should be in the hands of Miss Alice Pancoast, or the office, Ev 6-1748, by Tuesday Noon at the latest.

VESTRY NOMINATIONS

Any further nominations for vacancies on the Vestry may be submitted to the Secretary of the Vestry, Doris Holmes, prior to the meeting.

LENT

On the rough and rugged tree of the cross Christ bore the ugliness and torture of our griefs and sins. Calvary was a place of profanity, blood, and tears. At this crossroads of the world our Savior had the sharp thorns pressed on His head and had to bear as well the symbolic thorns of derision and rejection. From the darkness of death and grief, however, we see the light of the promised resurrection, and we take hope.

AN ECUMENICAL OPPORTUNITY

The Bulletin Board tells of six workshops in preparation for a Roman Catholic sponsored workshop on Christian Unity here in Philadelphia in June. We may have five delegates and participate in the workshops beginning next Monday. If you are interested, please see the Rector.

Peace

"You're looking just great!"

This conventional greeting, which we use and hear frequently, may be suitable for most encounters and may even be an accurate way to greet a friend who has just returned from a vacation. It is hardly appropriate, however, to say to some one at the funeral of a loved one, nor would it be accurate if said to someone involved in an automobile accident.

And so it was with our Lord's greeting to His apostles after His resurrection. "Peace", He said to them. This was a greeting that could be heard thousands of times a day on the streets of Jerusalem. At this particular moment, when the apostles were frightened, disillusioned and hurt, when their hopes were dashed and they even feared for their lives, its use by our Lord must have seemed inappropriate.

Yet peace was precisely what the apostles needed most at that moment. The peace our Lord offered was not a promise that their troubles were over, nor was it an assurance that the crucifixion was just a bad dream. The peace which Christ brought to them was a means by which life would make sense, not an escape from the realities of life.

The peace Christ gave to His apostles, and the peace He gives to us, is based primarily on the victory over sin and death which comes through His resurrection. We have died with Him in baptism, and the new life we have received gives us a share in His triumph.

The events of our lives that would destroy our peace are real enough. The pain and sin and fear are not to be denied. Yet we know, too, that these cannot separate us from the love of Christ. It is from this conviction that our peace derives.

"Peace!" The word from the lips of Christ has meaning for us today, if we will but hear Him. Those who live in Christ are given a sense of purpose which gives meaning to suffering. Peace can be seen, therefore, as a stability which enables us to endure suffering, knowing that the victory has been won.

Finally, the peace of Christ is the source of peace for those who are separated by human divisions. "He is our peace", says St. Paul, and those who share His life are brought together by their sharing with each other as well as with Him.

COVER: The five crosses are symbolic of the wounds of Christ. The lily is a symbol of His resurrection.

Christian Symbolism

Few surviving examples of Christian art can be dated earlier than the third century. The Old Testament injunction against "graven images" was too strong to permit elaborate artistic expression. The first Christian artist worked by the flickering light of an oil lamp in the dark, eerie passages of the catacombs, to identify the graves of the dead with strange marks representing the faith by which their occupants had lived. The times were as dark as the underground passages in which he worked. It was dangerous in those days to be a Christian. Thus, these first artistic attempts were purposely obscure to all but those within the fellowship.

The art of those early Christians was more language than art, a kind of hieroglyphic of sign and symbol that recalled the great tenets of the Faith. A ship tossed on the waves was an emblem of the Church undaunted in perilous trial. A basket of bread and a bunch of grapes were evidence of the Eucharist by which they were fed. An anchor was a reminder of the sureness of their faith. The fish, derived from a cryptic play on Greek words, was a sign of their ever-present Saviour.

This was a language of faith, written by the faithful for the faithful. And although this language was born in the dark caverns where lay the bodies of martyrs and where the persecuted took refuge, it was a language untainted by revenge, despair, or fear. It spoke, rather, of the power of God's Holy Spirit through the figure of a dove, of life through the green leaf, of victory in the palm branch, of love pouring forth from the Lamb, and joy through peacocks, dolphins and flowers.

It was a language so simple and direct that it sent the faithful forth boldly into a hostile world.

As the Church emerged into a world of acceptance, the secret sign and the obscure symbol gave way to the picture and sculpture. Art, for better or worse, reflects its times. Through the centuries such representational art has served, sometimes well and sometimes poorly, its own generation.

It is significant that our own age has seen a revival of the primitive sign and symbol, for these once again seem to serve their ancient purpose. Not only do their simplicity and directness lend themselves to the modern idiom, but their language speaks afresh to this generation of Christians.

Our times are perilous. The Church seems again to be tossed on a stormy sea. The world grows more hostile and increasingly pagan. We face our own peculiar persecutions. We struggle to witness to an age of skeptics.

The language of the sign and symbol speaks not to the world but uniquely to us. It tells of the certainty of our faith, of the indestructibility of the Church, of the power of God in our midst, of the joy and hope and victory in Christ. It directs us to go fearlessly into the world.

RENOVATIONS

During 1968 plans were formulated, and some funds set aside by the Vestry for the relocation of the choir and console and the provision of a central altar. Our contractor, John R. Wellborn, has begun work this past week on the necessary carpentry work. A frontal for the new altar and other accessories are being designed under the eye of Clyde Ryals and Fran Scott. It will be some weeks before it is completed.

Church Drop-Outs

A generation ago, when the advantages of an education were accepted and unquestioned, only those who had to start working at an early age dropped out of school, and this they did reluctantly. Today, the term "drop-out" has become almost synonymous with failure.

The sorry army of school dropouts roaming our streets is the measure of our schools' failure to get through to thousands of young minds. It may also be the measure of our society's failure to make evident the advantages of an education.

But whatever the reason may be, it is for the drop-out himself that the failure is the most devastating. His lack of an education can, and usually does, affect his whole life, as well as the life of the community in which he lives.

It is for this reason that the schools, the government and all thoughtful people are making every effort to lure back present drop-outs and prevent those of the future. In this process the schools, in particular, are undergoing some painful self-examination.

The Church, unlike the schools, has had long acquaintance with the problem of drop-outs. Even in the time of our Lord, not all who heard Him stayed to become His followers. The Church is like the schools, however, in recognizing that her drop-outs are the measure of her failure, her failure to get through to her lapsed and lukewarm members with the message of Jesus Christ.

And this failure rests squarely on our shoulders for we, her members, are the Church. Somehow we have failed to make evident the faith we would profess. Somehow we have dimmed or distorted or garbled the message. Like the schools, our failure demands that we undertake some self-examination--however painful it may be.

Have we been so busy maintaining the machinery of the Church that we have overlooked the people the Church was created to serve? Has our original enthusiasm, which may have turned to complacency over the years, now crystalized into a smugness which repels, or, even worse, into a possessiveness which rejects?

Whatever the reason, it is for the drop-out himself that the failure is the most devastating, for it is a failure which truly will affect his life, both now and forevermore. It is for this reason that as Christians our efforts to reach the drop-out must be never-ending. We need only to recall the parable of the lost sheep to know how far we should go to reach today's Church drop-outs.

..... go after that which is lost

The Conscience of the World

The Holy Spirit has been identified in many ways, among them as "the Paraclete", from the Greek word meaning "counselor", one who stands beside us to support us in difficulty. He is also known as our advocate and our protector. Jesus tells, in fact, that when the Spirit comes into the world, "...he will convince the world of sin and of righteousness and of judgment." (St. John 16:8, RSV)

Our Lord assures us that God the Holy Spirit is not just our passive defender but the divine Person who shall confront the world with the true meaning of God's act in Christ.

Ideally, a counselor, an advocate, is one who stands before a court and battles for the truth on behalf of his client. Because we tend to see the work of the Holy Spirit as taking place almost exclusively within the Church itself, we are likely to forget His role in battling for truth before the authorities of the world. The Counselor, the Holy Spirit, will reveal the truth of the relationship of the world to Christ.

How is the world to be brought to account by the Holy Spirit? First, our Lord tells the disciples, the Spirit will convince the world of the reality of its sin in refusing to believe in Jesus and His saving work and by taking refuge, instead, in hypocritical self-righteousness.

Next, our Lord implies that those who believed Him to be unrighteous and the enemy of God's people will live to see Him raised to the right hand of the Father.

Finally, the very judgment which the world attempts to pass on Jesus will be turned against evil itself. Jesus, the condemned, will become the Lord and sovereign Judge of all mankind, overturning the power of wickedness which tried unsuccessfully to judge Him.

And so God the Holy Ghost is to become the conscience of the world as well as the champion of the faithful. Our Lord does not promise that the world (mankind and its sin and selfishness) will always listen or be impressed with the Spirit's insistent testimony. Yet the great truth remains: God has not abandoned the world, just as He has not abandoned the Church. The Holy Spirit still works to bring all men to the fact of their salvation.

Plain Talk

Again and again, when questioned by both His friends and His enemies, Jesus replied in parables and proverbs which were often puzzling to His hearers. More than once, when He had performed acts of divine power, He admonished His followers to tell no one of the event. He conducted the greater part of His ministry on earth under a self-imposed discipline in which He revealed His true being only as the occasion required.

But finally, as the Gospel for Rogation Sunday relates, the time came for Him to speak plainly about Himself and His relationship with the God of heaven and earth. As Jesus spoke to them, the disciples began to comprehend the Person whom they had been following for three difficult years.

We are more fortunate than were the disciples. All of the Gospel is spread before us to read and to study. The parables and the proverbs may still be puzzling, but we know who the Christ is and what He has done for us. God speaks very plainly to us through Jesus, revealing our natures, convicting us in our sinfulness, but always holding before us His promise of forgiveness and restoration.

This is the Good News. And if it is good news for us, then it is good news for all men. It is time for us to speak plainly as well.

Unfortunately, Episcopalians are reluctant evangelists. We find it difficult to talk about our religious convictions, to proclaim the fact of salvation, and to extend to others the invitation to eternal life the Gospel promises. We hesitate to tell our neighbor what life in Christ means to us personally, and how important our Church is in our daily lives. We rarely ask our neighbors to attend church with us, or to pray with us, or to share our deepest religious experiences.

As our Lord spoke plainly to His apostles of His nature and His mission, so He seeks to speak plainly to men and women of our day. If He is to speak, He must do so through His Church and the lips of those who are its members.

It is time for us to engage in plain talk.

The End of All Things

Even the most knowledgeable of Christians tend to think that the victorious Christ whom they hail at Easter and Ascensiontide has gone to heaven for an indefinite stay.

It is unfortunate that most of us are more aware of our Lord's absence in the flesh than we are able to perceive His continuing presence in Spirit in the Church. We tend to forget that we live now in "the last days" and that the time of our salvation has already begun.

The Christians to whom the author of the First Epistle of St. Peter was writing seemed also to have been in danger of forgetting this fact. They, too, needed to be reminded that "The end of all things is at hand." (I Peter 4:7)

No doubt those first-century Christians were bewildered when Jesus did not return within a few years, or even within a few decades, after His earthly life was over. However, more mature reflection on what the Church teaches about eschatology (the doctrine of the last things) can help us to avoid confusion and disappointment.

When the New Testament says that the end is near, it is not necessarily talking about the physical universe ceasing to exist at some date in the immediate future. The great fact to which all of the writers bear witness is that God has already begun His final deed in Christ for our salvation. His supreme act of love for us should change for all time the way in which we live. Now we can know God as He has revealed Himself to us in Jesus. The finality of the revelation of God in Christ has brought "the end", the goal of creation, into our life.

And so, though we are not first-century but twentieth-century men, we must live with the sense that Jesus is the Christ whose Kingdom has begun. We are called, therefore, to be "...sober, and watch unto prayer. And above all things have fervent charity..." for this is the appropriate way to live in God's New Age.

The Heavenly Vision

All of us can remember from childhood how we wondered, "What is God like?" Perhaps we first thought of God as an old man who lived in the sky, only to be told by a parent or a Sunday School teacher that God was Spirit and present everywhere.

Next we learned how Jesus revealed God's love to us, and how He promised that God's Holy Spirit would be with us always. At each step our knowledge grew, and yet the mystery remained. The more we learn about God, the more we yearn to know.

St. John, the author of the Book of Revelation, was given an extraordinary insight into heavenly reality while he was exiled on the island of Patmos in the Aegean Sea. As we read the details of his incredible dream, we may wonder what some of the strange and striking elements of his vision mean. Yet, even in our bewilderment, we get a sense of the awesome quality of the Seer's encounter with Heaven. Here is a man who has met God in a way that few have ever done. Here is a man who, with Isaiah and Ezekiel, has beheld, in spirit, the Almighty in His heavenly court and has heard the angelic chant of solemn praise before the throne of glory.

Of course, even this exalted vision falls far short of exhausting the mystery of the Godhead. It cannot quiet our questions about God. Yet the central truth of this vision is eternally valid: man and all of creation are destined to give God perpetual praise and thanksgiving. Now, as then, we are made to join in the heavenly chorus of joy, saying "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, honor, and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are, and were created." (Rev. 4:11)

Only an answering love can truly know Him who is love, for the mystery of God is ultimately the mystery of love. That is the beauty of the heavenly vision and that is the goal of our quest.

Not an Easy Role

We are reminded daily that we live in a time of change. Some of these changes are quiet and gradual, but it seems to many of us that more and more often we are being caught up in violent, radical, sudden changes which confuse, anger or frighten us.

Many Christians look to the Church for stability and security in the midst of this frightening confusion. They see the Church as the guardian of an unchanging faith, as the teacher of an unchanging morality, as the one permanent institution in a world in which permanence seems to have disappeared.

Other Christians, however, see the Church as an agent of change, as a force which can be used by men of good will to bring about radical changes in society. These Christians criticize the Church for being too conservative, too timid, too self-protective. Both groups are right—and wrong.

The Church is certainly to be faithful to its trust by proclaiming, in its integrity, the Faith once delivered to the saints. It is to continue to provide men and women with such moral guidance as will enable them to act freely and responsibly in their lives. But in all of this the Church is not intended to insulate us against the realities of the 20th century. It is to serve us as a secure point from which we can dare to take chances.

Similarly, the Church is to serve the world by changing the world, by seeking always to conform the life of its members in the world to the demands of the Kingdom of God. But it is not just another pressure group; it is not free to deny its calling merely to accomplish an immediate task.

The Church's role in the modern world is not an easy one. The functions of the Church go on, however, and so we must seek to serve God faithfully and bravely, without too much regard for our own pride or fear. We must reach out lovingly to mankind in the name of Christ, not promising freedom from change but only freedom in God.

"Send, we beseech thee, Almighty God, thy Holy Spirit into our hearts, that he may direct and rule us according to thy will, comfort us in all our afflictions, defend us from all error, and lead us into all truth; through Jesus Christ our Lord, who with thee and the same Holy Spirit liveth and reignth, one God, world with end. Amen"

COVER: One of the earliest Christian symbols: a ship, symbol of the Church combined with the fish, symbol of Christ.

The Law of Love

Many people think that Christianity is simply the Golden Rule in action. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you" expresses for them all there is in the Christian life.

Common usage has exchanged the pure gold of this ancient ethical precept for the fool's gold of the modern principle of "I'll scratch your back, and then you'll scratch mine."

This modern interpretation of the Golden Rule works fine as long as those "others" mentioned in it live up to their part. A bargain is made and a return is expected. When the "others" let us down, however, we feel no obligation to carry through. Often the return is not forthcoming, and we find ourselves saying:

"After all I've done for you!" or "I'll wait a long time before I ever do anything for him again."

When the Golden Rule is lifted out of the framework of our Lord's teaching and is made the beginning and end of all religion, the law of neighborly behavior becomes one of selfishness. Taken out of the context of the Gospel, the Golden Rule can be interpreted to demand nothing more than enlightened self-interest. Within the Gospel it is seen to be far more than a minimal rule of conduct, for it demands love from those who would follow it.

Here, it is not a bargain. Here, it expects no return. Here, we follow the example of Jesus' Love, and do to others as we would have them do to us if we were in their place. In their sorrow, we comfort them; in their joy, we rejoice; in their want, we help provide for them; in their ignorance, we help them to understand. When we do this we are saying, not "I'll scratch your back and then you'll scratch mine," but "I'll scratch your back if it itches."

The world's interpretation of the Golden Rule is rather easy to follow: we can usually count on a return of our investment of good will and kind acts. Even when we know the full Christian implications of the principle, we still, being children of our age, unconsciously hope for some return on our investment. The least we expect is the return of recognition or gratitude. Thus of our own efforts we cannot help but fall short of following the Rule.

As Christians, therefore, we admit our sins and weakness. We turn to Him who spoke these words and seek His help. Only with that help can we fulfill the Golden Rule, a rule which is not merely an ethical principle but the day-by-day application, among men, of the Law of Love.

Coffee Hour will continue to follow up on both the 8 A.M. and 10:30 A.M. Sunday Liturgy and a Nursery will be maintained in the Parish House, 2nd floor.

The Rev. John F. Hardwick, Bishop's staff for Christian Education, will preach and celebrate June 29 and the Rev. David M. Gracie will preach and celebrate July 6 through August 3.

Dr. Evans will vacation in August and Bill Riley will be organist in his place for the Sundays in August and September 7.

Excuses, Excuses, Excuses

"The Kingdom of heaven may be compared to..." With these words our Lord introduces many of His parables, those amazing stories by which He used earthly events to open our eyes to the ways of heaven.

The story of the great supper and the excuses of those who did not want to attend must surely ring true in our ears. We all know what it is both to make and hear excuses. Sometimes the excuse has the ring of validity, "I cannot have dinner with you because I'll be out of town." Other times it is obviously contrived and the implication is clear--"You are not interesting enough or important enough for me to take my time to join you."

God knows the secrets of our hearts as we respond to or ignore his invitation. Those who are ill, physically or emotionally, may not be capable of responding to Him in a particular way. But the story of the great supper makes it clear that many of our excuses are unworthy and selfish. Time and again, we say to God, as we say to each other on occasion: "You are not that important to me."

The parable of the great supper sets forth two classes of excuses. The first has to do with economics. Our possessions control our affections, and God and His Kingdom come in second best. The second category has to do with personal relationship: my loves, or my hates, are too precious to me to give them up for God.

The story, then, poses a simple question that is difficult to answer. What do we really want? What is really important to us?

We live in a material world with human responsibilities and with human desires. These matters demand our attention and attachment, yet there comes a time when a greater good takes precedence, and we are required to sacrifice our material concerns in response to a divine summons.

This does not necessarily mean we must starve, go naked or become hermits in order to accept the summons of our Lord. On the contrary, in His Sermon on the Mount, He promises that God will care for the needs of those who will abandon their excuses in a search for the Kingdom of God and His righteousness.

It is, in fact, those who do follow the Christ who will live full and amply rewarding earthly lives.

"All these things," He says, "will be added unto you."

"Rejoice with me"

Jesus had some strange friends. At least the Pharisees and other religious leaders thought so.

Our Lord sought out people as individuals. He dealt with them as they were. Although sometimes they were wealthy and respectable, like Joseph of Arimathea, just as often they were poorly dressed, ill-mannered and illiterate. Some of them appeared lazy and indifferent. Some, like Simon the Zealot, were trouble-makers and revolutionaries.

The Pharisees were outraged. No religious leader should be seen with such people, even in public, and certainly not in the intimate relationship of a meal.

"This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them," they said.

Jesus answered His critics with the parables of the lost sheep and the lost coin. A shepherd cared so much about the one missing sheep that he went to great lengths to find it. When he found it and returned home, he celebrated with his friends. Similarly, a woman who lost a coin turned the house upside down to find it. She, too, invited her friends to celebrate the occasion. "Likewise," said our Lord, "...there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

These are two brief parables that speak eloquently of God's love. No matter how lost we may be, He never ceases to search us out. Nor does He wait for us to return penitently to the fold. Through the power of the Holy Spirit He reaches out to each of us wherever we are, whoever we are. As the psalmist said, "If I climb up into heaven, thou art there; if I go down to hell, thou art there also."

We find this kind of love difficult to understand when we apply it to our daily lives. Like the Pharisees, we may disapprove of the Church's being associated with certain individuals. We may be shocked that the rector is seen on the street with "all sorts and conditions of men." We may question if such activity is good for the "image" of the parish.

As Christians, God calls us to reach out to other people as human beings first. We may disagree with them or disapprove of their actions, but first we have to love them. Instead of avoiding the man in the next pew, let us rejoice that God's love is greater than our differences. Let us join the friends of the shepherd and of the housewife to celebrate God's never-failing love which searches out and finds all men.

St. Peter

"Lord, I am ready to go with thee, both into prison, and to death."

St. Peter made this promise to our Lord on the eve of the first Good Friday. Jesus, knowing the impetuosity of Simon, son of Jonah, replied, "I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before thou shalt deny that thou knowest me."

We soon learn the significance of these remarks. The gospel tells us that Jesus went to pray at the Mount of Olives. He was apprehended by the chief priests and elders, and taken to the home of the high priest. "And Peter", the gospel goes on to record, "followed afar off."

We are told that as the crowd kept warm around a fire in the courtyard, one of the serving maids recognized Peter and said, "This man was also with Him," and that Peter denied the charge.

A little later he was recognized again, and again Peter refused to admit who he really was. Finally, a third member of the crowd said, "This fellow also was with Him: for he is a Galilean."

Peter denied this third accusation, and "immediately while he yet spake, the cock crew. And the Lord turned and looked upon Peter, and Peter remembered the word of the Lord...and went out, and wept bitterly."

If we are honest, we can see ourselves in Peter. How often when a situation arises that requires real courage and integrity do we artfully minimize or rationalize our deepest convictions. Even by our silence, we say with Peter, "I know him not."

As Christian people, we realize that such hypocritical attitudes will help neither us nor our influence as Christians in the world. Fortunately, God knows better than we that the human being is a complex creature, full of many apparent contradictions. Only with His help can we mature to some measure of what we ought to be.

Look again at Peter. We share not only his weakness but his potential strength. Of the original Twelve, Peter was the apostle; he was the man in whom Christ saw those traits of character which grace could make into an unshakeable foundation of faith. He was the disciple on whom Christ bestowed the name Petros, "Rock". After the Resurrection, Peter was the apostle to whom our Lord entrusted much pastoral leadership, saying "Feed my sheep."

We also see in this rough-hewn fisherman what God can build in each one of us. Our qualities of leadership may not be those of the apostle, but, if we honestly struggle to "be ourselves" in Christ, God will be able to make up the difference.

Fishers of Men

It is one thing to allege, in a tentative but hopeful fashion, that occasional church attendance and conformity in morals tend to produce in most people a temporary sense of well-being.

It is something else for the Church to proclaim the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Good News that God has acted and continues to act in this world in order that He may reconcile sinful and foolish man to Himself.

This is what the Church is commanded to proclaim, and it is this we so often fail to do. This proclaiming of the Gospel involves the Church, clergy and laity alike.

It is the vocation of the clergy to proclaim the living, effective, holy Word of God to the holy people of God, the Church, within the framework of the liturgy. The reading of the Scriptures and the preaching of sermons are not incidental to the life of the Church: with the Sacraments, they are a means by which the power of God comes anew into the community of the Faithful. The Word runs among us, judging, reconciling, forgiving, sending us forth.

But if the proclamation of the Gospel stops at the doors of the parish church, the Church's work is only half done. It is the particular vocation of the laymen to carry its life and light into the kitchen and the factory and the office and the ball-park.

The Gospel is not merely the promise of emotional uplift to the participants in public worship. The Good News cannot be contained in an ecclesiastical compartment. It must reach out and encompass the totality of human existence. The Good News of Jesus Christ must enliven and enlighten our homes, our jobs, our world.

Clergy and laity together, with God's grace and power, can bring to God's beloved world the Good News which that world needs so desperately to hear.

Dead or Alive

Death is a fact. Every man and woman, every living creature in the world, comes eventually to the moment of death. As far as we know, the inevitability of death causes no anxiety to trees or turtles or poodles; only man seems to be aware of death as a sure part of his future, and only man is afraid of death.

Christians do not attempt to deny or to disguise the fact of death. Indeed, we assert that death is so much a part of human existence that the Son of God, when He took human nature upon Himself, could no more escape death than can any of us. Jesus was afraid of death, as His prayer in Gethsemane certainly reveals. Jesus died --- nothing should be allowed to hide that fact from us --- and dying on a cross is not essentially different from dying in a hospital bed or in an automobile accident.

Christians insist, however, that death is not the whole story. When Jesus died, sharing the experience of all men, the Father acted to make death a beginning rather than an ending. He gave our Lord not only a new life but a new kind of life. It is a life that is not subject to physical death, for it is a life that does not derive from the physical world but from the Kingdom of God.

Christians are people who are already dead. "Know ye not," writes St. Paul to the Christians in Rome, "that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?" In baptism we choose to die with Christ, to die often reluctantly and fearfully to self and to the world. Such dying, quite as much as in the case of our physical dying, is painful and frightening. But St. Paul insists that those who are willing to align themselves with Jesus' dying in baptism will receive the new life which the Father gave Jesus in the Resurrection.

Thus Christians are also people who are already risen from the dead. We have already begun to share in the life of Christ, in the life of the Kingdom. Love, forgiveness, joy, righteousness, hope....all of these are signs of the Kingdom in our lives.

We may still be anxious when we think of physical death, but we need not be afraid of dying. We are dead already. We are alive in Christ, and His victory over death is already ours.

Hosea

What distinguishes a prophet from an ordinary person is the prophet's ability to see in everyday events a revelation of the will of God. To be a prophet is to be able to discern the future in the present, not by the power of clairvoyance but by the vision of faith. As a Scottish lad put it, "A prophet is a man that gets to ken what God's thinking."

To a prophet, even personal sorrow and family tragedy can be a source of revelation. Thus Hosea, who lived 800 years before Christ, found in his own unhappy domestic experience evidence of the light of God's judgment and mercy for Israel.

Hosea's wife Gomer had been a wayward woman before he married her. She proved to be an unfaithful wife and left him. Later, when he found her unwanted, unattractive, and being offered for sale in the slave market, his love for her was so great that he raised enough money to buy her back and tried lovingly to care for her once again.

Hosea, a townsman, lived in a time when Israel seemed to be strong and prosperous. Hosea knew, however, that all was not well. Israel had been unfaithful to God, and her people had become increasingly idolatrous. And the prophet saw his relationship with his wife as being vividly symbolic of God's love for His people. Out of his own experience as a husband, Hosea realized the depth of God's loving concern for unfaithful Israel.

And so, with bitter poignancy, Hosea pictured God seeking after Israel as he had sought for Gomer. In the sorrow of his heart he heard God cry out, "What shall I do with you, O Ephraim?.....your love is like the morning cloud, like the dew that goes early away."

Hosea's message, however, was not entirely one of despair, for he also heard the voice of God saying, "Return, O Israel, to the Lord your God..." and promising, "...I will heal their faithlessness; I will love them freely, for my anger has turned from them."

Cremation

In the canon law of the Episcopal Church there is nothing that prescribes the manner of burial. The individual (or his heirs) must make the decision as to whether the body will be cremated or interred in the traditional manner. The Episcopal Church does assume that in the case of cremation the ashes will be disposed of in a reverent manner in a suitable location.

There are those who fear that the practice of cremation is irreverent or that it might be in conflict with the Church's belief in the resurrection of the body. Others maintain that cremation goes against Christian tradition in that it shows contempt for the body.

Anthropologists remind us that cremation is a burial custom of great antiquity in many different cultures. Moreover, there is general agreement that burning is a reverent method of disposal, as evidenced by the fact that we burn old altar linens and vestments when they can no longer be used.

There is nothing in cremation that denies the Christian doctrine of the resurrection of the body. St. Paul, in the first letter to the Church in Corinth, likens the resurrection of the body to the seed we plant in the ground. Just as we plant a grain of wheat and take care to insure its future, so we are concerned about our lives now in order that we will realize our potential in the life of the world to come.

Just as the grain of wheat does not look like the future plant, so we cannot expect our spiritual bodies to be identical to our mortal bodies.

St. Paul wrote..."flesh and blood can never possess the kingdom of God, and the perishable cannot possess immortality." (I Cor. 15:50, NEB) God gives us one kind of body for this life, another for eternity.

We treat the dead body with reverence because it was a marvellous gift of God, and it still bears the likeness of the deceased. However, the departed are still in God's care, even though they have outgrown their mortal bodies. God surely does not depend on their "remains" to fashion "the spiritual body."

Whatever method of burial is preferred, the important question is whether we have lived this life in such a way that we can know, and love, the Kingdom of God in the future life to which we are raised.

COVER: The phoenix was a mythical bird which, according to legend, burst into flame at death and rose from the ashes to live again. It was used by early Christians as a resurrection symbol.

What Is Prayer?

Christian prayer is neither complicated nor difficult. Christian prayer is simply recognizing the presence of God, lifting up our hearts and minds to Him, and listening to Him. If our prayers seem halting and inadequate, we need not despair; by virtue of our baptism we speak to God in Christ, through Christ and with Christ. The Christian who is really trying to pray speaks, in our Lord, to the Father in a perfect way, regardless of his stumblings, wandering thoughts and lack of concentration. Christ continues to pray to the Father in and through His Church, and in His perfect prayer the prayers of all Christian people, both corporate and individual, are perfected.

This is not to say that this prayer is not our prayer, for our role in prayer is real, reflecting our lives, our interests and our concerns. Christ allows us to channel His love and to express it in various ways. The first way is adoration, by which the Christian gives to God that honor and homage which is His due.

Recognizing, however dimly, the glory of God, we are led to contrition or sorrow for our sin. Contrition does not necessarily involve our feelings; it does involve a recognition that we have wilfully turned from God and a resolution to turn back to Him again.

Having faced the reality of our sin, we turn naturally to thanksgiving. Nicely turned phrases are not needed; what is required is simply the outpouring of a grateful heart to God for all the benefits He has given us.

Such gratitude quite properly leads us to intercession and petition, whereby we pray for the needs of others and for our own needs in the confidence that our Heavenly Father will continue to care for us.

Christian prayer need not be either complicated or lengthy. We can lift our hearts and minds to Him simply by saying "My God, I thank you," or "Father, help Charles." By such "arrow prayers" we can continually speak through Christ to the Father who loves us and whom we are seeking to love.

Where Judgment Begins

When Jesus cleansed the temple of those who were making a personal profit from piety, He was acting in the best tradition of the Old Testament prophets. St. Luke summarizes His action succinctly when he writes: "And he went into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold therein and them that bought; saying unto them, It is written, my house is the house of prayer: but ye have made it a den of thieves."

With these words of Isaiah and Jeremiah on His lips, our Lord assaulted the authority of those who would allow such a degradation of His Father's house to take place. It was for this and for similar challenges, St. Luke adds, that "the chief priests and the principal men of the people sought to destroy him."

Often it is those who are of the household of God who find it the hardest to understand why judgment must begin there. And yet, again and again, human sin has brought our Lord into His sanctuary in righteous indignation. Repeatedly, as angry prophets have risen up in the midst of the Church to call men to judgment, it has been the Spirit of the indignant Christ which has inspired them. Few of these prophets have received less than their share of scorn and resentment, for the moral myopia of the devout can be most tragically blind to the corruption of faith itself.

Today there are angry voices to be heard thundering in the House of God. Not all of them, to be sure, are inspired by the Holy Spirit. Some may be self-seeking, others embittered, and some merely mistaken. But we can be certain that our Lord is speaking, too, crying out against our complacency in the face of exploitation and our complicity--however unwitting--with injustice.

We do well to listen carefully to these voices of judgment. We do better still to repent and obey our Lord coming once again in the prophetic word to cleanse His temple and purify His household.

The Prophetic Pulpit

Clergy of every religious tradition are increasingly in trouble with their people. Let a sermon be preached on racial injustice or peace or other matters of public concern, and it is certain that someone in the pew will be irritated.

Such irritation is neither new nor surprising. Amos was scarcely popular in the palaces of Israel. Herodias was infuriated by John the Baptist's remarks about her royal marital status. More recently, many of those who heard the preaching of the great evangelical abolitionists in the 1850's undoubtedly wished that those clergyman would limit themselves to "spiritual" matters.

It must be said, however, that sometimes protests from the pew are justified. Clergy are human beings, and occasionally a man who is seeking to exercise a prophetic ministry is carried away by his zeal or is betrayed by his lack of information. Every preacher needs to be reminded that the prophetic ministry is never content to proclaim God's judgment of sin without going on to speak of God's willingness to forgive the penitent sinner. The call to righteousness and repentance cannot be limited to scolding. It must always speak of God's love and mercy.

Those who occupy the pew, like those in the pulpit, need to remember that Christian doctrine and morality cannot be isolated in our lives. We cannot compartmentalize them. They permeate and mold every aspect of our existence.

We cannot speak, for instance, of Christ's taking our humanity upon Himself, without being willing to look at the implications of that statement for our lives--our ordinary lives as we lead them day by day. The Incarnation is the total involvement of God in the world and with us, as voters, or parents, or employees. We share our common humanity with Jesus and with communists, with black and white, with saints and sinners.

It is the prophetic function of the pulpit to examine the implications of the Faith in our daily lives. This needs to be done lovingly and humbly, yet fearlessly, recognizing that all are judged, including the prophet, just as all are loved.

The Church needs the voice of the prophet, now as always.

Renewal

It all started with Vatican II. Or did it? It is true that the term, "renewal" became popular after the great council of the Roman Catholic Church that was convened by Pope John. He said it was time to open the windows and let in some fresh air.

The renewal of the Church, in fact, is as old as the gift of the Holy Spirit on that first Pentecost. "Renewal" means restoration and regeneration. It assumes self-examination and humility. For centuries the Church has prayed that "we being regenerate, and made thy children by adoption and grace, may daily be renewed by thy Holy Spirit.." (The Collect for Christmas Day.)

In our day the renewal of the Church is being sought because Christians of all traditions recognize the judgment of God in the lessening of the Church's witness and effectiveness in society. The Church, especially as represented by the clergy, is still honored officially. In some areas it may play an important role in the life of the community. However, even churchmen recognize that the Church has fallen far short of the mission given it by our Lord. We have often exclusively perpetuated our own structures. We have seemed hypocritical and unfeeling in a world that cries out for compassion and understanding. We have been preoccupied too often with answers to questions that society is not asking.

Our failure to speak to contemporary society calls us to proclaim the Faith in words and concepts which make sense to men and women of our day. Our worship cannot be simply an exercise in antiquarianism but must be a means by which our society may offer its imperfect worship in union with the perfect sacrifice of Christ.

The Church must learn anew the meaning of its Faith for the problems and decisions of our day, never being content to give easy answers to problems of the past. We must seek to lead men and women toward the Kingdom and its righteousness.

The renewal of the Church does not imply that all that has gone before is without value. It does mean that, as we face honestly our problems and accomplishments, the Holy Spirit will guide us in new and exciting directions to do the work God calls us to do.

As we are renewed as individuals, so will the Church gain new strength.

"Come Holy Spirit, come..."

1969 SUMMER CALENDAR

Beginning June 15th the Weekday schedule will be as follows: There will be weekday celebrations of the Eucharist on Wednesdays at 9:30 P.M. and Saturdays at 8:30 A.M. only, except for Friday, July 4th at 10:00 A.M.

Father Wilson (Ev 6 - 6962) will be in charge while he is in town (until June 25 and after August 5). Robert Gallagher will be available to co-ordinate the supplying clergy from June 25 to August 5. He can be reached at the office (Ev 6 - 3916) or at the Scotts' house, Sh 7 - 3117.

There will be a day care program - 1 to 5 P.M. June 23 - August 15. In charge will be Laura Swartz.

The Resistance has open dinner meetings Mondays 6 to 8 P.M. in the Parish House. Other meetings and events will be announced at services.

Coffee Hour will continue to follow up on both the 8 A.M. and 10:30 A.M. Sunday Liturgy and a Nursery will be maintained in the Parish House, 2nd floor.

The Rev. John F. Hardwick, Bishop's staff for Christian Education, will preach and celebrate June 29 and the Rev. David M. Gracie will preach and celebrate July 6 through August 3.

Dr. Evans will vacation in August and Bill Riley will be organist in his place for the Sundays in August and September 7.

A Different Standard

Everyone who has ever been a member of the vestry, the chairman of a parish committee, or a worker in the annual canvass knows how distressing a quarrel over leadership can be to an organization. So many fine projects, worthy goals, and noble ambitions have failed to be achieved because infighting and jealousy have drained off much of a group's energy, leaving little for the task at hand.

Too often our Lord's would-be disciples are still found dissipating their energies in self-serving disputes, much like the incident St. Luke described in the 22nd chapter of his gospel account. The evangelist tells us, "And there was a strife among them, which of them would be accounted the greatest."

It would be well in our moments of frustration and hostility to remember what our Lord said to those of His own company who tried to exalt themselves over their brothers: "... but he that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve."

To accept this radically different concept of authority requires nothing less than a complete change of heart. Only those who know themselves to be forgiven sinners, men and women saved by the grace of God and not by their own worth, can begin to imitate the servant Christ, He who compels obedience by His own loving example of obedience to the Father.

We, like Jesus' first followers, remain to be truly converted, for we still prefer to measure ourselves by the world's standards rather than by God's grace. Despite our failings, however, our Lord holds out hope to all who would strive to walk in the way of the Servant.

Our reward will not be earthly honor. Instead it will be eternal fellowship with Him in God's Kingdom, the priceless opportunity to share in the feast of the divine love with all those apostles and saints who learned to follow Him in humility and in charity.

The Fruit of the Spirit

Too often Christian education has consisted only of Bible stories and moral advice. This is not to suggest that the history of the people of God is unimportant or that moral teaching may not be of great value. But abstract and theoretical learning is not sufficient in itself, for, as St. James says "thou believest in one God; thou doest well; the devils also believe..."

The function of Christian education, which we too often forget, is that of enabling God to change people's lives-now. The Epistle to the Galatians describes such a process as "the fruit of the Spirit."

It is the Holy Spirit, nothing less, who changes our lives. Church School courses, programs of adult education, all are merely exercises in futility and frustration unless they permit the Holy Spirit to bring forth His fruit in us. Only then can they become exciting and interesting and fulfilling experiences.

Christian education's techniques, involving course materials and teacher training and lesson plans, are important as tools to be placed at the disposal of the Spirit. We are obliged to take our responsibilities seriously and to do everything possible to use the resources available to us, but the techniques are not ends in themselves.

Part of the problem is that we are often upset by such external signs of the fruit of the Spirit as joy and love. A joyous class is not always a quiet or orderly class, nor does joy always tend to insure that a lesson plan will be fulfilled. A loving group does not always display that tidiness which we associate with a successful educational venture.

Yet love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance are the signs of the Holy Spirit at work in our lives. Our program of Christian education cannot guarantee that the lives of men and women and children will be changed. But at least we can recognize that the motions of the Holy Spirit are more important than our curriculum, and we can, with His help, try not to get in His way.

Faith and Works

St. Paul founded the churches in the Roman province of Galatia (now central Turkey) before 50 A.D. At first the Christian Gentiles in those churches joyously received the good news of their salvation in Christ and lived lives guided by the power of the Holy Spirit. But later, misguided opponents of St. Paul's teaching convinced them that in order to be true Christians they must first keep all the Jewish observances. These included circumcision.

When St. Paul heard about this interpretation of the Gospel, he was indignant. In his letter to the Galatians he wrote, "Circumcision is nothing; uncircumcision is nothing; the only thing that counts is a new creation!" (NEB, Gal. 6:15) Outward signs, religious observances, do not of themselves ensure one's salvation. Good works alone avail a man nothing, said Paul.

The secret of being a Christian, he wrote, is to become a new creature, a man of faith who adheres to the cross of Jesus Christ. It is not by works that we inherit eternal life with our Lord, but by an inner, invisible change wrought in us by God.

Paul does not belittle the visible signs, he merely says that they are not the measure of a man's salvation.

The problem of the relation between faith and good works was not solved by St. Paul's advice to the Galatians for we know there are still times when many of us seek to earn our salvation by being good, or by working hard.

Which matters most; to live a moral life or to believe in God? This question, being raised today by college students and theologians and ordinary Christian people, is not a new one. We need once again to heed St. Paul, remembering that salvation comes as a free gift from God.

Such salvation is not to be hidden from our fellows, however, and we should, in response to God's gift, be loving and honest and joyous people. What counts is that we keep the order straight.

God acts in Christ to bring us back to Himself. We are to respond as generously and as openly as possible, that God may be glorified in us before all men.

St. Matthew, Apostle and Evangelist

What makes a man like Matthew, a tax-collector, follow Jesus Christ?

From what we know of Matthew (or Levi, as he is sometimes called) it is difficult to explain his conversion. More likely than not, Matthew was a worldly man, a man who dealt with the public in ways that required an attitude of hardness and cynicism. In those days Jews who collaborated with the Romans, as did the tax-collectors, were despised both by their fellow-Jews and by the Romans.

Matthew's profession could be lucrative, depending on how efficient one was at wringing money out of his fellow countrymen. Why, indeed, would such a man answer our Lord's summons, "Follow Me?"

We may not know enough about St. Matthew to answer this question, but we do know a great deal about the one who called him to join the Apostolic band. The gospel writers were not interested in satisfying our curiosity about the inner motives of the men and women who followed the Christ. What they show us, instead, is the impact of Jesus upon those who encountered Him.

Those who thought of themselves as righteous were offended and scandalized by Jesus' unorthodox behaviour in eating with tax-collectors and sinners. On the other hand, those who realized that they were reprobates might see in Jesus' ways something of the forgiving love of God coming into their midst. Among those who responded to this love were men such as Matthew.

What Jesus could do for St. Matthew He can still do for all who will follow Him. Matthew, the tax-collector, was called to put aside the greed and covetousness that sickened his soul. What Jesus did with this life led the Church in later years to remember Matthew as an Apostle and an Evangelist.

In our day Christians sometimes wonder if the Church should attempt to evangelize certain nations or groups or classes of people. "They are too far gone," we say, or "they are not our kind," or "we've never had much luck with them." St. Matthew's life shows us that such exclusiveness is not proper. The Christ Who changed the life of a first century tax-collector can change the lives of all sorts and conditions of men. He calls us, His followers, to help Him.

"Therefore . . ."

The New Testament never tells us to be good so that we may make a good showing on Judgment Day and thus be allowed into the Kingdom of God. Eternal life is a gift from God, not a reward for good behavior.

Such statements are difficult for most 20th century Christians to accept. We have been so indoctrinated with the notion that God will give us what we "deserve," we have become so accustomed to thinking that a strengthening of our moral fiber is the answer to all our difficulties, that we are convinced our salvation depends on our ability to echo that commercial slogan, "We try harder."

The Epistle to the Ephesians presents a different picture. The first three chapters are a great hymn of praise to God Who has given us the free gift of life in Christ, a life which cuts across barriers of nationality and heritage to open to us the fullness of God's love.

Having done this, the Epistle continues in the fourth chapter, "Therefore...walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called..."

Our morality is to stem from our recognition that God has given us a new life in Christ. Our striving is to be a response to the generous love of God.

This idea in Ephesians did not originate in the New Testament. In Exodus, the Ten Commandments are introduced by an unspoken "therefore." "I am the Lord thy God, Who hath brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage," Therefore..."Thou shalt have none other Gods but Me."

In Holy Scripture morality is seen as a response by God's people to God's saving acts, as the gratitude of those who know that they have been redeemed, a gratitude which is expressed not only in words but in the living of their daily lives.

In our day we understand, even though we may not do much about them, the moral demands which are presented to us. But as long as we think of these demands as requiring us to prove our worth, we tend to feel guilty and frustrated. Moral behavior alone cannot save us, but it can express our grateful awareness of God's love.

"What Think Ye of Christ?"

The Pharisees thrived on debate. Our Lord often took advantage of this, not only by answering their questions but also by posing some of His own.

"...While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them, saying, What think ye of Christ? Whose son is He? They say unto Him, The son of David. He saith unto them, How then doth David in spirit call Him Lord, saying, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on My right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool? If David then call Him Lord, how is He his son? And no man was able to answer Him a word, neither durst any man from that day forth ask Him any more questions." (Matt. 22:41-46)

In other words, Jesus was trying to show the Pharisees that the true Messiah needed to have more than an impressive ancestral lineage. To be in the line of King David was an indication of an earthly monarchy but not a guarantee of the promised Messiah from heaven.

Such misconceptions about the Christ may seem to be academic, until we try to answer the same questions ourselves. "What think ye of Christ?"

To some He is little more than the figure on the Sunday School attendance chart surrounded by young children. For others, He is an inspiring and noble example, such as David, Socrates or Gandhi, but to them He is still not the Lord of all life.

Even those who call Him the true Messiah or Saviour tend to limit His influence. Some offer Him devotion only on Sunday mornings or at mid-week services, and during the rest of the week the moral authority of the Christ is forgotten. On the other hand, some may see formal worship as a luxury of the more leisurely by-gone days and seek to know Christ only in those whom they serve in the world.

If we believe that Jesus is the true Messiah, then all of life comes under His rule. Like the Pharisees, we may enjoy our theological and sociological discussions, but eventually we need to make a personal commitment to Him.

"What think ye of Christ?" is not a question that can be answered intellectually and theoretically. The answer involves offering "ourselves, our souls and bodies", not only at the altar but in the world.

"What think ye of Christ?"

The Nod to God

"O God, forasmuch as without Thee we are not able to please Thee; Mercifully grant that Thy Holy Spirit may in all things direct and rule our hearts; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

This Collect for the 19th Sunday after Trinity is a very familiar one. It is short and to the point. It announces our total reliance upon God, and it asks Him to be our constant guide. In addition, it is easy to memorize and therefore familiar. We hear it often. Whenever we attend a meeting of a civic organization, a luncheon group, or a guild or a service club, and an Episcopal priest is asked to give the invocation, more often than not, this will be the prayer we hear.

Its very familiarity, however, tends to cloud its significance. For too many of us, the prayer at the beginning of an assembly is merely something which lends a holy sanction to our discussions. Therefore, it is to be accomplished as quickly as possible. All too often, the prayer has been inserted into the agenda as somewhat of an afterthought. It is the "nod to God" before we get down to the really important matters at hand.

But before we become too critical of the casual deference we pay God on these occasions, we should recognize why these brief introductions to our meetings have become perfunctory. We tend to forget that God the Holy Spirit always plays a part in all our deliberations and activities. Our problem is that we do not take seriously the petitions we voice in our pre-meeting invocations. We have closed our minds and our hearts to His presence.

The next time the chairman, or the chaplain, opens a meeting with this, or any other invocation, we would be wise to take to heart the words that are spoken. They can make quite a difference in the outcome of the meeting.

Alcoholism

The General Convention of the Episcopal Church, a few years ago, referred to alcoholic beverages as "a gift of God." To some people this may seem shocking. Yet alcohol, like water or fire, is part of God's creation and, if used properly, its beneficial aspects can be enjoyed by most people.

But, like all of God's gifts to man, alcohol must be used properly. Like water or fire, alcohol can also destroy. Some people should not drink. They suffer from the disease known as alcoholism, the condition of those whose excessive drinking creates serious problems in the management of their lives. These people are usually unable, without outside help, to stop drinking permanently, even if they want to.

According to the National Clergy Conference on Alcoholism, there are at least 90 million men and women in the United States who drink alcoholic beverages. Of these at least six and a half million have enough of a problem with alcohol to be called alcoholics.

No economic, social or professional class of people is immune from alcoholism. It strikes clergymen as well as laymen, practicing churchmen as well as the lapsed, the rich, the poor, the farmer and the office worker.

Like all diseases, alcoholism is treatable, but unlike most diseases, it is not curable. It can only be arrested. There are many hospitals and other institutions (although never enough) that are able to provide medical, psychiatric and spiritual help for the alcoholic. The success of Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) as an on-going, supportive organization for "recovered" alcoholics is well known.

The greatest problem facing the alcoholic is to admit his condition and his need for help. Many try desperately to avoid the issue because they feel that being an alcoholic is an admission of weakness. These people are not usually helped when well-meaning friends urge abstinence by reminding them of their families and other responsibilities. Listening and caring are the best medicine most of us can offer.

An alcoholic is a person and will respond to help only when he is treated as a person. Equally important, an alcoholic is a child of God and will find sobriety only as he seeks help for the whole man--mind, body and spirit.

Many alcoholics return to normal living, stronger and more compassionate than they ever were before, able to share with others the fruits of their struggle.

Love Takes Chances

During His earthly ministry the help that Jesus extended to men and women was not based on their past virtue but upon their present need. The paralytic was not healed because he had demonstrated that he was a good or worthy person. The woman taken in adultery was not forgiven on the grounds that she had led an exemplary life for the past year. Rather, Jesus offered each of them forgiveness and healing because what each needed was forgiveness and healing.

We have no way of knowing what happened subsequently to these people. It is possible that all of those healed by Jesus—regardless of their faith and gratitude at the time of the healing and forgiveness—went on and sinned again, even as we have been forgiven and healed and then have sinned again. Despite this, however, Jesus' healing does not cease. His forgiveness is not withdrawn.

In the ministry which we exercise in the name of Christ, we are called to work in the same way. We are to love those who need loving, not just those who have shown that they will love us in return. We are to help those who need our help, not just those who have promised to be suitably grateful. We are to risk our energy and our money and our concern. There is no way to avoid such risk and yet be true to our Lord.

For most contemporary Americans, this risk is most clearly seen in our gifts and pledges of money to the Church. Such gifts may be misused by misguided vestries or other ecclesiastical bodies. Our money may help unworthy people, our resources may be wasted in poorly planned programs.

We should not ignore these possibilities, of course, and we should work together to make possible responsible stewardship of our resources. But as long as we are dealing with human beings like ourselves, the risk will never be removed. Love must continue to take chances, even with its money.

Such chance-taking opens up an important possibility. Jesus took the loaves and fishes offered by the boy and fed the crowds of hungry men and women. He may take our gifts and use them more effectively than we ever thought possible.

The Communion of Saints

The 20th century Christian, sad to say, would be embarrassed to apply the word "saint" to himself, nor is he likely to identify anyone else as such. Sainthood, he would say, is a state of life reserved for the very few, and the word saint would be spelled with a capital S, such as in Saint Peter, Saint Thomas, or Saint Jerome.

Yet these saints--the impetuous, Christ-denying Peter, the doubting Thomas, and the aloof, truculent Jerome--were hardly examples of perfection. Nevertheless, they were "called to be saints" (1 Cor. 1:2) just as we are. They, as we, could not expect conversion or baptism to be a guarantee of instant perfection.

St. Paul considered every person baptized into Christ Jesus as a saint. He used the term (meaning "holy one") constantly in referring to or addressing his fellow-Christians. For St. Paul, at least, it was natural that a person marvelously converted to Christ's Way was indeed a new creation, a saint.

We present-day saints are partners, through baptism, with multitudes of sinner-saints, both living and departed. The Apostles' Creed calls this fellowship the "Communion of Saints." We share a common Lord. We pray for each other, living and dead. We are bound together in the one Body of Christ, supporting each other and growing in Him.

As saints we seek a perfection not of our own making.

O blest communion, fellowship divine!
We feebly struggle, they in glory shine;
Yet all are one in thee, for all are thine.

Alleluia, alleluia!

And when the strife is fierce, the warfare long,
Steals on the ear the distant triumph song,
And hearts are brave again, and arms are strong.

Alleluia, alleluia!

The golden evening brightens in the west;
Soon, soon to faithful warriors cometh rest;
Sweet is the calm of paradise the blest.

Alleluia, alleluia!

The Providence of God

A few generations ago many people felt that human society was on the verge of reaching that rational, abundant, and peaceful goal of which philosophers had dreamed for centuries. We still hear echoes of this naive optimism about human progress, especially as men celebrate the wonders of scientific technology.

Yet, for every advance, mankind seems to pay a price. This has led some men today to say that modern man is doomed and that the evidences of societal disintegration and anarchy are already upon us.

Christians are called to be a stabilizing and reconciling element in society, not by showing their devotion to the status quo, but by upholding their faith in the providence of God. To believe in the providence of God means to be anchored in those realities which are timeless. To believe in the providence of God means to be ready to accept whatever weal or woe the future may bring with a confidence that "the Lord God omnipotent reigneth."

Rather than being an optimist or a pessimist, the man of faith is a realist, a man with the strength to look at the changing world and see God at work bringing renewal and healing in the midst of decay and suffering.

St. Paul reminded the members of the Church at Philippi that their citizenship was in heaven, and that in God's own time from heaven alone will come He who is the only Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Those early Christians lived in a world just as frightening as ours. Their temptation to lose faith in God and to doubt His ability to save them was just as severe as ours is. Yet they did not lose heart. With the writer of Psalm 99 they could sing, "The Lord is King, be the people never so impatient; He sitteth between the Cherubim, be the earth never so unquiet."

If we believe in the providence of God and trust Him to whom we belong, we, too, can live as citizens of the Kingdom and as harbingers of its hope.

WEST PHILADELPHIA COMMUNITY FREE SCHOOL

The Vestry Education Committee is wrestling with what appropriate response St. Mary's can make to the request for assisting this program with personnel and space. One response is that we may provide seminar leadership on vocations in the Church and the Church's role in social and political change in the world today. See Harold Bright or Scarlett Emerson.

The other response is to find out what members of St. Mary's have skills and talents to offer in some volunteer teaching. Ralph Thorn is assembling the names, interests and time of such volunteers from St. Mary's.

The Bands of Sin

Most of us do not like to think about sin. This, perhaps, is why in all of our religious discussions we talk about the Bible, the Liturgy, stewardship, the rector or why fasting is either important or unimportant-but rarely about our sins.

There are undoubtedly a number of reasons for this almost universal reluctance to think about sin. Sin is an intensely personal matter. It is a part of our lives which we find degrading, and we prefer not to think about it. We are ashamed of our unrighteousness and try to pretend it doesn't exist.

We are also somewhat uncertain whether we actually are sinful. In our western civilization--especially in our country--we have been taught that man can improve himself without outside help, if only he will try hard enough. We live in a culture which exalts the self-made man, the man who begins with nothing and through discipline becomes the totally free creature, beholden to no one.

But no man is totally sinless, no man is totally free. Sin occurs when we insist that our rights transcend those of others, when we press forward at the expense of others. Sin occurs when our appetites, our desires need to be gratified above everything else.

When this happens, sin has become the subtle master of our lives. We are no longer free. We have become slaves to habits, and we are caught in the bands of those sins which by our frailty we have committed." (Collect, 24th Sunday after Trinity, page 223, The Book of Common Prayer.)

But, as the Collect reminds us, there is a remedy for our condition. This remedy is the goodness of God. When we are properly repentant, when we are truly sorry for the errors we commit and the misdeeds we perform, God does forgive us. Our Lord promises this. And our weak natures which permit us to sin against man and God are strengthened and renewed by the grace of divine goodness. Then we live in a new kind of freedom.

"O Lord, we beseech Thee, absolve Thy people from their offences; that through Thy bountiful goodness we may all be delivered from the bands of those sins which by our frailty we have committed. Grant this, O heavenly Father, for the sake of Jesus Christ, our blessed Lord and Saviour. Amen."

As He has revealed Himself to us in Holy Scripture, God is not a champion of the status quo. He appeared to Moses and told that unwilling leader to take command of the Hebrew people and to bring them out of Egypt into a new and frightening adventure with Him in the wilderness. At first this great divine deliverance was seen as a fearful mistake. The slavish comforts of Egypt seemed far more desirable than the hope of freedom and joy in a far-off Promised land.

Again, in the time of Jeremiah, the Lord moved boldly for the salvation of His people in Israel. In the midst of the turmoil and despair of the collapsing nation, the Prophet looked ahead to a new exodus to be wrought by God.

Jeremiah wrote, "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth." (Jer. 23:5). The Kingdom was soon to be established by a new act of God.

We who call ourselves Christians hail the coming of God in Jesus Christ. We pray repeatedly, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven."

Despite our prayers, however, we frequently find ourselves at odds with God's unfolding purpose for His world. We are comfortable in our bondages of prejudice, indifference, and apathy. We dread to face the sacrifices the future might call upon us to make, even when those things to which we cling are not of God. Trembling before God's summons, we shrink back from obedience. Fear withers our will.

Without the Divine Spirit's restless stirring in our hearts we would remain in death. With the challenge of God's love before us in Jesus Christ, however, fear is cast out of our lives and we can live anew in Him, "plenteously bringing forth the fruit of good works."

The flowers today are given in loving memory of Alfred and Nellie Pancoast. May light perpetual shine upon them.

LOOKING AHEAD

Wednesday, December 3rd at 8 P.M. - second meeting of task force in Christian Education. At 10 P.M. following the Folk mass. General Convention deputy Bill Page (Diocese of East Carolina) will share slides and talk on Medical missionary work in Melanesia.

WELCOME TO THE MITCHELLS

Father Mitchell embodies ecumenism and participation in today's world. His folk music has been commissioned and used not only by Episcopalians, but Roman Catholics and Protestants. He and his wife Caroline are a splendid team. After graduation from Nashotah House and ordination, Father Mitchell was on the staff of St. Christopher's Mission to the Navajo which he describes as a "great learning experience for white men." Since then he and Caroline have performed in churches, at rallies, on radio and TV across the country. His last stop before coming to the Philadelphia area this past week was at the Peace activities in Washington.

WELCOME TO "A GOOD QUESTION"

Rick Wagner and his flute are known to a good many folks in the campus area. He is continuing musical studies at Granoff and further developing the ensemble; the company are all our neighbors in West Philadelphia and have set up a small room for rehearsals in the Parish House basement. The ensemble played beautifully for our Hallowe'en Happening.

LAY EDUCATION SERIES

TEAM announces a five Saturday session on the metropolitan area. Details and application blanks are on the Bulletin Board.

The Obligation of Love

Many of those who heard St. Paul's advice to the Church at Rome must have been shocked to hear him say, "Owe no man any thing, but to love one another; for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law." (Rom. 13:8)

Most of the Apostle's hearers were Christians of a Jewish background and were imbued with a sense of the Law's fundamental importance. From childhood they had been taught that God had given man the Torah and all of its statutes to be the way of pleasing Him.

Could all these 600 or more mandates be swept aside without thereby opening the Church to that moral anarchy which was so common in the pagan world?

St. Paul, like our Lord before him, did not intend to destroy the Law. He spoke of the obligation to love, not to provide an easy way out for those who found ethical integrity too demanding, but to show the supreme and absolute character of Christian love.

Love, as St. Paul and all of the writers of the New Testament knew, is not a vague human sentiment. Love is the very essence of God Himself, and He has revealed its stark and sacrificial dimensions in His Son's death on the cross.

No one who truly understands the meaning of love as it has been revealed in Jesus Christ can rightly believe that Christianity offers an indifferent ethic of "do as you please."

The Apostle knew that he who would serve love would also serve all that God had intended through the Law. As one prominent Christian moral theologian has written: "While love frees from the law, it binds man ever closer to the needs of others, even as Jesus Christ was bound, and that which alone frees also binds...freedom from the Law belongs only to that individual who is free for reason of the most terrifying obligation."

The divine imperative to love is, indeed, our most awesome and fundamental Christian duty.

COVER: The tablets of the ten commandments are the traditional symbol of the Law. The heart is the traditional symbol of love.

Hanukkah

While we Christians are preparing for Christmas, our Jewish friends are celebrating the season known as Hanukkah, or the Feast of the Rededication of the Temple.

An account of the historical events that give rise to this observance are found in the First Book of the Maccabees, in that section between the Old and New Testaments known as the Apocrypha.

After the death of Alexander the Great there was a long power struggle for his throne. It was finally won by Antiochus who, in waging war against Egypt, marched through Israel. There, his armies entered the city of Jerusalem, dared to enter the Temple itself and "...took away the golden altar, the table of the shewbread..and the golden ornaments."

Later Antiochus sent his soldiers back to pillage and burn the city, build it anew and occupy it. Thousands of Israelites fled into the hill country "whereupon the city was made a habitation of strangers..her feasts were turned into mournings, her honor into contempt."

Because the Temple was the center of worship not only for Jerusalem but for the entire Jewish nation, this invasion by the Greek army was not only a military occupation to the Israelites but a blasphemy which threatened to wipe out the worship of the God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel.

When the officers of the king demanded that the people of Modin, renounce the religion of Israel and offer sacrifices to the pagan gods of the Greeks, Mattathias, who lived with his five sons in this little town near Jerusalem, refused to obey. When one of his countrymen did step forward to obey, Mattathias was so inflamed by this apostasy that he drew his sword and killed him, and the officers as well, crying "...whosoever is zealous of the law, and maintaineth the covenant, let him follow me!"

The First Book of the Maccabees tells how quickly and successfully this guerilla movement spread. The Jews knew their own hill country better than any stranger and, although they were outnumbered, they continued to defeat the invading armies. When Mattathias died of old age his son Judas continued the struggle. Finally the great day of victory came when Judas and his men could return to Jerusalem to cleanse and dedicate the sanctuary."

Tradition says that when they went to light the menorah, the seven-branch candlestick, and realized they had no more olive oil to keep it burning, they found enough oil in a sealed jar to last the day. The seven branches were filled and lighted and miraculously continued to burn for eight days until more oil could be obtained.

Thus the menorah became a symbol of the Jews' successful struggle for freedom. Just as a little oil lasted eight days, so had a small band of dedicated men defeated the armies of oppression.

Christmas Isn't All Bad

"Christ climbed down from His bare tree this year and ran away to where there were no rootless Christmas trees hung with candy canes and breakable stars," writes Lawrence Ferlinghetti, the modern poet.

And as we rush, credit card in hand, to do some last-minute shopping we are inclined to agree with his cynicism. Christmas is indeed just getting too commercial, we tell ourselves and all who will listen. By the time "this holy tide of Christmas doth bring redeeming grace", we are too exhausted or broke to care about the reason for Christ-mass, much less its redeeming grace.

But then, is there no good thing we can say about the manner in which modern man observes the pre-Christmas period? Christmas lights and decorations can transform even the bleakest street, and when the tree goes up and is lighted, many a living room takes on a glow of warmth that seems to help the whole family's spirits.

Yes, there really is such a thing as the Christmas spirit, which Christians should be able to recognize as being of the Holy Spirit.

He is evident in the smiles, the greetings, the increased friendliness we note in our fellow-men, and in ourselves, at this time of year. Just as He helps us to know and love God in such an unlikely place as a manger, so He helps us to respond to God's love in and through the many customs of the pre-Christmas season.

God gives us the gift of His love in the person of Jesus Christ--a healthy, gurgling, crying, unpredictable Jewish baby. Jesus is the central figure who attracts such a diverse company as angels, curious shepherds, smelly animals and, eventually, some curious astrologers.

Christmas still attracts a diverse company of people, many of whom do not or cannot acknowledge the real reason for their celebration. Yet the joy and generosity, the patience and satisfaction each of us experiences, if only briefly, is a real sign of God's love reaching into men's hearts.

Just as we cannot keep Jesus in the manger, we cannot limit Christmas to the midnight service and the children's pageant. The Child in the Manger grew up and mixed with all kinds of people. They responded to Him in different ways, just as we do today. We all want to be loved. We all want to show our love. The gifts, the parties, the music and the color, all can express and deepen the mutual love for all men that God makes possible in Christ.

St. Thomas

The gospel for St. Thomas' day gives us what is probably the only biblical insight into this saint's character. Because the Sundays in Advent always have precedence over saints' days, the Feast of St. Thomas (December 21) never falls on a Sunday. As a result, few people attend his commemoration and hear this gospel.

The apostle St. Thomas, in one way, represents modern, pragmatic man. He is closely akin to all of us in that he says "Show me."

When Thomas heard the other apostles tell of having seen the risen Christ, he said, "unless I see the holes that the nails made in His hands and can put my finger into the holes they made, and unless I can put my hand into His side, I refuse to believe." (St. John, 20:25, Jerusalem Bible)

This bold challenge was soon tested when our Lord, appearing before the apostles, invited Thomas to touch His wounds and to believe.

After Thomas recognized Him, he exclaimed, "My Lord and my God!" and Jesus replied, "You believe because you can see me. Happy are those who have not seen and yet believe."

People like us, for whom everything must be spelled out, people who tend to trust only what we can see or what can be proven without a doubt, should draw encouragement from our Lord's words to Thomas, "Happy are those who have not seen and yet believe."

Thomas, the first century doubter, achieved his faith through a visible, infallible proof. We, the 20th century doubters, although inspired by the experience of Thomas, are among those who have not seen and yet believe.

Our belief may come about only in glimpses of Christ in persons and events, but often these fleeting encounters and events can be as convincing as seeing our Lord and touching His wounds.

A New Look

A few years ago most of us believed that if the various Christian traditions were seriously compared, we would eventually see what should be preserved, what revised and what eliminated.

In many ways this approach to unity seemed sensible. Surely a careful comparison and evaluation by the leaders of the various Christian Churches should result in the preservation of the finest traditions of the Christian community.

Whether this approach might have accomplished its purpose we will probably never know, for a new dimension has been added to the ecumenical encounter. Today members of the various Churches are beginning to look more and more at the world around them and only then, in the light of what they see there, at each other.

We all have to admit that none of us has been very successful in reaching "all sorts and conditions of men." We are becoming conscious of having spent too much time and effort on inter-church discussions with little visible concern for the pressing problems facing us all.

As a result, many have become impatient with the theological nuances of the conference table, the inevitable resolutions and the proliferation of committees. Some Christians have even broken away from formal Church affiliation. Others have begun to supplement their usual parish life with new, informal ecumenical experiments. These may be simply discussion groups meeting in private homes. More often they are meetings of people deeply concerned about social injustices, who come together not so much as Episcopalians or Roman Catholics or Presbyterians but as fellow-Christians. They worship and then seek to take a common course of action in their community.

The great advantage of this development is that it comes from the grass roots of the churches' life. It is the response of people to a common need and it helps us see the necessity for a unified Christian purpose.

This kind of movement also helps break down our personal and denominational barriers. Just as neighbors often band together at a time of catastrophe, we Christians now have a new opportunity to understand each other in a deeper kind of love than is normally manifest at the conference table.

From the viewpoint of the Episcopal Church, this new look on the ecumenical front may not bring about visible reunion in the immediate future. To be considered are matters of canon law, Prayer Book rubrics and the response of the General Convention to the facts of the present ecumenical climate. These are basic problems that cannot be avoided and that need to be worked out. But at least, Christians of different traditions are learning, once again, to love one another.

General Convention II approved for use this form / the Prayer of Intercession prepared by the Standing Liturgical Commission.

In Peace let us pray to the Lord:

For all people in their daily life and work,
(especially for ...) We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For our families, friends and neighbors, and for those who are alone, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who serve our community, state and nation,
We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who work for justice, freedom and peace
among the nations, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For our just and proper use of the natural riches of the world,
We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For all who are in danger, sorrow, need, sickness,
or any other trouble, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For the victims of hunger, fear, injustice and oppression, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For all who minister to the suffering, the friendless,
and the needy, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who proclaim the Gospel, and for all who seek the truth, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For the unity and peace of all Christian people,
We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For Bishops and other Ministers, and all who serve thee
in thy Church, We pray to thee.
 Lord, hear our prayer.

(Here opportunity may be given to the members of the congregation to ask the prayers and share the thanks-
givings of those present.)

For all who have departed this life,
 We pray to thee.
 Lord, hear our prayer.

We give thanks for all thy saints and servants in time past (especially N... whom we honor this day). Grant us, we pray thee, to share with them thine everlasting kingdom.

Lord, hear our prayer.

Lord, forgive us our sins.
And amend our lives according to thy Word. Amen.

Faith

For Christians, faith may be likened to the faith of the circus aerialist. As the aerialist climbs his ladder, he knows that the net is there and is well secured. Once he begins his act, however, his concentration actually keeps him from seeing the net. But he is sure that it is there.

First, he depends on realities outside himself: the guy wires, the net, and his fellow-performers. Second, his faith enables him to perform his act with assurance. This faith, of course, is in people and things.

Faith in God is like this, but it is much more. The man of faith completely throws his lot into the hands of the unknown, the unseen. To the skeptic the man of faith is merely a chance-taker, a leaper in the dark. But the Christian recognizes that earthly dependence has shaky limitations, that the only firm reality is God Himself.

Each man comes to this realization in his own way. One has only to read the Bible to see the varieties of response to faith: Abraham is willing to sacrifice his only son; Moses chooses to return to Egypt even though he knows he will be faced with a murder charge; the ailing woman simply touches Jesus' robe; the centurion believes that his slave at home has been healed by Jesus' word.

Faith is not as some people suppose, something achieved through intellectual search or hard study, although these may help. Faith, rather, is a gift implanted by God in the heart of every man, dull or smart, rich or poor, black or white. It is a gift waiting to liberate a man from "the changes and chances of this mortal life." The faithful leap that he takes is, as it were, a vertical one, reaching out of himself to the All-Giver, the truly dependable One. Once made, this act of Faith establishes a strong link with God. Finally this act of fundamental trust gives meaning and purpose to our faith in people and things.

At 7:30 P.M. there will be a meeting of all the Church School Staff.

THE REVEREND TOM DIETRICH

We welcome to St. Mary's the new Pastor of Tabernacle Church, 37th and Chestnut Streets. The Rev. Mr. Dietrich comes to Philadelphia from 10 years as Pastor of Howard Presbyterian Church in Haight-Ashbury, San Francisco. He is a native of Milwaukee, graduate of

th. University of Wisconsin and McCormick Seminary and served briefly at Calvary Presbyterian Church in Detroit.

FLOWERS

The flowers on the High Altar today are given in loving memory of Blanche and Gustavus. May light perpetual shine upon them.

THE NEW PRAYER OF INTERCESSION

The reader of the Intercession will pause after each phrase giving the opportunity for members of the congregation to add "especially for ...". The Celebrant will then ask the bidding, "We pray to thee", and all respond with "Lord, hear our prayer." Reaction was generally very favorable to the new form last Sunday because it was brief and much more flexible. Let us take advantage of it.

THE SMABYS

Captain Richard M. Smaby, former Vestryman, is now serving in Vietnam. His address is 53L-40-97L9, Co. A 5L9th S.B. (CDEC), A.P.O. 64, San Francisco, California, 96307. Bev's address is 32L 104th St. S.E., Apt. 202, Bellevue, Wash. 98004. God willing, they will be back among us with two children in September. Dick has been appointed Assistant Professor of Linguistics at the University.

ST. LEONARD'S HOUSE

On the bulletin board is the newsletter of this half-way house for prisoners in Chicago founded by a classmate of the Rector's. The story it tells us of the new director is well worth reading.

General Convention II approved for use this form of the Prayer of Intercession prepared by the Standing Liturgical Commission.

In Peace let us pray to the Lord:

For all people in their daily life and work,
(especially for ...) We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For our families, friends and neighbors, and for those who are alone, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who serve our community, state and nation,
 We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who work for justice, freedom and peace
among the nations, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For our just and proper use of the natural riches of the world, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For all who are in danger, sorrow, need, sickness,
or any other trouble, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For the victims of hunger, fear, injustice and oppression, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For all who minister to the suffering, the friendless,
and the needy, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who proclaim the Gospel, and for all who seek the truth, We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For the unity and peace of all Christian people,
 We pray to thee.
Lord, hear our prayer.

For Bishops and other Ministers, and all who serve thee
in thy Church, We pray to thee.
 Lord, hear our prayer.

(Here opportunity may be given to the members of the congregation to ask the prayers and share the thanks-
givings of those present.)

For all who have departed this life,
 We pray to thee.
 Lord, hear our prayer.

We give thanks for all thy saints and servants in time past (especially N... whom we honor this day). Grant us, we pray thee, to share with them thine everlasting kingdom.

Lord, hear our prayer.

Lord, forgive us our sins.
And amend our lives according to thy Word. Amen.

Hope

"Abandon every hope, you who enter!"

This less-than-inviting superscription is the final phrase of the message surmounting the mighty Gate of Hell in Dante's "Divine Comedy". We have only to imagine an existence without hope to realize how hellish such hopelessness can be.

One of man's most marvelous gifts is his ability to think ahead, to plan, to anticipate the future. No other creature, as far as we know, can do this.

Modern, civilized, and highly organized man is proud of his calendar, so jam-packed with appointments, trips, anniversaries, social engagements and deadlines. There is a security in knowing that some definite event is going to take place tomorrow, next week, or even next year.

On the other hand, there can also be insecurity in our expectations. If we look sometimes at our busy (or not-so-busy) future we may become dreadfully discouraged. After all, we can judge by past experience, and this is not necessarily a comfort. We may even be so anxious over something that is about to take place that we toss in the sponge ahead of time. This is the abandonment of hope.

Together with our ability to look ahead, God has given us the gift of contemplating our future with perspective. We call this ability "hope". Hope is not merely a sentimental wish that "everything will come out all right." Nor is it an apprehensive whistling in the dark.

The hope that Christ gives us is directly tied in with our faith. It is, as it were, a healthy attitude toward our faith. This hope prevents us from deluding ourselves with easy answers. This hope keeps us from saying, "What's the use?"

Hope is that anchor by which we hold fast to the one God in Christ. Anchored by our faith in Him, we can confidently contemplate the future, its good and its evil.

To abandon hope is to abandon God. Our hope is in Him.

COVER: The anchor is the early Christian symbol for hope.

Gross Sins

The pagan world of the first century was known for its extremes of sexual license and carnality. Converts to Christianity came seeking something different, a way of life finer than anything they had experienced before. But often they did not know how to transcend their past failures. They needed the frank words written by the Apostle Paul to the Church in Thessalonica to tell them how they "ought to walk and to please God."

St. Paul was blunt about the need of Christians to avoid sins of the flesh. "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification," he warned. "that ye should abstain from fornication."

Summing up his exhortation, Paul says, "for God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness. He therefore that despiseth, despiseth not man, but God, who hath also given unto us His Holy Spirit."

St. Paul knew that sins, especially the grosser sins of lust and gluttony, were commonplace. He knew also that man cannot save himself by moral striving alone. Yet he did not therefore counsel permissiveness or moral laxity. He knew that Christians with the aid of God's Holy Spirit are capable of overcoming temptation.

In our day we, too, struggle with moral confusion and temptation. We are alternately plagued by guilt, then prompted to further fleshly indulgence. Humanly speaking, there is no way out of this trap.

But St. Paul reminds us, as he did the men of his day, that God has given us His Holy Spirit to be our guide. The Spirit can make the difference in our lives if we will listen to Him whenever we are confronted by temptation to be less than His companions.

It is this spiritual strength which has always given Christians hope and an ability to live as servants of God, even in the midst of temptation and trial.

Why Lent?

In a day such as ours, when all things traditional, including the Church and Her teachings, are being questioned, analyzed, and often jettisoned, it should be no surprise to be asked, "Why keep Lent?"

Even the most devout Christian might well question the value of Lenten observances that seem to have lost their purpose: the annual round of parish pot-luck suppers; the poorly-attended study groups; the self-imposed regimes of self-denial, which helped cut down on excessive smoking or overweight; the visiting preachers; the mite boxes whose contents helped assuage our feelings of guilt about the needs of our distant brethren.

Historically, Lent originated as that period when the catechumens made their final preparation before baptism on Easter morning. As the Church grew in numbers, those who had already been baptized began to renew their vows each year prior to the Paschal feast. Eventually the entire Church, along with the catechumens, began to observe this period of a final preparation for Easter.

At first, Lent was limited to the two weeks before Easter. Later it was extended to forty days in order to recall our Lord's forty days of fasting in the desert.

Those Christians who observe Lent today see it as a special opportunity to grow in their commitment to our Lord and His Church. To be sure, this opportunity is not limited to the Lenten season. In today's confusing and chaotic world, however, we may find that the observance of Lent, through the ancient disciplines of prayer, fasting, and almsgiving, can help us grow in our understanding of God and his world, and thereby help us understand ourselves and our place in that world.

Lent is not a time for us to feel spiritually superior to those who do not observe its customs. Nor do Lenten fasting and abstinence imply that what is being given up is in itself bad for us. Above all, Lent is not on the calendar to take all the joy out of life.

Lent is an opportunity for each of us to devote a bit more of our time and attention and concern to God and to our relationship with Him. Thus Lent can help us in our understanding of ourselves as human beings and as children of God.

CHANGE IN DAILY EUCHARIST SCHEDULE

Attendance has been minimal at both the 5:30 PM Tues. and 9:30 PM Wed.celebrations of late.There is no point in sticking to old schedules. We would rather meet existing needs.At 5:30 Tues.there is a Eucharist celebrahave a 5:30 PM service on Thurs. Therefore beginning this week we will establish a 5:30 PM hour for Wed. Any other suggestions?

THE LITANY AND INTERCESSION

In prior years we have used the Prayerbook Litany Lenten Sun. We are using part of it as Prayer of Intercession this Sun. The Litany's solemnity is appropriate to use on Sun. in Lent.

LOOKING AHEAD

A) Next Sun. following Folkmass at 6 PM, there will be a pot-luck supper & evaluation of where we are at with new forms of worship.

B) Sat. Mar. 21, EARTH DAY, St. Mary's will be host to Christopher Tree presenting a Concert of Spontaneous Music at 8:30 PM (see bul. board for details).

C) Sun. Mar. 22, PALM SUNDAY, the Rev. Robert C. Chapman will be guest preacher at the 10:30 AM service. Fr. Chapman, formerly Episcopal Chaplain at University and Assoc. Rector (1963-65) is now Director of the Division of Racial Justice at the National Council of Churches.

NEW NOMINATIONS TO VESTRY

The issue of the parish letter now in the mail contains two omissions in the listing of nominees; the full list of new nominees is as follows: Betty Breedlove (Librarian), Bob Hill (English Prof), Carol Moore (Nurse), Rob Regan (English Prof), Jim Romer (Regional Planner), and Chris Toy (Math teacher & Grad student). Order Out of Chaos

Most of us have had the experience of finding ourselves in a situation where the details are too much for us. Ensnarled in a tangle of problems, we feel helplessly unable to make any intelligent decisions. Then a friend appears who sees the situation in clearer perspective and offers a suggestion or two. Suddenly the weight of our anxiety is lifted. Details fall into their proper place and order is established.

Following the Ascension of our Lord, the Apostles, faced with uncertainty and lack of direction, were confused, anxious, and in a state bordering on panic. They didn't know which way to turn or what to do next. Their problem was solved, not by a casual suggestion from a friend but by the coming of the Holy Spirit Himself into their midst and their lives.

Pentecost is the supreme example of chaos being turned into order. Through the experience of Pentecost, the Apostles were able to see their way clearly. Their anxiety was lifted and they were able to carry on the work begun by Jesus.

Our Lord had promised them that their confusion, downheartedness and slowness of understanding would soon be dispelled by the Strengtheners, the Holy Spirit: "When the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth."

After Pentecost, the Apostles knew what they were to do. They saw the pieces of the puzzle finally in place. In the Holy Spirit, order was established.

Today, in our own lives we know disorder within our families and among races and classes and nations. Much as we wish it, deliberation and consensus seldom bring the order we seek. Thus we often turn to coercion and conflict.

The experience of the Apostles at Pentecost gives us the hope of meaning and purpose in our lives. As the Spirit brought order to the Church, so we must rely on Him to bring us out of the tangle of problems and decisions in which we find ourselves enmeshed.

Theology and the Trinity

Theology is a remarkable discipline. It is the science by which we investigate and communicate our understandings about God.

Because the words used in this science seem strange and the concepts so abstract, we are often discouraged and confused when we attempt to write or speak theologically.

Yet it is necessary that we do think and speak theologically. There are some elements of our faith which cannot be explained philosophically, psychologically or mathematically. The Doctrine of the Trinity is a notable example.

Christians know that God has revealed Himself to man in history as the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. At the same time, Christians also proclaim that there is but one God Who is ruler of the universe. This seeming paradox can be explained only in theological terms, for any explanation has to go beyond the usual processes of logic.

The Articles of Religion (which we find in the back of our Prayer Book) tell us that in the Trinity there are "... in the unity of this Godhead ... three Persons, of one substance, power, and eternity ..."

This definition is a theological way of saying that God's unfolding self-disclosure is a mysterious but recognizable process. As the Creator of all that exists, He is the Father of all that He has brought into being. As Saviour, He is the perfect man Who died that we might live eternally. As the Holy Ghost, He is God continually acting in the world, supporting and sustaining the lives of His creation.

We recognize Him as three "persons"—as relating to man in three identifiable ways. But we also recognize Him, in these activities, as the one God Who meets the infinitely varied needs of sinful men.

In the final analysis, our relationship with God constantly becomes apparent through our personal experiences. Theology does not necessarily increase our faith, nor does it often make converts. But theology does satisfy, to some degree, our innate need to explain why we believe as we do.

"No Man Hath Seen God at Any Time..."

"If only I could see God just once!"

Many of us have been inclined to say or think something like this, especially when we think we have reason to doubt whether God exists.

To see God would solve for us the great mystery of His nature. We think that if we could only know what God looks like, we would understand what He is really like and could then face anything life has to offer.

In seeking this tempting solution to our problems, we assume too much. Can man, who is finite, ever completely comprehend God the infinite? And if man could, would he then know what to do with his great knowledge?

Just as we cannot stare at the blazing sun without being blinded by its brilliance, neither can we expect to face the fullness of God's glory without being overwhelmed by it. Only as God chooses to accommodate Himself to our limitations, can we respond to Him.

Although as St. John reminds us, "No man hath seen God at any time," God has shown Himself to us indirectly in many ways, as has been recorded in both the Old and the New Testaments as well as in the lives of countless people.

God led the children of Israel out of Egypt "by day in a pillar of a cloud . . . and by night in a pillar of fire."

In the story of Isaiah's commissioning, the prophet sees God in a vision: "I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up . . . and I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send . . . ?"

Over the years men have increased their knowledge of God as He works in history. We see in the exodus from Egypt His absolute power and His demand for justice. Centuries later, Isaiah shows us the utter righteousness of God and the obligation placed upon us to proclaim this righteousness to the world.

When our Lord Jesus Christ was transfigured before the eyes of the Apostles, a voice came out of the cloud: "This is my beloved Son: hear Him."

In our Lord, everything revealed earlier is uniquely summed up. He is God in human terms. We are able to come to know him and love him in a personal way. He no longer needs to hide in smoke and clouds or come to us in a vision. He comes to us now in the flesh.

We cannot say we have seen God in the fullness of his glory, but in Christ we have been given the most accurate picture we need to have. Having known Him, we can now understand something of God the infinite, because He has entered into the finite through Jesus Christ.

Capital Punishment

Historically Christians have agreed with their non-Christian neighbors in maintaining that the right to take life is not forbidden to the State, providing the due processes of law have been followed. The execution of criminals has been seen rather as a necessary means by which good order and justice are maintained in society. The Bible, they have said, does not forbid such proper retributive justice. Opposition to capital punishment, it is argued, is too often a form of sentimentalism, not an expression of Christian concern or mercy.

Today, however, a growing number of Christians are challenging the practice of taking of life by the State, in the light of the commandment, "Thou shalt do no murder." They claim that capital punishment falls most commonly on the poor and the racially outcast, on those least able to defend themselves against society's desire for revenge.

Not only can the executed criminal never repent, but those who must serve as his executioners are demeaned and degraded. Finally, there remains the outrageous possibility of executing an innocent man. For these reasons and more, the Episcopal Church is quite clear in its official opposition to capital punishment.

How our society will resolve this controversy will depend greatly on how well Christian people express themselves politically on the issues raised by capital punishment. Whatever position each of us takes should be assumed in humility and fairness, with proper regard for the fact that such questions are rarely resolved easily. They demand our most diligent, honest and prayerful deliberation and action.

As we try to live as Christian citizens, we cannot say that we have done what our Lord requires of us until we have asked for His guidance about the rightness or wrongness of capital punishment for our day in our society.

NEXT SUNDAY

Several years ago the rector was away on alternating Sundays giving the impression that he was continually on vacation. It seems to be happening again in 1970! May 17, he was still in Washington following the Dalzells' wedding. Last Sunday he preached at The Church of the Saviour. Next Sunday he will be preaching at Christ Church, Schenectady, N.Y. That rector and he were classmates at Union College, class of 1950, so they will observe a 20th reunion. On Sunday, June 28th he will actually be on vacation!

Why Evil?

The most baffling puzzle confronting the average Christian is the problem of evil. If God is good and all-powerful, we ask, why, then, is there evil in the world?

For the Christian this problem of evil arises from the collision of belief and experience. The Christian believes that God is both good and supremely powerful. Yet every day of his life he is confronted by some evidence of the reality of evil.

In every age men have attempted to solve this mystery of evil. Sometimes their solution has been to think that God's power is limited. They have envisioned the world as being a gigantic stage on which is played out a death-struggle between the two opposing forces of good and evil; only in the last act will the victor be known.

Those who would explain the problem this way, see evil only as a fact of nature. Rather than passionately opposing it, they resign themselves to the inevitability of its existence.

Others say that evil is not a reality at all but merely a figment of our imagination, or even an evidence of "wrong-thinking." For these people, evil exists only in the mind of man: "there is nothing good or bad, but thinking makes it so."

For the Christian, however, the Cross of Jesus Christ takes the problem of evil down from the ivory tower of speculation and plants it squarely in life. Evil is real. The Christian suffers under it, even as his Lord suffered under it. Traditionally, our recognition of evil is so vivid that we can speak with St. Peter of our "adversary the devil, who walketh about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour, whom resist steadfast in the faith."

The final weapon of evil, death itself, was used against Christ, and He died. So do we succumb to death. But Christ, by gaining the final victory over death in eternal fellowship with the Father, released us from the evil in the world.

His promise to all of us who are buried with Him in the dying of our baptism is that we shall live with Him as partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light, where sin and evil have ceased to be.

FLAG DAY

Clergy and Laymen Concerned about Viet Nam has suggested that today is an opportunity to affirm new national understanding. A proposed service is posted on the bulletin board, and the following phrase will be inserted in the Intercessions this morning:

On this day, observed nationally as Flag Day, when the flag is being used as a symbol of partisan support of the Indo-china war, let us recall its meaning as a symbol of freedom and not oppression, let us remember the blood spilled in fratricide among ourselves as well as the fallen of all wars, and let us seek peace and justice for all men repenting of uncritical loyalties and fear.

V. O Lord, hear our prayer

A. And let our cry come unto thee

NOTES

The Rector is preaching at Christ Church, Schenectady, N.Y. where a college classmate is rector, on the occasion of their 20th reunion.

Art Melville is going to Washington on Monday to join in the Episcopal Peace Fellowship Mass at the Pentagon. If others would like to go, please contact him.

St. Bede's is starting a collection of clothing to send to Peru for the victims of the disasters there. If you have anything that might be useful, please send it to Newman Hall.

Hypocrisy

Hypocrisy is a sad sin simply because it doesn't work. To masquerade under virtues or qualities we do not have fools no one but ourselves.

From a Christian perspective, it appears that individual hypocrisy arises from the inability to believe that God accepts and loves us as we are. Growth, morality and holiness are not necessary to our relationship with God, for He accepts the child as well as the mature person, the sinner as well as the saint.

When we realize that God in Christ has reached out to us, bridging the gap created by sin, healing the estrangement which has existed between us and God, then our hypocrisy has no function left. And yet hypocrisy goes on, as we attempt to bolster crumbling self-images against the assaults of reality.

To be affirmed by God is to be freed, freed from the necessity of posturing or wearing a mask or deceiving one's fellows. One of the functions of Christians is to share in this affirmation, to show by our actions and words that love is not just a reward for good behavior.

Corporate hypocrisy is perhaps more difficult to understand and to deal with. The Church is constantly accused these days of hypocrisy, and certainly Christians can see more clearly than can their accusers the justification for this charge. There is no doubt that we can speak all too glibly about the spiritual benefits which derive from poverty and suffering and persecution, all the while doing our best to see that we are delivered from any first-hand experience of these.

There is no doubt we extol the Christian virtues far more than we practice them. We need to remember our Lord's stern words, "Alas for you, lawyers and Pharisees, hypocrites! You are like tombs covered with whitewash; they look well from outside, but inside they are full of dead men's bones and all kinds of filth." (Matt. 23:27 NEB)

The antidote for ecclesiastical hypocrisy is essentially the same as that for personal hypocrisy: God accepts us and loves us, and therefore all attempts at putting on a good front are silly and demeaning.

Humility stands on a bed-rock of faith. Hypocrisy is faithlessness. In the end it always fails.

COVER: A face is seen surrounded by Greek drama masks, a symbol often associated with hypocrisy.

VESTRY MEETING

Inasmuch as there have been unexplained but repeated disappearances of food and juice from the Parish House, the Vestry discussed the matter and agreed to changing the lock to the Parish House door and not issuing any keys outside the parish. Parishioners who have old keys may discard them and request new ones from the Rector.

A copy of the minutes of the May 24th and the Rector's report to the June 16th meeting are posted.

There are also copies of the June issue of PULSEBEAT from Church House.

The Vestry decided to retain our present delegates

The Christian Behind the Wheel

When is a man most dangerous? It's when he's behind the wheel of an automobile. It is the machine age, and not the atomic age, which has given man his most lethal instrument, the automobile. Atomic and hydrogen bombs rain death and destruction when men provoke war. Automobiles bring pain, destruction and death in the course of every ordinary day.

It is not that the automobile is an infernal machine. It is a wonderful machine, certainly within the providence of God, and it has been one of our greatest boons. But it is a machine, and like all devices of human making, the good or evil it can perform depend upon the disposition of the person who uses it. In most traffic accidents, the guilty party is man, not machine; mind and not motor; reflex and not roadway. It was human error which killed 55,200 men, women and children in the United States last year, and maimed 2,000,000 others.

When Christians face up to the statistics of highway safety, it should give sufficient cause for a re-reading of the Sixth Commandment. It is not only the malice aforethought, anger or passion that give rise to murder; nor are guns, knives or poisons the only instruments. Sane, peace-loving, kindly Christians who want to save a few seconds, who get wrapped up in conversation, or who just don't think, turn out to be man-killers in the twinkling of an eye. When the horrible tragedy has happened, they are sorry beyond words, but they have killed and sinned against God and their neighbor.

As Christians, we know that we live in a sacramental universe. God's whole creation is a visible and tangible sign of His goodness toward us. His benefits are available to us whenever we use any of His gifts in the way He intends. Even the automobile can be redeemed from tragedy to joy if we use it rightly. If we remember each time we sit behind the wheel that we hold in our hands a machine which God has given us for good, we will not abuse it. If we remember that the other motorists and pedestrians, no matter how foolishly they drive or walk, are God's creatures, too, our love-our-neighbor policy will include our driving.

As Christians we should pray that we may drive in such a way as always to carry Christ, and not death, to all we pass along our way.

"Patriotism," said Dr. Samuel Johnson, "is the last refuge of a scoundrel."

This comment, although unduly cynical, is not totally untrue. Those of us who have lived through the wars and upheavals of the past few decades have been reminded repeatedly that love of country can be one of mankind's most destructive idolatries.

In the twentieth century alone, excessive national pride has perhaps caused more suffering and misery than any other human emotion has. "God with us" has been the motto of too many warring nations for it to have been true to the Divine will. Surely God and country cannot be equated as loyalties for a Christian.

Yet Christians must live and serve God in some form of political society. Few would suggest that we have the option of being anarchists, for the state has its proper role in God's providence. Moreover, we are expressly encouraged to "Submit . . . to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake . . ." (I Peter, 2:13). The state is an important human ordinance, and our Faith should make us good and productive citizens, ready to do whatever we can for the national well-being.

Patriotism, the love of our country and its traditions, is a human emotion, and like other human emotions, can be well-directed or misdirected. Because we love our nation and the ideals for which it stands, we must strive to build up all that is good in our common life.

The Collect for Independence Day from the Book of Common Prayer sums up our patriotic sensibilities:

"O Eternal God, through whose mighty power our fathers won their liberties of old; Grant, we beseech Thee, that we and all the people of this land may have grace to maintain these liberties in righteousness and peace; through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen."

Our nation will be well-served if Christian people manifest a sense of patriotism which seeks to preserve liberty in our society and throughout the world, rather than one which falsely exalts human pride.

PETITIONS FOR THE INTERCESSIONS ON JULY 4TH WEEKEND

Let us pray for all those in authority in this and every land, but especially on this national celebration for the President of the U.S. and his aides that they may save truth and seek justice among all Americans, and that their eyes and hearts may likewise regard the rest of the world with compassion, understanding and a recognition of human interdependence.

- V. Thou hast loved righteousness and hated iniquity, O God. (Ps. 45:7)
- R. Lord, be gracious to our leaders.

Let us pray likewise for all governors, esp. Raymond, mayors, and esp. James, and others in authority that they may serve their constituents with care and equity.

- V. O Lord, save the state.
- R. And mercifully hear us when we call upon thee.

Let us pray for all members of Congress, state legislatures and councilmen that they may faithfully and diligently represent their constituents and make just laws for domestic concerns and international relations.

- V. O Lord, let them seek peace and pursue it.
- R. Let them eschew evil and do good.
(Psalm 34:14)

Let us pray also for the courts of the land, especially the Supreme Court of the United States, and for all engaged in the exercise of the judicial system and the police that they may serve all the people with justice and discretion.

V. O God, judge of all men

R. Fill them with the spirit of wisdom and understanding.

Let us pray for the people of this land in their various callings that we may accept the responsibility of freedom so that we may possess it for us all not at the cost of some at home nor with callousness to men of other lands.

V. Behold, how good and joyful a thing it is.

R. For Brethren to dwell together in unity.
(Psalm 133:1)

The Real Presence

Have you ever tried to explain to a sympathetic but agnostic friend why you receive Holy Communion?

He can see that we eat bread and drink wine and that these are considered, in some sense, more than bread and wine. He might even concede that the service is an appropriate memorial for someone who sacrificed his life for his beliefs. But the question still remains: why is the receiving of Holy Communion so important to us?

In the Prayer of Consecration (Book of Common Prayer, page 80) we find a description of what our Lord did and said at the Last Supper. "For in the night in which he was betrayed, he took Bread; and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying, Take, eat, This is my Body, which is given for you; do this in remembrance of me."

The last phrase, "Do this in remembrance of Me" is a beautiful phrase, but unfortunately it does not convey the original meaning. It gives the impression that we are merely to remember something that happened long ago and that has little effect on us now. Actually, the phrase should be more accurately translated, "Do this to recall Me."

This one little word makes a great difference. Let us imagine that the President of the United States, appearing on television, says that "we will always remember Ambassador Jones." This is very different from saying that Ambassador Jones is being recalled (to the United States from his overseas post). In the latter case we know that the Ambassador is actually being called back to our midst.

This recalling is what happens when we celebrate the Holy Eucharist. In The Church's Teaching Series, Massey Shepherd writes: "... our Lord gave to His disciples the observance of the Supper, and commanded them to continue it. By 'remembering' Him He did not mean a mere mental recollection of something past and done. To remember Him means to be united to Him . . . it means letting Him come in all the grace and power of His Holy Spirit and take the authority over our whole lives, transforming them into His likeness and lifting them up to God."

To be sure, our agnostic friend will probably have difficulty believing our Lord can be really "present in our midst." Even though the Anglican Communion has never officially defined how Christ is present in the Eucharist, the believing Episcopalian who has shared in the celebration of the Holy Communion has experienced the presence of his Lord. Though faith and experience, not through scientific explanation, we know we receive the ascended and glorified Lord in all His power and humility.

We are, indeed, "made one body with him, that he may dwell in us and we in him."

Astrology and Providence

A phenomenon of our time is the increasing popularity of astrology as a guide for the conduct of the affairs of men. Newspapers carry daily horoscopes for the enlightenment of those countless people who believe that the movement of the planets and stars is the motivating providence of their lives. A continuing flood of literature about astrology pours from the publishing houses. Styles in clothing, decor and advertising reflect the increasing adherence of many to the "laws" of astrology.

One of the appeals of astrology is that it enables a person to evade the responsibility of making decisions. If we believe that the stars and planets do influence a person's planning and actions, then we need not undergo the anxiety and agony of thinking through the problems of each day to a clear and logical solution.

According to the astrologer, the stars tell us when to be frugal or when to be open-handed, when to make commitments or when to reserve judgment, whether to be socially active or quiescent.

In this unique interpretation of providence we are relieved of the burdensome responsibility of possibly making a wrong decision. If things go wrong, it is the fault of the stars.

Astrology poses a serious question for Christians. Is such an approach to life based on a true understanding of providence—the providence of God? Part of God's providence is to be seen in the ordered universe in which we live. Although our understanding is far from complete, we depend on an element of predictability as we engage in activities as varied as swimming, building bridges or sending men to the moon.

God has created the universe, and we see His care for us as we look at our world. Ultimately, however, providence is neither a matter of stars nor of natural law. We believe that God's loving will for us, His providence, supports and sustains us through all our choices and actions, both good and bad.

"For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord," (Romans. 8:38-39.)

"And Fell in One Day Three and Twenty Thousand..."

Every generation looks askance at the one which follows, wondering anew at the decline of moral standards and moral fiber. This concern is especially evident in the realm of sexual ethics. With the Pill, penicillin, and Playboy, the restraints seem to have vanished, and it appears that little remains between us and total license.

As Christians we know that God made us. As human beings we are sexual beings. This is neither accidental nor unfortunate.

Sexuality is involved in all our relationships—our manhood or our femininity is a part of our personhood and cannot be set aside—but it ultimately realizes its potential in a single relationship, which is marriage. Sex, of course, is not the only gift from God, and individuals may choose to remain unmarried in order to concentrate their energy and concern on other gifts. But such people still remain sexual beings.

Sexual license is not a new invention. We are not more depraved than our forefathers were, and St. Paul's reference to the 23,000 acts of fornication in one day suggests that the wandering Hebrews could hardly be said to have provided an example of high moral standards.

Most important of all, we need to acknowledge that the real problem with extramarital sexual intercourse is not that too much is given but rather too little. Our sexuality involves not only pleasure but also love and commitment, work and play, battles and reconciliation.

Casual sex seeks only pleasure. It dehumanizes and is banal. It is this factor, and not any notion that our sexuality is evil, which causes us to label as sinful those sexual encounters in which people are reduced to objects to be used and manipulated.

Our sexuality is a gift from God which, along with all the other aspects of our humanity, is to be used in such a way that we are brought closer to Him, not separated from Him.

Holy Scripture

In a famous statement concerning the four essentials of the historic Church, the Lambeth Quadrilateral, adopted in 1888 by the bishops of the Anglican Communion, includes "The Holy Scriptures [as containing] all things necessary to salvation, and [are] the ultimate standard of faith."

Even before this affirmation of the importance of the Bible was made, the Anglican tradition had long insisted that nothing contrary to Scripture or not firmly established by Scripture could be held as necessary to belief.

As part of the Anglican Communion, the Episcopal Church has continued to uphold the unique place of Holy Scripture in the life of the community of faith. Our Prayer Book is largely made up of direct quotations from Holy Writ or paraphrases of scriptural passages.

The reason for our dependence upon the Bible is our fundamental belief that Holy Scripture records God's own communication about Himself and His purposes for the world. In no other collection of human documents do we find God and His sovereign will expressed so clearly and definitively.

The Bible is the account of a particular section of history in which God chose to make Himself known in the life of the people of Israel, and supremely in the revelation of His Son Jesus Christ.

The Bible, however, is not a "magic" book full of easy answers to complex contemporary questions. Nor will the story of salvation which it tells become part of our lives unless we read and study its words faithfully, within the context of the corporate life of the Church.

God's word is a living expression of His love and can speak to us today. If we will read the Scriptures regularly (and with the help of today's modern translations this task is far less formidable than it once was), asking for and allowing the guidance of the Holy Spirit, we will discover God speaking to us through its pages.

This has been the testimony of every age of the Church's existence, and it will continue to be true, as Jesus Himself implied when He declared, "Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away." (St. Luke, 21:33)

THE PRAYER OF INTERCESSION

In Peace let us pray to the Lord:

For all people in their daily life and work, (especially for...)

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For our families, friends and neighbors, and for those who are alone,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who serve our community, state, and nation,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who work for justice, freedom and peace among the nations,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For our just and proper use of the natural riches of the world,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For all who are in danger, sorrow, need, sickness, or any other trouble,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For the victims of hunger, fear, injustice, and oppression,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For all who minister to the suffering, the friendless, and the needy,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For those who proclaim the Gospel, and for all who seek the truth.

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For the unity and peace of all Christian people,
We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For Bishops and other Ministers, and all who serve thee in thy Church,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

(Here opportunity may be given to the members of the congregation to ask the prayers and share the thanksgivings of those present.)

For all who have departed this life,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

We give thanks for all thy saints and servants in time past (especially N...whom we honor this day).

Grant us, we pray thee, to share with them thine everlasting kingdom.

Lord, hear our prayer.

Lord, forgive us our sins.

And amend our lives according to thy Word.

Amen.

Note Normally a lay reader will bid the petition, the celebrant will invoke "We pray to thee" and the whole congregation will respond. Worshippers are encouraged to add particular intercessions at the appropriate biddings.

Some people think that the creeds of the Church—the Nicene Creed and the Apostles' Creed—are the Church's effort to "systematize" God. They are not. The creeds are an ordered way of thinking about God. They are statements which express the manner in which Christians do this. They are man's attempt to put into words the facts which God has revealed about Himself.

These credal statements did not spring forth full-blown. Their history is not only long and involved, but marked by violent controversy and debate. Originally, for the Israelites, a simple proclamation, such as the Shema, "The Lord our God is one Lord," was a sufficient statement of belief.

The early Christians did not repudiate the Shema. They simply added, "Jesus is Lord." Then, as Christians came to identify, with increasing clarity, the mighty acts of God in Christ, they asked the baptismal candidates to affirm their faith in all those central facts which distinguished Christians from their Jewish and their pagan neighbors.

By the second century, there were those who had started to interpret the Gospel to suit their own ideas and purposes, and had begun to stray from the Apostolic tradition. In order that the fullness of God's complete revelation might be carefully preserved, the creeds were gradually worked out in the living experience of the early Christians.

The creeds that we know today were approved by the great ecumenical councils of the first four centuries. By the fifth century they were in general use as the expression of the Church's decision of faith.

The creeds are not merely sets of propositions. They are the assertion of man's experience in his relationship with God. As such they involve a commitment.

When affirmed by us, the Creeds of our Church are our grave and responsible commitment to God.

COVER: Nicene Creed is superimposed on the hand, fish and dove, symbols for God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit respectively.

The Nicene Creed

I BELIEVE in one God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, And of all things visible and invisible:

And in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God; Begotten of his Father before all worlds, God of God, Light of Light, Very God of very God; Begotten, not made; Being of one substance with the Father; By whom all things were made: Who for us men and for our salvation came down from heaven, And was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, And was made man: And was crucified also for us under Pontius Pilate; He suffered and was buried: And the third day he rose again according to the Scriptures: And ascended into heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of the Father: And he shall come again, with glory, to judge both the quick and the dead; Whose kingdom shall have no end.

And I believe in the Holy Ghost, The Lord, and Giver of Life, Who proceedeth from the Father and the Son; Who with the Father and the Son together is worshipped and glorified; Who spake by the Prophets: And I believe one Catholic and Apostolic Church: I acknowledge one Baptism for the remission of sins: And I look for the Resurrection of the dead: And the Life of the world to come. Amen.

For those who proclaim the Gospel, and for all who seek the truth.

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For the unity and peace of all Christian people,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

For Bishops and other Ministers, and all who serve thee in thy Church,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

(Here opportunity may be given to the members of the congregation to ask the prayers and share the thanksgivings of those present.)

For all who have departed this life,

We pray to thee.

Lord, hear our prayer.

We give thanks for all thy saints and servants in time past (especially N...whom we honor this day).

Grant us, we pray thee, to share with them thine everlasting kingdom.

Lord, hear our prayer.

Lord, forgive us our sins.

And amend our lives according to they Word.

Amen.

Note Normally a lay reader will bid the petition, the celebrant will invoke "We pray to thee" and the whole congregation will respond. Worshippers are encouraged to add particular intercessions at the appropriate biddings.

Two Sacraments

“... The two Sacraments ordained by Christ Himself—Baptism and the Supper of the Lord—ministered with unfailing use of Christ’s Words of Institution, and of the elements ordained by Him...” Thus the Lambeth Conference of 1888 stated one of the principles it saw as basic to a reunited Christian Church.

It is not surprising that this council of bishops, representing the entire Anglican Communion, should have taken this action. Anglicans the world over have always recognized the essential place for sacraments as “an outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace” in the lives of men, and the primary position of Baptism and Holy Communion, “ordained by Christ Himself,” in the life of the Church.

God’s purposes are spiritual, but He created a material world in order to express His purposes. Physical things are utilized for spiritual ends. This principle, the sacramental nature of all life, is recognized by Anglicans, and they rely on the Sacraments to nourish and strengthen their lives.

The Church, a visible society of people, expresses the invisible grace of God through her ministry and mission. Worship, audible and visible, expresses the invisible communication between God and His Church. The Bible, a tangible document of paper and ink, conveys the spiritual revelation of the nature of God.

Our Lord utilized this sacramental principle and He applied it to His ministry among us. He chose particular signs to convey this sacramental grace. He selected water and made it the sign of spiritual birth. He chose bread and wine and made them signs of spiritual nourishment. He commanded His Church to “do this.”

When we witness a baptism or partake of Holy Communion, we should recognize that they are not merely “nice church services.” They are the effective vehicles of God’s continuing love.

Episcopacy

By the second century the head of each local Christian community was normally the supervisor, (in Greek, episkopos, in Anglo-Saxon, biscop, in English, bishop). He derived his power and authority from his predecessor-bishops who, following the practice of the Apostles, had laid hands on him with prayer.

This commissioning made him, in a special way, guardian of the Faith, preserver of the tradition, president of the Eucharist, and minister of the sacraments and of the discipline of Christ's Church. He set apart priests and deacons to assist him and to share in his ministry.

Such was the Ministry of Christ in His Church, a ministry which has continued relatively unchanged to the present day. The episcopacy, as the office of bishop was called, was intended to preserve the Faith, to see that the Faith was vigorously preached and practiced. It served, also, to assure, through continuity, a careful choice and setting apart of other persons to help the bishop and eventually to succeed him.

In case one should suppose that this picture of episcopacy is too neat, it must be said that bishops, being men, have often misused their office. For some, it has provided political or economic advantage. For others, it has meant prestige and privilege. For still others, it has been simply an administrative chore.

The present-day bishop is often so taken up with committees and budgets that he can easily find himself less and less a pastor to his people and priests. In many dioceses he is able to visit each congregation only every year or so. He is able to make in-between visits only if there is a serious problem. In metropolitan dioceses he is more like a chairman of the board than a father-in-God.

Despite all of these factors which militate against his exercise of spiritual superintendence, the bishop is still in fact the chief pastor of the local area. Many dioceses are attempting to relieve the administrative load of their bishops in order to free them for true episcopacy.

Episcopalians, together with all Anglicans, are committed to the episcopacy, the chief mode through which the Church of Christ is to be governed and extended.

The Anglican Ethos

What is the "ethos" of the Anglican Communion of which we, as Episcopalians, are a part? Is it our liturgy; our non-Roman Catholicism; our episcopal system? Or is it our family pride, our often self-conscious English cultural background? It may be all of these, and more.

Perhaps the strongest Anglican characteristic has been that God has preserved us in Catholic faith and practice, including the episcopacy. For many years we have identified ourselves as the catholic-protestant "bridge" church, a happy issue out of all churchly controversy. As if to underline this claim, the Anglican Communion has endeavored to maintain, apart from Rome, the doctrine, discipline, and worship of the Universal Church.

In the 1880's, the Anglican bishops issued a four-point program for Church reunion and invited non-Roman bodies to consider it. This program declared the Catholic principles of creeds, sacraments, the Bible and the episcopacy as necessary characteristics of Christ's Church.

These other Christian bodies, however, have not been in any rush to be enfolded in the arms of the Anglican Church. They all have had their own claims, and have been rightly suspicious of our self-assuredness. To maintain a position of leadership in the search for Christian unity requires that we do more than rely on our heritage. In the meantime, our classical Catholicism, our perhaps often excessive emphasis on the Liturgy, and our stubborn grasp on episcopal government have all made their indelible marks on the greater Christian community.

The Anglican "ethos" is nothing if not the awareness that God's will must be done, regardless of the cost to us. Social demands of today, as well as scientific progress, continue to call Anglicans to a fresh updating of theology, worship, witness and ecumenical approaches.

"I never take a day off!"

This apparently virtuous boast, frequently heard by us all, reflects a centuries-old idea that to be idle is sinful. Since the Reformation, St. Paul's injunction to "redeem the time, for the days are evil," has given a kind of theological exaltation to productivity as a virtue. And, until recently, so it has had to be. The majority of people used to have to work most of their waking hours in order merely to feed and clothe themselves.

Technological advances, however, have now made it possible for us to produce more and more with less and less work. This raises a question for us: do we need a theology of non-productivity, a theology of fun? With more and more leisure time, this question is becoming increasingly important.

There are countless ways we can spend our free time. Civic and community activities, hobbies, church work, sports and other physical recreation all help us to relax our minds and our bodies. For some, the exchange of one kind of work for another can be beneficial. The office worker may find relaxation in the hard physical work of gardening. The farmer and the housewife may find their relaxation in working puzzles or reading.

Learning to live, to play, and to know one's own family in leisure hours is one of the most creative, and perhaps little used, applications of free time. The proper use of leisure time does not mean we must be continually in motion. If our physical or mental state calls for complete inactivity, perhaps this is an indication that God wants us to crawl into a hammock. Our human nature has its limitations, and we are just as wrong to over-extend our capabilities and to ruin our health and well being as we are to neglect using our talents.

It is also important for us to recognize the destructive ways in which we can use leisure, such as engaging in harmful gossip, or running away from ordinary duties which others depend upon us to fulfill. In these and other ways we can evade our God-given roles in the world.

The Collect for the fifteenth Sunday after Trinity asks God to "lead us to all things profitable to our salvation." If we keep this prayer in mind, we shall be using our leisure as creatively as we do our work.

Miracles

These days, the miracles in the New Testament are frequently challenged, even by Christians. We live in an age that regards itself as being scientific in its values and its judgments. Such an age tends to look on stories of miraculous events with considerable skepticism. Some people, too, find that accounts of the miracles do little to help them appreciate the character of Jesus. For them, the wonder-worker is not nearly as compelling a figure as is the concerned and compassionate Nazarene.

The raising of the son of the widow of Nain can be one of these problem-causing miracles. Surely, we think, the raising in public of a man from the dead, not in a spiritual but in an utterly physical way, would do more than merely start a rumor that a prophet had come! Surely, too, a man who had been raised from the dead in such a spectacular fashion would not simply disappear into the crowd, never to be heard of again.

Objections such as these, raised by serious and believing Christians, are not to be dismissed as capricious or faithless. We need to remember that the New Testament was written in a day when the miraculous was commonly accepted as an explanation for many phenomena which could not otherwise be explained by the best minds of the time. A sudden awakening from a coma, tornadoes, plagues, eclipses and other occurrences of which we now have some understanding, were explained then as resulting from direct divine intervention in the affairs of men.

Under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, we have been led into much scientific as well as religious truth. Today we know reasons for many events—reasons which were not available to men of the first century. Thus, there is not only less room for the miraculous in our day, there is less need for it.

In spite of all this, the ultimate claims of the New Testament for Jesus are clear: He is Lord of life, and as Lord He can intervene with power in the affairs of the world, today as He did then.

The rejection of a few stories about miracles is not particularly important. What is important is that we put our faith in Him whose compassion and concern were so evident and so effective that men saw Him as a worker of miracles and a sign of God's love.

Rehearsals begin today - Candidates please contact Mr. Atherton if you are interested in singing. We are an all volunteer group. Rehearsals are Sundays at 9 A.M.

SCHOOL CRISIS

We expect some seniors from W. Philadelphia High School mornings this week if the public schools are not opened. They will be here with some volunteer teachers so that they will not be penalized in college preparation.

PARKING

The area just west of the church is provided for our use in lieu of the closing of Locust St. However, the establishment of our control may take some time! In the meantime it is possible to drive into our parking area east of the parish house as well as Locust St. on weekends.

PARTICIPATION

1. Banners for the church, posters for the Parish House? The Open House Wednesday will provide a first opportunity for new ideas and creations! Some materials will be on hand.
2. Readers for Sunday Services? We also anticipate some use of readings in addition to Scripture.
3. The intercession this morning was composed by a parishioner. Any other offerings may be submitted to the Rector.
4. Children - indeed, all ages - are encouraged to get in on the fun! Please note the following from the new publication committee:

Your new bi-monthly parish publication wants new ideas, suggestions, stories, poems, and cartoons. The September deadline is Sunday, the 20th. Give your material to Shirley Bliss, Betty Breedlove, Helen Dietz, Larry Laramy, Blanche Summers or Rheta Weidenbacker whose names and addresses are posted in the back of the church. Do feel free to ask questions if you are hesitant about giving something you have written.

MOVEMENT MEETINGS

Philadelphia Resistance which meets regularly on Mondays, Episcopal Peace Fellowship & Clergy & Laymen Concerned about Vietnam are all open meetings.

HAVE YOU MOVED? ARE YOU A NEWCOMER? NOT RECEIVING THE PARISH LETTER? PLEASE LET US KNOW BY TEARING OFF AND GIVING THE FORM BELOW TO ONE OF THE CLERGY.

Sabbatarianism

Sunday-closing laws for merchants are among the last remnants of Sabbatarianism, that unique by-product of the English Reformation. Nowhere else in Christendom were the restraints and taboos of the Jewish Sabbath applied to Sunday the Christian Lord's Day. In England the Puritan party sought to forbid everything but religious activity on Sundays, not only for Christians but for everyone.

The Book of Sports, issued in 1618 over the vigorous protest of many of the clergy, was an attempt by King James I to deal with Sabbatarianism. This pamphlet deplores the notion that Christianity is a sad and solemn faith, with no room for human joys and pleasure. (The king also suggested that vigorous outdoor sports on Sunday were useful in keeping the peasantry fit for service in the army, thus combining piety and practicality in a way which must be envied by all public officials.)

The advice King James gave to his people has been echoed by churchmen speaking to their children for a long time: go to church first, and then have your fun. The king approved of "dancing, either men or women; archery for men, leaping, vaulting, or any other such harmless recreation...May games, Whitsun ales and Morris dances; and the setting up of May poles...so as the same be had in due and convenient time, without impediment or neglect of divine service."

James goes on to forbid "bear and bull baitings, interludes, and at all times in the meaner sort of people by law prohibited, bowling."

Sabbatarianism was well known in years past in America. Many adults can remember Sunday as a day on which dancing, playing cards or even roller skating, were strictly forbidden. Blue laws were common, and in many towns only emergency supplies could be bought on a Sunday.

For many of us today, much of this seems rather foolish. We see Sunday as the celebration of our Lord's Resurrection, a time of joy and thanksgiving for the victory of Christ. Yet, the Sabbatarians had a valid point amidst all their dourness: regular worship by the Christian community helps us to recall that God has acted in Christ for our redemption, and that gratitude for that action is the basis of our life.

The Book of Sports' admonition that worship and recreation go together is still valid, and perhaps it is necessary for the Church to provide opportunities for worship which make it possible for urban people to engage in significant recreation and still share in the liturgical life of their home parishes.

Whatever is re-creative and enjoyable on any other day of the week can be used on Sundays, as Christians use the things of the world to praise their Creator and Redeemer.

Self-Love

"I love myself a great deal."

If we were to hear someone say this out loud, most of us would be shocked. The phrase sounds narcissistic, almost perverted, and certainly unchristian. We have been warned so often in sermons, and, as children, by our elders, about the sin of pride, and we have been admonished so many times to choose for God and for our neighbor rather than for ourselves, that we tend to think pride is the cause of all our troubles. If this is what we believe, we are quite mistaken.

For most of us, the problem is not that we love ourselves too much, but rather that we find ourselves so unlovable we are convinced no one else can possibly love us. If no one loves us, it follows that no one will care what happens to us. This, in turn, means that it is up to us to protect ourselves and to get what we can for ourselves.

Our self-depreciation requires constant reassurances that we are important, that we do matter. The result of this kind of self-appraisal is vanity, pride, self-vindication, and all our other desperate attempts to bolster our sagging self-image.

For Christians, the problem may be further compounded by the mistaken notion that God wants us to stop loving ourselves. Many of us feel so guilt-ridden that we see self-hatred as being the only way of dealing with our sins which will be pleasing to God. We tend to equate misery and sanctity.

"I love myself" can always be said by those who know they are loved by God. God's love for us is neither partial nor tentative. It is not dependent on our good behaviour, nor even on our faith. He loves us, and each of us is of almost infinite worth in His sight.

This is why He sent His Son into the world, to die for us and to rise for us. We are given His Holy Spirit, and we are fed with Christ's Body and Blood. Those who know this are called to celebrate God's love, and one way of celebrating is to love what He loves—one's self.

This kind of self-love does not result in self-satisfaction or in pride. It leads, rather, to a deeper gratitude to God, a more widespread concern for all who share His love, a freedom from self-doubt and self-hatred.

The best self-love is nothing less than a gift from God.

COVER: As the plant grows, so does Christian love, symbolized by a heart, grow.

CHURCH AND STATE

Most people are aware the reform Democrats of N.D.C. persuasion had numerous meetings at St. Mary's in the Spring and were successful in winning the leadership of this 27th ward. Several members of the parish are committeemen.

At the same time another parishioner with contemporary concerns is the Republican Candidate for the 190th Dist. of the State Legislature. Web Christman's friends and supporters in the congregation plan two parties for this afternoon and next Saturday for people to meet him. See Bulletin Board.

HOMEWORK

Chris Toy, vestryman and choirmember, and the Rector are planning next Sunday's sermon. If you want to join the preparation please see one of them at coffee hour.

The General Convention

The sixty-third General Convention of the Episcopal Church opens October 11, in Houston, Texas. Participating in this gathering will be the bishops and clerical and lay deputies representing all the dioceses and missionary jurisdictions of the American Church. In addition, thousands of visitors and special representatives will share in various aspects of the Convention's activities.

The problems, reports and questions facing this triennial assembly will be urgent and contemporary. General Convention will make major decisions about changes in the Prayer Book, the training and deployment of clergy, the structure and operation of the parish and the diocese, and the future of the Church's program of assistance to minority groups.

In addition, the Convention will deliberate on reports concerning further involvement in ecumenical discussions and a proposal to broaden the scope of representation to Convention.

The principle of an elected body of churchmen gathering to legislate for the corporate life of the Church has long been established in Christendom. A representative form of ecclesiastical government has been part of the heritage of Anglicanism for centuries, and each province or national Church within the Anglican Communion shares this tradition, each in its own way.

In the United States, the Episcopal Church's governmental structure is similar to that of the federal government, with the House of Bishops corresponding to the Senate and the House of Deputies to the House of Representatives. An equal number of priests and lay persons from each diocese and missionary district make up the membership of the House of Deputies.

As the Convention discusses the Church's budget and missionary program, proposed changes in liturgy and the admission of new dioceses, the voices of both clergy and laity will be heard.

As in every deliberative assembly, timidity, inaction, or ill-considered decisions may result upon occasion. However unfortunate the risks of democracy may be, Episcopalians prefer them to the dangers of ecclesiastical tyranny.

INTRODUCING

(Mrs.) Trudy Zapf is now secretary for the Parish at our office at the Christian Association. Hours are 9:30 A.M. to 3:30 P.M. and the telephone remains the same, Ev6-3916.

WHAT FATHER GRACIE SAID

The wind blew, the rain came.....and the conclusion to Father Gracie's sermon last week was given in the midst of that distraction. Perhaps the logic of revolution should arouse us with wind and rain. Yet, he said, "With deep respect for the armed liberation struggles... the only Judge at the doors is the one who comes unarmed and disarming; who, without wrath, works out the righteousness of God."

INQUIRERS

Persons interested in some inquiry into the faith and practise of the Church with or without the intention of formal membership are invited to an initial meeting Sunday, October 18th at 8:00 p.m. in the Parish House. Father Scott would like to know of persons who plan to attend.

RECITAL

Our own parishioner and organist, Bill Riley, will give the first recital on the new console and revised organ Sunday afternoon, October 18, at 4:00 P.M.

The General Convention

When the Revolutionary War ended, the Anglican clergymen and laymen in the new United States found themselves leaderless and disorganized. They had always depended upon the mother Church in England for governance, support and for the ordination of their clergy.

Immediately needed were bishops to ordain and confirm, a revised Prayer Book suitable for use in the new republic, and organization for self-government.

Fortunately the Church had the vision and labor of two priests, Samuel Seabury of Connecticut, and William White of Pennsylvania, to guide it in the formation of what is now the Episcopal Church.

Seabury's main concern was to obtain the episcopate for Anglicans in America. Unable, because of parliamentary difficulties, to be consecrated in England, he finally received consecration at the hands of three Scottish bishops in 1784.

The following year, White, who was especially interested in the structure of a self-governing Church and in the revision of an appropriate Prayer Book, presided over the first General Convention in Philadelphia. Because of a misunderstanding, Bishop Seabury did not attend, and this first Convention was composed of only priests and laymen. It was not until 1789 that the present two-house system of bishops, and clerical and lay deputies, was established.

By this time William White and Samuel Provoost, of New York, had been consecrated bishops in England, but Bishop Provoost was absent from the 1789 Convention and thus the House of Bishops met with only two members. The House of Deputies numbered less than twenty.

The General Convention, which now meets every three years, has the power to amend or change the Constitution and Canons of the Church and to authorize any changes to be made in the Prayer Book and Hymnal. As the Church's legislative body it establishes missionary policy and adopts the budget to support its missionary program.

An Executive Council composed of elected bishops, priests and lay people, acts as the Convention's interim agent to carry out the missionary, educational, and social programs established by the Convention. The Council prepares and presents the program and budget for action, but it is the Convention which has the final and decisive vote.

St. Luke

Many Episcopal hospitals carry the name of St. Luke, for Luke "the beloved physician" is considered the patron saint of healing and of the healing professions. Yet, his association with healing is attributable to only sparse evidence in the New Testament.

This fame, developed largely through popular devotion, has often obscured the other unquestioned, documented and lasting contribution which Luke made to Christianity, namely, the monumental two-volume work we know as St. Luke's Gospel and the Acts of the Apostles.

The sheer bulk of St. Luke's two books is greater than that of any other single New Testament writer. Like the other three evangelists, he shared certain common sources of information. Like them, he also had separate sources and his own approach.

An example of Luke's uniqueness is seen in his providing us with a rich store of material surrounding the events of our Lord's birth, possibly deriving from information given him by our Lord's Mother. It is also to Luke that we owe the texts of the earliest Christian hymns, Magnificat, Benedictus, and Nunc Dimittis. Only in Luke do we find those powerful parables about the Good Samaritan and the Prodigal Son. And it is Luke who gives special emphasis to the worth and status of women.

Even more significant to Christian history and biography is St. Luke's second volume, the Acts of the Apostles. Here we have spread before us the Pentecostal experience of the Apostles, the election of St. Matthias, the preaching of St. Peter, and the conversion of St. Paul with the chronicling of his evangelistic journeys.

In Acts, too, we can see the records of disputes among the Apostles, the development and perpetuation of bishops and deacons in the Christian ministry, the continuing observance of the Eucharist, and many accounts of healing and teaching by various disciples. The Book of Acts, especially in recent translations, reads like the engrossing history it is.

To add to all of this, St. Luke, with his talent for writing, firmly interlaces the Christian record with secular events and personages, thus securing the Church's place in human history.

We honor Luke the physician, of course, but we also should give earnest thanks for Luke the evangelist and historian.

Reformation

In the 16th century Christendom experienced a great upheaval known as the Reformation.

Ever since the day that Martin Luther nailed his famous 95 theses on the Church door at Wittenberg, the Reformation has exercised a decisive influence upon the history of the western world, an influence far more widespread than a mere scholarly debate between churchmen.

Whatever historical judgment we may choose to make about the men and movements of the 16th century, we find increasing awareness of the need for continuing reformation throughout the whole Church. Rather than viewing the Lutheran, Calvinist, Anglican or Roman Catholic aspects of the Reformation as "good" or "bad," churchmen are finding more fruitful their discussions about the possibilities for Christian renewal now.

The urgent need in our time is to recognize that within Christ's Body, the Churches, all is not well. At no time can we ever reach a point of such individual strength that we can say to another member of that Body, "I have no need of thee." (1 Corinthians: 12)

And yet in our arrogance we have been saying this to other parts of the Church far too long. We have tended to speak as if the reformation of the Church had been accomplished once and for all, long ago. We have forgotten that the call to reform comes from God the Holy Spirit to each generation. Only as we are prepared to respond to the summons of self-criticism now, are we the legitimate heirs of the true spirit of the Reformation in the one body of Christ's Church.

The sins and shortcomings of yesterday speak words of warning to us today. Instead of regretting, praising, or condemning deeds of the past, Christians can be striving to find new ways of obeying God's will for his Church in the present.

For All the Saints

The Feast of All Saints recognizes and honors the host of nameless heroes among the People of God. These are the people who have left behind them no legends of spiritual prowess, no record of super-piety. It is likely they were unknown in their lifetime, except, perhaps to a few intimates. But through the ages the Church has made thankful celebration before God and men for the devotion of these men and women.

Sainthood is not the haven of a spiritual elite. Sainthood is rather that blessedness of being to which Christ invites us and with which He adorns us. Canonization may recognize a hero of the faith for some extraordinary achievement, but this is not what makes one a saint. Baptism puts all of us on the pilgrim path to sainthood.

The signs of our progress are shamelessness in confessing our faith in Christ Crucified, our manful contention with evil wherever we encounter it, and an enduring and obedient service to Christ and for Him in all our dealings.

The humdrum, unspectacular pilgrimage of the run-of-the-mine Christian is its own reward. In the following of Christ through the ordinary routines of living we find His power for wholeness and holiness in our lives.

As we discern Christ present and at work in the common and uncommon scenes in His world, we witness to the Presence which sanctifies each and all who are touched by Him. When we commit ourselves to engage the world within us and the world outside us in the Name and for the praise of Christ, we begin to grow into the stature of saints of God.

As we keep this Feast of All Saints we thank God for the faithfulness of our fellow Christians who have brought us into the Way, and we cherish the hope of common blessedness to crown our journey's end.

A Sense of Sin

Do we really believe we are sinners? Certainly the Church, in Scripture and the Liturgy, reminds us again and again that we are. The main services of the Prayer Book not only state this fact but exhort us to examine our lives and confess our sins and seek God's forgiveness.

We hear regularly the words, "Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners", and "if we say we have no sin we deceive ourselves", yet somehow the significance of these phrases doesn't seem to sink in.

It is true that we say the General Confession in church, and occasionally we may even have a fleeting feeling of remorse (which some of us are inclined to think of as penitence).

On the other hand, most of us, even though we do not know exactly why, do feel that we are sinners. There are few sane people who feel they are perfect in God's sight.

While no one has ever characterized Episcopalians as being breast-beating sinners, we apparently do consider ourselves unfulfilled in our worship if we lack regular opportunities for confession. An example of this is seen in our reaction to the recent liturgical experiment in which the required number of occasions for using the General Confession was reduced. Even though this decrease was suggested in response to numerous suggestions that the repeated emphasis on sin tends to dull one's consciousness of it, the suggestion was met with cries of "We need it more often!"

Apparently we want to approach God in some prepared, cleaned way. We want to confess our sinfulness, even though we may not be entirely sure what our sins are.

Self-examination may or may not be a part of our religious practice and we may think that the whole procedure has to be emotional to be "real". But an appropriate sense of sin is not primarily emotional. What is primary is that we acknowledge our failure toward God, our fellows and ourselves. The particularization of failure is up to the individual.

Sin is a condition we all share, each after his own fashion. We believe that Christ came to point this out, to die for it, to forgive it. Our part is to admit to sin, to state it in words, and to seek our Lord's forgiveness of it.

This we do, individually and corporately.

COVER: A white garment is a symbol of purity and hence forgiveness.

Reading the Signs

Signs are used as a short-cut to meaning not only by stenographers and scientists and druggists. They are both used and interpreted by all people of common sense as the shorthand of everyday life. A red light at an intersection is a sign telling us, without words, that we must stop. A high reading on a thermometer is a sign of illness, and, for some people, a headache can be a sign of overwork.

Our Lord always gave His hearers credit for common sense and assumed they would interpret correctly the signs He used in His teaching. Experience told them that a southwest wind meant scorching desert air, budding trees were a harbinger of spring; pruned vines meant more grapes.

Our Lord also realized that His hearers, despite their common sense about things of this world, did not always recognize the spiritual meaning of the signs all about them. Like us when we fail to notice a traffic light, they often missed the most obvious signs.

And if we miss the signs of temporary meaning, how will we recognize those of eternal meaning? An unexpected call from an old friend, the loss of a job, or the death of a loved one; such events can jar us into a more than casual look at where we are going and what our life means.

Certainly we are interested in where we are going and how. The daily horoscopes have avid readership. Newspapers and television commentators are specialists in identifying the signs of the times, and we listen eagerly to those whose predictions agree with our own hopes or fears.

Financial consultants read the indications of the stock market and virtually everyone watches the weather reports. We do look for signs, and wherever we can find them.

Jesus spoke of the signs in the world. He talked about the wind and the stars, about weddings and illnesses, and He looked through these signs to point up the meaning of man's life, to remind His hearers of the reality of the Kingdom, to offer hope to those who were afraid.

If we ignore or fail to recognize these signs, we shall never rise above earthly wisdom—we shall never be prepared for the power of His coming.

PARISH MAILING LISTS:

Copies of the present mailing list of persons in Pennsylvania are available on the tract table. If you find errors or omissions, please let us know!

PARISH STEWARDSHIP:

The Finance Committee of the Vestry has authorized two expenditures on parish behalf. The first is a contribution of $200 to the Pakistani Cyclone Relief Fund which represents a 1969 budget item for community concerns. We have also contributed $100 from a similar fund established in 1969 to the Rebuilding Fund of Zion Baptist Church. This suggestion was made by a parishoner and it seems an appropriate response to the efforts of Leon Sullivan in numerous Philadelphia community affairs, not the least of which is the O.I.C.

Steward of the Mysteries of God

John the Baptist was not a disciple of our Lord and thus had to ask Jesus whether or not He was the Messiah who was promised. John was an outsider and God's revelation of His unfolding purposes was hidden from his eyes and thus was a mystery to him.

But we are God's sons and joint-heirs with Christ. What was a mystery to John should be a revelation to us, a revelation of which we are stewards and guardians.

God's purposes are unfolding revelation, beginning with His creation and continuing through the unique demonstration of His love, the Incarnation of our Lord. For Christians, these revelations of God's redemptive and reconciling act are a priceless treasure. They can be known, and can be appropriated as a strengthening comfort to men and women who follow the lord. To the trusting and receptive Christian God's mystery is a revelation.

But to the worldly-minded, the mystery remains a mystery. Absorbed in the concerns of this world, the "wise and prudent" see very little in Jesus Christ to attract them from their self-indulgent interests. In this "practical", even hostile, world, they cannot comprehend the concept of loving enemies, of turning the other cheek, and of not caring for wealth. The life and the teachings of God in Christ contribute in no way to their worldly success, earthly pleasures and daily ease.

But Christians are enjoined to preserve the mysteries of God's revelation. We are made stewards, responsible managers of God's riches. A good steward is marked by his faithfulness, for he deals with something that belongs to another. And we are required to be faithful, for we are asked to preserve and pass on a wisdom that is given us by God.

As stewards of the mysteries, we can preserve them in a significant and reverent manner—in our lives.

There may be those to whom God's grace is now a mystery who, through our stewardship, may discover the mystery to be a revelation.

"Let Us Cook the Plum Pudding"

Once again we welcome Christ's birth with the familiar round of holiday festivities. Surely there is no other time of the year when we experience as much pleasure and good will as during the Christmas season. Most of us will attend one or more church services and then continue our celebration in the various ways that have become traditional in our families.

It has become fashionable today to scoff at those who attach any significance to tradition, yet we all are part of some kind of tradition. The gathering together of the family at this season is, in itself, a tradition.

Tradition is not limited to history nor confined to museums. Traditions vary. Some may seem trivial: "The youngest always opens the first gift Christmas morning." Others may be of deeper significance: "The entire family always worships together at the Christmas Eve Eucharist."

The importance of a tradition rests more with what it conveys than with the means by which it is conveyed. Traditions give us continuity, identity and corporateness. They link the present to the past. They are a living reality, part of the fabric of life that draws us together.

We can change them, add to them or try to ignore them. If seen in relation to the Manger, they can help us to understand the frailties, the generosity and even the joy of the humanity Christ came to save.

Surely our Lord, who provided the wine when it was needed at the wedding feast at Cana, is as concerned about our parties as about our prayers. He who became man, draws no sharp distinction between our church traditions and our family traditions.

By all means, let us cook the plum pudding from grandmother's recipe. Let the children hang their stockings. Let us trim the tree and gather round the creche to sing a carol or two, even if off-key.

Let us toast the birth of the new-born King who bears the wine of God to our altars and into our homes.

The Lord is at hand...rejoice in the Lord always."

St. John, Apostle and Evangelist

For some people Christmas is chiefly--and, perhaps, only--a season of gift-giving, lights, tinsel and gaiety. Others may regard it mostly as a sentimental interlude which interrupts the grim drama of "reality" each year with a period-piece featuring a Babe in a manger and His sweet-faced Mother, flanked by angels on high and admired by wide-eyed shepherds and their cute little sheep.

Christmas is infinitely more significant than either of these concepts, as St. John the Evangelist's account of the Nativity emphasizes. St. John sees the Nativity as being far more than a beautiful pastoral scene which somehow introduces a fascinating story about God's meddling in history.

The author of the Fourth Gospel recognizes that this event is the simplest, yet most profound revelation of God, and he interprets it as the culmination of God's redemptive action for His creation. Although St. John's approach is theological, it is thoroughly grounded in a historical revelation: The Son of God has come among men for their salvation. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."

St. John sees the birth of Christ as the Incarnation, the glory of God dwelling among men in human form. Our Lord's earthly and resurrected life, as John comprehended it, was the continuation of the divine life Jesus shared eternally with the Father.

But there is a further motive for John's writing of the Gospel. He tells us that he wrote it in order that "You may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in his name."

Christmas is joy and light and gaiety, but it is also more. St. John, Evangelist, focuses our attention on its full and overwhelming significance.

Christmas is God come to earth in order that we might be raised.
